GENEVA, May 22.—(AP)—The United States government today pledged itself never to interfere with international action to deal with a menace of war once the aggressor nation responsible for that menace has been satisfactorily identified.

This far reaching policy was announced by Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's representative, at the international disarmament conference. It was immediately interpreted as meaning that in the future the league of nations can boycott, blockade and otherwise punish an aggressor without fear of complications by the United States.

Agrees to Supervision of Arms.

Mr. Davis also committed the American government to participate in "effective, automatic and continuous" international supervision designed to make certain that the nations carry out their promises in disarmament.

"President Roosevelt's message," he said, "is a clear indication of the fact that the United States will exert its full power and influence and accept its just share of responsibility to make the results in disarmament definite, prompt and effective."

His speech, greeted by the cheers of the delegates of 50 nations, was accepted by European commentators as marking abandonment of the traditional American policy of isolation and neutrality.

Seen as Guarantee to Britain.

Concretely, the American doctrine was interpreted to mean that the British navy now can feel more free to help the league of nations keep the peace, because it will be in no danger of coming to grips with the American navy. Hitherto Britain has hesitated to join a European security pact because she feared difficulty with the American fleet if the United States insisted on a neutral's right to trade with belligerents.

After announcing that the United States was willing to consult with the other states in case of a threat to peace, Mr. Davis set forth the American policy in these words:

"Further than that, in the event that the states, in conference, determine that a state has been guilty of a breach of the peace in violation of its international obligations and take measures against the violator, then, if we concur in the judgment rendered as to the responsible and guilty party, we will refrain from any action tending to defeat such collective effort which these states may thus make to restore peace."

U. S. Sets One Condition.

Thus, the only condition is that the United States agree with the other nations as to which is the guilty country.

In other words, according to the interpretation accepted in Geneva, America not only puts a curb on her neutrality rights but voluntarily limits her liberty on the sea.

Although America would consult with the other nations, she presumably would not vote in determining an aggressor. Leaders said tonight, however, that Europe or the league was not likely to specify any nation as an aggressor unless it was believed that America would concur.

Mr. Davis told the conference that either something must be accomplished in disarmament or the nations must become reconciled to reverting to a race in arms.

Warns of War Danger.

"If the latter course is taken," he said, "the consequences are inevitable. Sooner or later there will be the breakdown of the peace machinery which has been so laboriously built up since 1918 and the world will be swept into another war."

He proposed drastic arms reductions, saying that the United States was prepared "to go as far as the other states."

"We feel that the ultimate objective should be to reduce armaments ap-

Cops Disguised as Ball Players Seize a Bandit

Four disguised policemen captured a bandit-extortionist last evening by playing baseball on a sand lot diamond at 1301 West Division street, and waiting for him to walk into their trap. The prisoner, Edward Kulick, 19 years old, 747 Milwaukee avenue, drew a revolver to resist, but surrendered when he saw he was outnumbered. His victim, Clifford J. Nolan, 121 North Lavergne avenue, helped capture him.

Last Wednesday Nolan, a foreman for the Old Monk Olive Oil company, 717 North Curtis street, was robbed of $4 and his automobile by Kulick at Chicago and Milwaukee avenue. The following day he received a telephone call informing him that he could get his car back on payment of $50.

Tells of Telephone Threats.

Nolan agreed to this demand, and met the caller, who turned out later to be Kulick, at a railroad viaduct near the sandlot. The man ran away, however, when Nolan tried to nab him. During the next few days Nolan was threatened over the telephone by Kulick, he said. The threats caused hi anxiety for the safety of his children, Catherine, 8 years old, and Robert, 10.

Finally Kulick asked Nolan to meet him again at the same place. The time was for last evening. Nolan notified North Racine avenue police. An hour before the appointed time Sergt. Patrick McShane, and Policemen Edward Tighe, John O'Malley, and Lawrence Smuczymski went to the sandlot. They were dressed in old clothes.

First Baseman Orders Surrender.

A group of youths were playing ball. The disguised policemen joined them. Nolan also played. The game was almost an hour old when Kulick cut across the diamond. Nolan who was pitching, signaled to Tighe, who was playing first base. Tighe stepped up to Kulick and ordered him to surrender. Kulick instead whipped out his gun. The other policemen ran up with drawn guns.

"If you shoot, you'll be killed surely," warned Tighe. Kulick lowered his gun and Tighe disarmed him. Nolan formally identified Kulick at the station and the prisoner admitted robbing and telephoning him.

BOMB WRECKS EXCLUSIVE GEM SHOP IN HAVANA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, May 23 [Tuesday].—La Palais Royale, Havana's largest exclusive jewelry store, was wrecked at midnight by a bomb that mortally injured Policeman Fermin Morales and five pedestrians. A score of persons passing in the street when the bomb burst suffered minor injuries.

Shortly before midnight three youths alighted from an automobile. One of them hung a package-like contrivance from spikes on the fence-like gate leading to the shop. The terrorists were arrested after a spectacular chase of several blocks, police firing continuously and endangering passersby.

While the chase was going on the bomb exploded. Property damage was estimated at $80,000. It was not possible to arrive at a figure on the loss of the jewelry, the value of diamonds in the store being half a million dollars alone, according to José Ramon Alvarez, owner of the store.

Police refuse to reveal the names of the terrorists.

Complying with orders from Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, federal commander in the rebellious eastern provinces, five rebels were hanged from trees in Moron park this afternoon. The victims were alleged leaders of a band of 250 insurgents. A few hours afterward a 10 year old boy was reported hanged for having witnessed the previous hangings.

Free Comfort Station Issue Raised at Fair

A protest against admission charges to comfort stations on A Century of Progress grounds will be made to the Fair officials today by George Lytton, president of Paris, Inc., one of the most elaborate concessions at the exposition.

The comfort concession, valued at many thousands of dollars, has been sold to a contracting company which has constructed stations and installed coin in the slot attachments. A representative of Paris, Inc., said last night that under the prevailing arrangement 20 per cent of the facilities are to be free, with the remainder available only to those who can and will pay.

Public Protest Foreseen.

The public, however, will not get as favorable a break as the figures would indicate, the same representative said. He asserted the plan of the comfort concessionnaire is to put nearly all the free 20 per cent under the Soldiers' field stadium and along the beaches, thus compelling those who do not care to walk a mile or two to pay as they go and in advance.

Also there is a sentiment that visitors from towns, villages, and farms may not be able to appreciate what Mr. Lytton has termed a somewhat extreme tendency in commercialism.

Threatens to Resign.

"We do not wish to make trouble for the Fair officials," declared Mr. Lytton. "I am sure we can reach an amicable settlement. But I feel strongly that the public should not be treated in this manner at our concession. So strongly do I feel that I threatened to resign unless we could give free access in Paris, Inc.

"Beer will be sold in the restaurants of Paris, Inc., and they will be among the busiest spots at the Fair. We are allowed under the present arrangements to have a few free stations, but not nearly enough. Paris was never like this."

Unofficially it was reported that two or three other concessionaries were going to hand in similar protests against the charges for facilities that usually are furnished free.

MORGAN TO BE WITNESS TODAY IN U. S. HEARING

Senate Seeks Source of Banker's Power.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—Partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., reputedly the most powerful private banking institution of the modern world, will bare the secrets of their power under compulsion tomorrow before the senate banking and currency committee.

J. Pierpont Morgan, head of the house, and four of the more prominent of his twenty partners arrived here tonight, each in his own car with chauffeur and three bodyguards. With Morgan were George Whitney, Thomas W. Lamont, William Ewing and T. S. Lamont, all under subpoena.

Tonight, with their entourage, the five Morgan partners were in conference with their attorneys, having taken an entire floor of a Washington hotel to insure privacy. They had had a brush with reporters and photographers as they left the Morgan offices at Broad and Wall streets, New York, for Washington early in the afternoon, according to dispatches.

Capital Clamors for Seats.

With the senate committee's counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, promising to unfold the story of the Morgan operations in full from 1928 through the depression, official Washington tonight was clamoring for the privilege of a seat at tomorrow's hearing.

An extra large committee room has been reserved for the session and porters were stacking it tonight with chairs. Mr. Morgan himself will be the first witness sworn at 10 a. m., tomorrow, and is expected to be on the stand all day and perhaps part of the day following.

To guide his inquisition, Mr. Pecora tonight had guards wheeling into the committee room the piles of records which the house of Morgan recently produced in response to twenty-four specifications from the senate committee after the Morgan counsel, John W. Davis, had advised his clients to answer only fifteen.

Seek Interlocking Groups.

On the basis of these records, Mr. Pecora expects to expose the system of interlocking directorates by which the house of Morgan is reputed to control big commercial banks; the deposits of Morgan controlled corporations which the banking house is reputed to distribute among other banks to maintain its influence; and the international operations of the house, which is fiscal agent for the British government.

Mr. Pecora, former assistant United States attorney in New York, has already exposed the operations of the Insull utilities system and brought out a situation in the National City bank which resulted in the indictment of its recent president, Charles E. Mitchell, for income tax fraud.

Should he score again for the senate committee, there is talk of running him for mayor of New York on the Democratic ticket.

House Quizzed in 1912.

Not since 1912 has the house of Morgan been subjected to official scrutiny. In that year under a resolution of Representative Pujo of Louisiana the elder J. Pierpont Morgan and his partners gave testimony which some construed to prove that the credit and the money power of the country were controlled by ten men.

It was in that hearing that the elder Morgan gave his famous definition of the requisite for credit. Asked what qualifications a man must have to procure a loan from him, he tersely answered "character."

In a recently published biography of another financier, Henry P. Davison, Thomas Lamont, the Morgan partner, asserted that the Pujo investigation "innuendoes" had contributed to the death of his former chief.

Look for Law Changes.

Just as disclosures of the Pujo committee were held largely responsible for the creation of the federal reserve system, Mr. Pecora promises tonight that the Morgan investigation will produce further reform of the banking laws. The Rockefeller financial interests are already advocating that directors of private banks be prohibited from serving also on directorates of commercial banks.

Washington gossips tonight were recalling an incident at a hearing of the banking and currency committee during the Hoover administration in which the house of Morgan was mentioned and Senator Brookhart said:

"Well, I guess we'll have to get Mr. Morgan down here."

There was a chuckle of laughter at the time, but tonight Mr. Morgan is in Washington.

Fair So Vast It Takes Weeks to See It All

Estimates on how long it will require to take in the World's Fair vary from a week, for a business man's whirlwind survey of the exhibits and fling at the concessions, to the entire five month period, for one who wants to do a thorough job of it.

An official of the Exposition used the Field museum as an illustration of the time that may be spent at the Fair. A Sunday afternoon visitor, he said, might cover a whole floor, while a scientist would spend a week in the anthropological section.

82 Miles of Free Exhibits.

There are some sixty buildings given over to free exhibits, with a total corridor length or walking distance of 82 miles. There are some 12,000 exhibits, so that if two minutes were devoted to the scrutiny of each one it would require six weeks to see them all, working 10 hours a day.

For the man who wishes to devote only a week to the Fair Col. John Stewart, chief of works, mapped out a rough schedule on which most of the exhibits in the buildings of the Exposition proper may be seen without stepping on the ground.

The visitor enters the grounds at 18th street, over the viaduct across the Illinois Central tracks, and into the General Exhibits group, five connected buildings with 211,000 square feet of floor space. A bridge connects this group with the Hall of Science, which has 408,000 feet of floor space, and from it leads a bridge, separating the north and south lagoons, to the Hall of Social Science on Northerly island.

Bridges Connect Exhibits.

Another bridge leads to the Electrical Group, the Radio and Communications and the Electrical buildings, with a combined floor space of 238,000 square feet. Back through the Social Science hall there is a bridge to the United States government building and the Court of States.

A bridge from the federal and states group connects with the Food and Agricultural building, where the elevated journey ends. That leaves the Horticultural building, between Enchanted island and Hollywood, and the Travel and Transport building, at 31st street on the mainland, of the Fair buildings proper.

While on the island the visitor should take in the Planetarium at the north end, Jantzen beach, Enchanted island, if there are children, and, at the south end, Hollywood and Spoor's Spectaculum.

Midway on Mainland.

Back to the mainland, across the Venetian bridge at 23d street, is the beginning of the Midway, the Streets of Paris, Midget village, the Old Heidelberg inn, the World a Million Years Ago, the Moroccan village, the A. & P. Carnival, the Pantheon de la Guerre, the Battle of Gettysburg cyclorama, the Lion Drome, the Oriental Village, and scores of rides and freak shows.

There are rows of amusements and concessions all the way to Fort Dearborn and the Lincoln group at about 27th street, after which comes the Home and Industrial Arts group. A visitor can take a bus, if he likes, to the General Motors, Chrysler and Travel and Transport buildings, or stop off along the way at the Vienna café, the United States army camp, the Indian village, the Maya temple. Farther south, at 35th street, are the poultry show and the "Days of '49," the Ukrainian pavilion, the Goodyear blimp landing field and the Terrazzo promenade.

Bar Autos from Grounds.

On the return bus trip the visitor sees the sights he has missed north of 18th street, the Chinese pavilion and Temple of Jehol, the Japanese pavilion, the Czechoslovakian pavilion, the Italian pavilion, the Swedish pavilion, the Illinois Host house, the Sears-Roebuck building and the Avenue of Flags.

No automobiles will be permitted on the Fair grounds, but the trip from one end to the other can be made for a dime on a bus, while a round trip, with stopover privileges, costs 25 cents.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS ILLINOIS TO FINISH WORK

Press U. S. Loan

When the United States Supreme court decision ordering Illinois to construct sewage works for the sanitary district was received yesterday a movement was immediately launched to arrange for a government public works loan to finance the projects. Details on page 2.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today placed on the state of Illinois the full financial responsibility of carrying out that court's decree in the Chicago sanitary district lake water diversion case.

In an opinion handed down by Chief Justice Hughes the court commanded that state to raise the necessary money—estimated at 139 million dollars—to complete sewage treatment works and any required controlling works. That would be done so that the diverted flow from Lake Michigan shall be cut to 1,500 cubic feet per second by 1938, as ordered in the court's decree of April, 1930.

Illinois Chiefly Responsible.

Illinois is the "primary and responsible defendant," said the opinion of the chief justice. Before assuming his present office he was special master in chancery during the original presentation of the lake diversion case. As principal defendant, the court ruled, Illinois must assume the responsibility that the Chicago sanitary district has proved financially unable to meet.

Illinois must, it was ordered, file by Oct. 2 this year a report showing what it has done to obey the court's mandate.

The order of the court was a substantial compliance with the demands of the complainant great lakes states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, and Michigan. Last October they demanded that the court take action to compel the Chicago sanitary district and the state of Illinois to speed the delayed work on the program contemplated in the 1930 decree.

Demands Somewhat Modified.

The decision was, too, in essence a concurrence in the recommendations of Edward F. McClennen of Boston, special master appointed to take evidence on the great lakes states' complaint.

Though following the theory of Mr. McClennen's advice, however, today's decision modified in important respects the demands of the lakes states and his recommendations.

No special officer of the court is to be sent as a proconsul into Illinois, however, to see that the decree is obeyed. That was the demand of Gilbert Bettman, attorney general of Ohio. He then was a Republican candidate for the United States senate. He came into court a month before election day to file the petition on behalf of the great lakes states.

Illinois under the decision is to raise the money as best it can. It need not issue bonds without a popular referendum, in violation of the state constitution, as Mr. McClennen had recommended.

Nor did the court enlarge its original decree, as he recommended, by including specific instructions for the construction of controlling works at the mouth of the Chicago river in order to prevent a reversal of flow at time of storm or for the immediate commencement of work on the southwest side treatment works or their equivalent.

The whole question, said the court, comes down to the one of money and its procurement.

"For the present halting of its work the sanitary district is not responsible," the court remarked. "It appears to be virtually at the end of its resources."

Duty for Illinois.

The Supreme court found in the record abundant support for the master's finding that there could be no substantial progress on the construction program unless the state came forward with the money.

"That responsibility," said the opinion, "the state should meet."

Despite the effects of the depression on Illinois, despite the fact that the state has had to come to the Reconstruction Finance corporation to borrow funds for charitable relief, and despite reports that Gov. Horner has said he will sign no bill appropriating state money for sanitary district work, the court was sure that Illinois somehow could and would find the means.

Comment on the decision ran to speculation as to whether the court did not have in mind the pending federal public works bill. Illinois representatives in congress already have started a movement for allocation of a share of the loan funds carried in that bill to carry out the sanitary district program.

Lewis Hopes for Loan.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] saw in the decision help for the campaign which he and others have launched to win loans for the sanitary district enterprise.

"The government orders Illinois to furnish the money," he said. "Illinois has no the money. The government is proposing to lend millions of money to the states for just such necessary enterprise. Ours is not only necessary, but it is commanded. I believe that instead of hurting Illinois the decision may turn out to be a benefit."

"Despite existing economic difficulties the state has adequate resources," the Supreme court ruling continued, "and we find it impossible to conclude that the state cannot devise appropriate and adequate financial measures to enable it to afford suitable protection to its people to the end that its obligation to its sister states, as adjudged by this court, shall be properly discharged.

Further Delays Opposed.

"We do not undertake to prescribe the particular measures to be taken or to specify the works and facilities to be provided. But in view of the delay that has occurred and the importance of prompt action, and in order that there may be no ground for misapprehension as to the import of the decree or the duty of the defendant state, we think that complainant states are entitled to have the decree enlarged by the addition of the following provisions:

"That the state of Illinois is hereby required to take all necessary steps, including whatever authorization or requirements, or provisions for the raising, appropriation and application of moneys may be needed in order to cause and secure the completion of adequate sewage treatment or sewage disposal plants and sewers, together with controlling works to prevent reversals of the Chicago river, if such works are necessary, and all other incidental facilities, for the disposition of the sewage of the area embraced within the sanitary district of Chicago so as to preclude any ground of objection on the part of the state or of any of its municipalities to the reduction of the diversion of the waters of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system or watershed to the extent and at the times and in the manner provided in this decree.

State Must Report Work.

"And the state of Illinois is hereby required to file in the office of the clerk of this court, on or before Oct. 2, 1933, a report to this court of its action in compliance with this provision."

Though remarking that it denied the remaining requests in the application of the complaining great lakes states, the court assessed the cost of the hearings by the special master and his compensation against the sanitary district and Illinois.

"In this controversy between states the state of Illinois, by virtue of its status and authority as a state, is the primary and responsible defendant," the court asserted.

Plaintiff States Wronged.

"While the sanitary district is the immediate instrumentality of the wrong found to have been committed against the complainant states by the diversion of water from Lake Michigan, that instrumentality was created and has continuously been maintained by the state of Illinois. Every act of the sanitary district in establishing and continuing the diversion has derived its authority and sanction from the action of the state and is directly chargeable to the state.

"The adjudication as to the right of the complainant states to have the diversion reduced as provided in the decree is an adjudication not merely as against the sanitary district, but as against the state as the defendant responsible under the federal constitution to its sister states for the acts which its creature and agent, the sanitary district, has committed under the state's direction.

For Ship Canal, Too.

"This conclusion would be inevitable, even if the drainage canal had been established solely as a project for local benefit, that is, for the sanitation of the area immediately concerned and this to meet the needs of the inhabitants of the great metropolis within that area. But while the establishment and use of the drainage canal were primarily, as heretofore found, for the purpose of sanitation, the state did not authorize it with that purpose exclusively in view, but the canal project from its first initiation has been promoted by the state of Illinois to provide a waterway for general state purposes and the advantage of the people of the state at large.

"In this suit the state of Illinois has defended from the beginning upon the ground that diversion was essential with reference not only to the needs of sanitation but also for a continuous waterway from the lake to the gulf."

District Creature of State.

Taking up the second point, the court quoted the waterways act of 1930, noting that the diversion specified therein was limited to that allowed under the court's decree.

"The text of the statute is a complete answer to defendants' contention," Chief Justice Hughes declared.

Regarding the compensating works, the court said:

"It would be manifestly inappropriate to discuss the provisions of the pending treaty, bearing upon the diversion of water from Lake Michigan, as the treaty is not in effect. And there is no ground for concluding that the compensation works could be installed in the absence of treaty. What, if anything, would be done in the establishment of compensation works is undetermined. The decisive point is that nothing has been done which affects the operation of the decree and that the obligation of defendants to carry out its terms is in full force."

Police Power of State.

The court then took up the question of the police power of the state.

"The argument ignores," says the court, "the fact that the question does not concern the ordinary exercise of the police power of the state, but rather concerns the duty of the state to take measures to end the condition which it has urged and still urges, as a ground for the postponement of the relief to which the complainant states have been found to be entitled.

"The wrong has been inflicted and is a continuing one. The decision was that this wrong must be stopped. It was not stopped at once merely because of the plight of the residents of Chicago and the adjacent area in whose interest time was sought to provide works and facilities for sewage disposal. The court fittingly recognized this exigency."

Court Retains Powers.

"The court did not exhaust its power by the provisions enjoining the diversion according to the times and amounts prescribed," the court added. "The court omitted further specific requirements not because of want of power but in the expectation that the diligence of defendants in carrying out the program they had submitted to the court would give no occasion for such specifications.

"In deciding this controversy between states, the authority of the court to enjoin the continued perpetration of the wrong inflicted upon complainants necessarily embraces the authority to require measures to be taken to end conditions, within the control of defendant state, which may stand in the way of the execution of the decree."

The opinion noted in the report of the special master that the sanitary district had been guilty of an "inexcusable" delay in not applying to the secretary of war for authority to construct controlling works at the mouth of the Chicago river. But the state and the district had both maintained that such works were not necessary as long as the diversion did not fall below 5,000 cubic second feet —the figure to which it must be cut in 1935. Upon this showing, said the opinion, no specific order for construction of the controlling works would be included.

Status of Other Works.

Likewise, with respect to the construction of the southwest side treatment works, or the works which may be built in their stead on the west side site, the court noted that the district claimed and the master agreed that there was still time to complete the works before 1938.

It was at that point that the opinion swung into its closing statement and order by saying:

"The question, then, comes down to the procuring of the money necessary to effect the prompt completion of the sewage treatment works and the complementary facilities. To provide the needed money is the special responsibility of the state of Illinois."

Decision Shocks Horner.

Springfield, Ill., May 22.—(AP)—Notified that the Supreme court of the United States today had ordered the state of Illinois to complete the Chicago sanitary district's sewage disposal project, Gov. Horner said:

"I am shocked and surprised. I know of no other case where a state has been held responsible for the default of one of its municipalities."

Gov. Horner would not comment further until he has seen a copy of the court's order.

Sanitary District Looks to U. S. for Loan to Finish Sewage Disposal Construction

A loan from the federal government under the 3 billion 300 million dollar public works bill pending before congress to solve the problem of financing the sewage disposal program of the sanitary district of Chicago ordered by the Supreme court was given new impetus soon after the decision was read in Chicago yesterday. The bill was introduced simultaneously in the house and senate last week and is awaiting committee action.

Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district, declared that congressmen, Illinois legislators, and public officials should present a united front to the government in order to obtain the loan. He said that he was "favorably impressed" by the opinion of the Supreme court, which holds the state of Illinois responsible for the finances of the district.

Board Held Blameless for Delay.

The opinion, Mr. Bowler declared, exonerated the sanitary district board of any blame in halting the construction program through lack of funds. If taxes were collected as in normal times, he pointed out, the district would have been able to carry on its projects.

The bill before congress provides for the encouragement of public works and authorizes an administration to be organized by President Roosevelt to purchase securities of municipal bodies in order to carry on these works.

An application for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $36,450,000 to the district several months ago was held as conflicting with the act creating that body. The corporation was empowered to lend money for projects which were self-liquidating and not requiring taxes for financing.

No Self-Liquidating Requirement.

William Rothmann, attorney for the district, said that he had received assurance from one of his assistants, Lawrence Fenlon, who is in Washington, that the new bill would permit a loan for the sewage disposal plants.

Of a total of $138,575,000 needed to complete the program by 1938, the sanitary district outlined expenditures of $36,450,000 in its application for federal funds in order to keep step with the Supreme court's decree by the first of next year. The sewage treatment plants are located as follows: Calumet, 125th street and Cottage Grove avenue; west side, Laramie avenue and 39th street, and north side, Howard street and North Shore channel.

Projects.	Contracts let.	Contracts to be let.
Calumet—
Treatment	$4,035,000	$ 5,054,000
Sewers		4,585,000
Totals	$4,035,000	$ 9,639,000
West side—
Treatment	$1,576,000	$11,428,000
Sewers	3,182,000	6,240,000
Totals	$4,758,000	$17,668,000
North side—
Treatment		$ 150,000
Sewers		200,000
Totals		$ 350,000
Grand totals	$8,793,000	$27,657,000

Work was halted on the construction program on Feb. 5, 1932.

The enlarged decree of the Supreme court raises new legal points. Lawyers point out that ultimate enforcement of the decree, should the state not comply with it, would be by contempt proceedings. The Supreme court would order United States marshals to arrest members of the Illinois assembly and bring them before the court to purge themselves of contempt, or be punished by imprisonment until they obeyed the court's orders.

The legal tenet for this theory is that the court decree, since it involves a controversy between states, is the supreme law of the land. The decree would thus take precedence over the state constitutions and statutory law, nullifying them in so far as they are in conflict with the decree. By the same doctrine, a bond issue under the decree would be valid although adopted contrary to the constitution of the sovereign state of Illinois.

Issue Joint Statement.

In a joint statement regarding the opinion Mr. Rothmann and Joseph B Fleming, special counsel for the district in the lake level litigation, pointed out that the court had relieved the district of the responsibility of the construction of controlling works at the mouth of the Chicago river, unless the works should be found necessary.

The project would entail an expense of approximately $4,000,000 upon the taxpayers of the district. The district has contended that the works at Lockport, Ill., are sufficient to control the river and keep it from carrying back refuse to Lake Michigan in storms or high waters.

For Cutting Off Wisconsin Dairies.

Bernard R. Garner, attorney for the Northern Illinois Milk Producers' association, pointed out yesterday that Wisconsin dairymen are receiving $14,000,000 annually from the sale of milk and other dairy products in Chicago. If this money were spent in Illinois, said Mr. Garner, it would be sufficient to enable the state to finance the expenditures which the Supreme court has ordered.

"I have pointed out previously," he said, "and our farmers feel keenly the fact that the state of Wisconsin, which enjoys such a large share of Chicago's business, is fighting against the best interests of Chicago. Illinois farmers would be in position to help Chicago in this situation if given a greater share of Chicago's dairy market."

SMALL CROWD ATTENDS WEST PARK PROTEST

A few hundred persons assembled before the band stand in Garfield park to hear various charges made against the present west park board by former members and politicians. The protest demonstration was called because the board has leased the two golf courses of the park system to a concessionaire in order to save $22,000.

Members of the present board, who had been challenged to attend the meeting, appeared on the speakers' platform. They were James Petrillo, James O'Keefe, Samuel Kostelny and Albert J. Flynn. Their opponents refused to let them speak.

Mr. Petrillo, who is president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, had assembled a 50 piece band for the occasion, but sent the men home because of the small crowd.

The contract with the concessionaire provides that the fees for playing golf on the Garfield and Columbus park courses shall be the same as in previous years.

BELIEVES SON KILLED PARENTS, THEN KILLED SELF

Austin, Minn., May 22.—(AP)—An elderly farm couple and their son were found shot to death near here today. One theory was that the son slew his parents and then committed suicide.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Clark, each about 70, were found dead in bed. Both had been shot in the head with a rifle, probably as they slept.

The body of the son, Ivan Clark, 45, was found on a road near the family farmhouse, eleven miles from here. A rifle lay near by. Acting Coroner E. C. Rehman, physician to the family for 20 years, said Ivan sometimes showed a violent temper. The coroner believed Ivan killed the parents, then himself. No money was taken.

MITCHELL TRIAL HEARS MORE OF FAMILY FINANCE

Interest Payments and Gifts Linked.

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—United States Attorney George Z. Medalie continued today to pile up circumstantial evidence casting doubt on the legitimacy of Charles E. Mitchell's sale of National City bank stock to his wife, at the banker's trial for income tax evasion.

Through testimony of H. M. Peterson, assistant trust officer of the City Bank Farmers' Trust company, a subsidiary of the National City company, and records of Mrs. Mitchell's "investment management" account in that institution the prosecutor showed that Mrs. Mitchell received "gifts" of more than $250,000 in checks and securities from her husband during the time she was the alleged owner of the bank stock.

Gifts and Interest.

It was shown that these "gifts" were deposited to Mrs. Mitchell's account, from which she paid Mr. Mitchell about $50,000 quarterly as interest on her indebtedness of about $4,000,000 to her husband against the purchase of the stock, on the same date that Mr. Mitchell made quarterly payment to J. P. Morgan & Co. as interest on his $6,000,000 loan, against which the bank stock, supposedly owned by Mrs. Mitchell, had been pledged as part of collateral.

Mr. Medalie brought out that Mr. Mitchell twice sent to the City Bank Farmers' Trust company for statements of Mrs. Mitchell's receipts and disbursements in connection with the bank stock, that he received memoranda stating the difference owing to her on each occasion, and that he sent "gift' checks to be deposited to her account in each time.

After the second of these memoranda, dated Aug. 11, 1932, which followed Mr. Mitchell's repurchase of the bank stock from his wife on March 24, 1932, there was one $5,000 "gift" check which partly squared the account; and thereafter no further gifts from the banker to his wife were recorded on the books of her investment account.

Time of Gifts Stressed.

Mr. Medalie had already shown that no such gifts had been deposited to Mrs. Mitchell's investment account before her purchase of the bank stock in 1929, except such gifts as matched her payments of Mr. Mitchell's insurance premiums between 1925 and 1929.

The prosecutor also brought out that on every occasion except one, when Mrs. Mitchell paid her $49,000 quarterly interest to her husband, the result was an overdraft in her account. On these occasions, he showed, the overdraft was made good by the sale of securities from the account, before Mr. Mitchell came to the rescue with a gift which made good the depletion of the account. On the occasion of the exception, Mr. Mitchell sent his check before she made her interest payment to him.

In all this testimony the prosecutor was seeking to prove that the sale of the 18,300 shares of bank stock to Mrs. Mitchell on Dec. 26, 1929, at a paper loss of $2,800,000, for the purpose of deduction from Mr. Mitchell's income tax sale, was not a bona fide sale, but was a sham according to the government, the fake nature of the sale is shown by Mr. Mitchell's "gifts" to his wife during the period she owned the stock.

The government contends these gifts were mere subterfuges to enable Mrs. Mitchell to pay her husband interest and thereby carry out a pretense that she had bought the stock from him and was carrying it on a loan for its total market value at the time of the sale.

The defense also received a setback when George E. Sweeney, who had been private secretary to Mr. Mitchell until the latter resigned as chairman of the National City bank, and subsidiaries recently, testified that Mr. Mitchell had not informed him of the sale of the bank stock to his wife until more than three months after the sale. Mr. Sweeney volunteered this admission during cross examination.

HORNER ASKS U. S. TO CREATE TWO FORESTS IN STATE

Springfield, Ill., May 22.—(AP)—The federal government today was asked by Gov. Horner to utilize 600,000 acres of southern Illinois land in creation of two national forests under its emergency conservation and employment program.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt the governor said a minimum of 5,000 men could be kept at work on reforestation, erosion, and flood projects in the proposed Shawnee and Illini national forest purchase units.

The area under consideration is in the extreme southern parts of the state, comprising portions of Jackson, Union, Alexander, Johnson, Opoe, Hardin, and Saline counties and smaller parts of Pulaski, Massac, and Galin counties.

For more than two years recommendations for the creation of the two national forests have been before R. Y. Stuart, chief forester at Washington.

Congressman Claude V. Parsons of Golconda already has arranged for the purchase of 212,000 acres.

C. F. Thompson, assistant director of the department of conservation, has conducted the state's negotiations in connection with the Roosevelt reforestation program and will make another trip to Washington soon.

O. K. INCOME TAX RAISE TO FINANCE PUBLIC WORKS

House Group Approves Higher Gasoline Levy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program will be formally presented to the house tomorrow with the income tax payers, the stockholders, and the automobile users of the country slated to foot the bill.

The measure was ordered reported to the house by the ways and means committee at a meeting last night at which details of the bill were completed.

How Money Will Be Raised.

As it begins its legislative career in the house it carries the following new taxes, decided upon by the committee to raise the required 220 million dollars for interest and amortization of the public works bond issue:

1. Increase of the normal income tax rates from 4 to 6 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income and from 8 to 10 per cent on all above $4,000. This levy is estimated to raise 46 million dollars a year.

2. Extension of the new normal income tax rates to dividends now subject only to surtaxes and taxation at the source. Estimated to yield 83 million dollars a year.

3. The addition of another ¾ of a cent to the present 1 cent a gallon federal tax on gasoline. Estimated to bring in 92 millions annually.

Good News for Taxpayer.

Into the bill, however, the committee wrote one section of good news for the taxpayer. An amendment was adopted which stipulates that the new taxes are to become inoperative at the beginning of the fiscal year next following repeal of the 18th amendment or whenever the present income of the government increases by 220 million dollars a year, whichever is sooner.

But this was the only ray of light for the taxpayer. In addition to the new taxes levied in the measure, it was decided by the committee to continue for another year all the various nuisance taxes levied in the revenue bill of 1932.

Normally, these excise taxes were to have expired July 1, 1934; by virtue of the committee's action tonight they are to be continued until July 1, 1935, unless congress refuses to approve the committee action.

Sales Levy Is Voted Down.

The new tax program was adopted by a vote of 13 to 9. The sales tax advocated by organized business and agreed to with reservations by organized labor, went out by a vote of 18 to 6. According to present indications it will stay out.

The sales plan rejected by the committee contemplated the imposition of 1½ per cent manufacturers' sales tax with food, medicine, and clothing exempted. It was calculated to yield 345 millions annually, and the remainder of the required 220 millions was to have been raised by the increase in normal income tax rates.

At a conference at the White House between President Roosevelt and Representative Robert Doughton [Dem., N. C.], ways and means chairman, it was decided that the oil industry control bill should start on its way a separate measure and not be included in the public works-industrial control bill.

Hard Knocks from Senators.

While the house committee settled the tax provisions of the public works section of the bill proponents of the bill appearing before the senate finance committee took some hard knocks from their senate inquisitors over the section of the measure setting up a new and broad government control over industry.

"It is as revolutionary as anything that happened in this country in 1776, in France in 1793, or in Russia in 1917," said Senator Thomas P. Gore [Dem., Okla.] as Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] and Donald R. Richberg of Chicago, labor lawyer, testified concerning the bill which they helped to draft.

"The purpose of the constitution is to protect society, not to destroy it," Senator Wagner replied to the attacks. Are we going to furnish the spectacle of a people asserting that while facing famine, pestilence, riot and destruction we cannot do a thing because an inflexible constitution stands in the way?"

But Senator Gore insisted it was too much power to put in the hands of any one "whether he be a Roosevelt or a Stalin." Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] declared the bill "emasculated the anti-trust laws." Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] protested that it would make the President a Mussolini. And Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] saw it as an attempt to "regiment the whole nation."

HOME MORTGAGE BILL LEAVES COMMITTEE FOR SENATE ACTION

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's plan for lifting the fear of foreclosure from thousands of small home owners through a 2 billion dollar refinancing program moved out of committee today to take its place on the crowded senate calendar.

There were indications, however, that it would be given preference and would gain early consideration.

In passing the bill on to the senate the banking committee liberalized and enlarged the scope of the measure as submitted by the administration and passed by the house.

The most important change was to include within its broad reach homes valued up to $25,000, instead of limiting the aid to homes worth $19,000 or less as recommended by President Roosevelt, or placing the limit at $15,000 as in the house bill.

The senate committee increased to 50 per cent of the value of a home the amount that might be advanced to a home owner to retire a partially paid off mortgage by which he was threatened with foreclosure.

The administration bill had no such provision and the house limited the cash advance to 30 per cent of value.

The senate committee also struck out a house limitation that not more than $10,000 could be used for refinancing a home, leaving the limitation at 80 per cent of the value of the property.

BRITISH NOBLES WARNED TO PAY UP "BAD DEBTS"

Two Dukes and an Earl Are Sued.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 22.—Nobility had uncomfortable sessions in the courts of London today when a cluster of most noble lords were sternly dealt with in suits to recover bad debts. Two dukes were warned by a judge against dodging summons and an earl was named in a fourteen day committal order which will be enforced unless he pays up a small department store account.

Judge Hargreaves of the West London County court issued the order against Lord Kinnoull, fourteenth earl, and husband of May Meyrick, daughter of London's late night club queen, Kate Meyrick. He owes about $40.

Earl Not in Court.

Lord Kinnoull was absent and was not represented by counsel. His creditor's attorney informed the court that Lord Kinnoull employs two maids, that his wife runs a fashionable florist shop and that he is interested in several night clubs.

Meanwhile, Justice Luxmoore in the chancery division was rebuking both the duke of Manchester and the duke of Leinster because they had forced their creditors to obtain an order for substituted service whereby the debtors' agents are allowed to accept summonses on judgments.

The creditor's counsel declared that the duke of Manchester had agreed to pay $80 and balance the debt in nine monthly installments of $80. The court thereupon issued such an order.

Says Duke Is Broke.

Justice Luxmoore next dealt with three judgment summonses against the duke of Leinster, whose attorney, Cyril Connor, pleaded with the court to allow the summonses to stand over. The motion was opposed by a woman creditor who had loaned him $8,000. The duke has paid her $800 on account. Connor pleaded for one more opportunity.

The lawyer said that the duke has no income. He said that through the assistance of friends the duke had paid off more than $12,000 of his debts.

On the insistence of Connor, the judge allowed the summonses to stand over until June 19.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 86; recovered, 75; stripped, 15 (from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Sunday).

POISONOUS SNAKE IN MAIL PARCEL SENT TO WIDOW

Responding to a call from an apartment at 1758 North Albany avenue, Detectives Eugene Piggott, Walter Green and Patrick Griffin of the West North avenue police, found Mrs. Ebba Brazeau, 50 years old, widowed mother of three children, standing tearfully at the door.

"Look there," she said, pointing to a candy box in response to the policemen's questions.

Policeman Griffin opened the box. He jumped back. In the box lay coiled a live snake nearly two feet long. None of the policemen admitted a very extensive knowledge of snakes, but one of them ventured an opinion that it was a copperhead, a poisonous reptile.

The snake apparently had been sent through the mails. The box was addressed to Mrs. Brazeau and on it were 9 cents in canceled stamps. The snake and case were turned over to federal postal authorities.

THE JUDGE MAKES HIM HEAR THIS TIME—AN EARFUL

Fred Morey, 23 years old, 5541 South Richmond street, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan on a charge of stealing 33 cents from Henry Scheck, 16 years old, 5628 South Mozart street, by threatening him with a knife. Morey denied the charge. He added that he had never been arrested before.

"That's wrong," spoke up Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle. "He's on probation now."

"Why did you lie to me?" demanded Judge Hartigan.

"I can't hear very well," excused Morey.

"Maybe you can hear this," concluded the judge. "Six months in the Bridewell and $5 and costs for carrying a concealed weapon, and grand jury bonds of $3,500 on the robbery charge."

GUNMEN TAKE VICTIMS' TROUSERS.

Two gunmen took $165 in a shoe repair shop at 1920 West Chicago avenue yesterday, after removing the trousers of John Repetski, the owner, and his helper, Sam Kominski, to prevent pursuit.

KELLY TO FIRE TEAMSTERS WHO ARE OUT TODAY

Mayor Deals Swift Blow to Outlaws' Strike.

Mayor Kelly swiftly accepted a challenge offered him yesterday by officials of the outlaw teamsters' unions, allegedly ruled by Murray Humphries, public enemy No. 1. Union officials called a strike which stopped city garbage and ash collections and prevented emergency repairs to the city water system.

Unless the strikers are back at work this morning, Mayor Kelly ordered, they will be fired and their jobs given to members of the legitimate teamsters' union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. This will be done by taking the strikers, who are civil service employés, before the civil service commission on charges of failure to obey orders.

Members of Outlaw Unions.

The strikers are members of locals 726 and 731 of the chauffeurs, drivers and helpers' union. Both unions are members of the outlaw group dominated by John Sheridan Sr. and tied up with the Trucking and Transport exchange, the organization known as T-N-T, through which Humphries is alleged to levy tribute on both the union employés and their employers.

The strike tied up 165 trucks—90 engaged in garbage and ash disposal and 75 more used by the water pipe extension bureau. The strike of the drivers in the water bureau is a positive menace to public safety, city officials said. In case of burst water mains or other accidents the city had no trucks yesterday available for repair duty in such emergencies.

The city had employed 30 truck drivers to go to work yesterday as a result of the mayor's putting municipal trucks into use to replace 80-odd hired trucks, the owners of some of which, at least, paid tribute to the T-N-T.

Some of the new men who already were members of locals 705 and 733 of the legitimate International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers asked city officials whether they would have to get working permits from the Sheridan union.

Avoids Embarrassing Courtney.

"I told them there was no compulsion on them to join that union," Mayor Kelly said. "We want union men, but I couldn't complicate State's Attorney Courtney's fight on racketeering by requiring them to join a union he doesn't recognize."

The outlaw union officials called the strike as a result of the mayor's action. Mayor Kelly immediately conferred with officials concerned and announced his ultimatum to the strikers.

"We will order all the strikers back to work tomorrow morning," said the mayor. "If they don't respond we'll prefer charges against them and replace them with other union drivers. The police will guard the substitutes."

FATHER OF 6 DROWNS IN LAKE.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 22.—(AP)—James McElligott, 40, father of six children, was drowned at 12:30 a. m. today when he and a cousin were swimming in a lake known as Project 12, near here. McElligott apparently was seized with cramps.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS VOLPE TO BE DEPORTED

Capone Ally Loses His Two Year Fight.

Anthony [Mops] Volpe, public enemy who was a member of the old Capone syndicate, was ordered deported yesterday by the United States Supreme court. The high court upheld the federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago and ruled that Volpe must go back to Italy.

As word of the decision reached Volpe in his home at 1500 North Menard avenue the gangster's characteristic bravado vanished. "How can they do this to me?" he sniveled. "I can't understand it. I can't understand it."

At the Federal building officials said that Volpe, who is 43 years old, would be arrested as soon as formal notice of the Supreme court order is received. He will then be held until a trainload of aliens is started on the periodical deportation trip. Volpe is now at liberty in bonds of $25,000.

Rehearing Is Only Hope.

The only remaining hope of the gangster to escape deportation lies in a petition for a rehearing in the Supreme court. This must be filed within 25 days. Volpe's attorney, John Elliott Byrne, refused to say whether the rehearing would be asked.

The Supreme court order ends a two year fight by the government to deport Volpe. The deportation warrant was based on a three day trip to Cuba, which Volpe made in 1929 in company with Daniel A. Serritella Capone lieutenant, who was city sealer under a former Republican administration; and Jack Guzik, another Capone ally.

The government charged that Volpe reëntered this country via Key West and evaded inspection with the false statement that he was a naturalized citizen. In doing this, it was charged, Volpe concealed the fact that in 1925 he had been convicted of conspiracy to counterfeit war savings stamps, a crime of moral turpitude. Under the law a crime of moral turpitude is a deportable offense.

Reëntry Held New Entry.

Volpe contended that he should not be deported because the offense in question occurred more than five years after his original entry into the country from Italy and thus would come under the operation of the statute of limitations. The Supreme court held, however, that his reëntry into the country was legally a new entry and therefore removed the offense from the operation of the statute of limitations.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson sustained the warrant. Volpe took an appeal last June to the Circuit Court of Appeals and the court held that the was guilty of nothing worse than telling a falsehood about his citizenship The ruling said that his 30 day sentence for counterfeiting war savings stamps was not ground for deportation.

His Case Is Reopened.

Assistant United States Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy gained permission to reopen the case, convinced the Court of Appeals that Volpe should be deported, and the decision was reversed. Volpe then carried his appeal to the Supreme court.

Volpe came to the United States when he was 15 years old. He was naturalized in Chicago a few years later, but the government found that he had made false statements in his application for citizenship and his papers were revoked.

ICE MAY DELAY ITALIAN FLIGHT TO CHICAGO FAIR

SHEDIAC, New Brunswick, May 22.—(AP)—Ice conditions at Reykjavik, Iceland, and Cartwright, Labrador, may force postponement of Gen. Italo Balbo's proposed mass airplane flight from Italy to the Chicago Exposition, it was said today by members of the committee preparing a reception for the airmen.

The armada was understood to be ready to start the first leg of the journey to Reykjavik June 1, but because of the ice it may be necessary to wait until some time between June 15 and 30.

The ice blockade at Cartwright is reported to be the worst in the memory of residents of northern Labrador, and in Iceland conditions are similar. The air party will include 43 Italian commissioned officers and 43 noncommissioned officers.

Pilot Dies, Cousin Burned as Plane Falls in Flames

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 22.—(AP)—Ralph Brown, pilot, was burned to death and Wilbur Brown, a cousin, was badly burned when the plane they took up at the Grant-Norfolk Aero club plunged to the ground today and burst into flames.

HOW SCIENCE AIDS FARMER SHOWN IN FAIR EXHIBITS

U. S. Rushes Displays to Completion.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Experts, in visualizing for the public mind the intricate developments of science as it has been brought to bear upon American agriculture, were busy at A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday assembling model farms, papier maché animals, and other segments which will form the completed exhibits of the federal department of agriculture.

A hundred years have seen much in the services of the government to farmers and to consumers of farm products. In this period also scientists have quickened the strides of farm production and marketing. All of these are to be shown in the exhibit being set up in the north end of the federal building on Northerly island. Other features of the agricultural department displays will also be on view in the Agricultural building, the Dairy building, and the Hall of Science.

Displays Started a Year Ago.

C. H. Cross, a government specialist in exhibiting agrarian developments, is superintending the assembly of the myriad parts and pieces of equipment which have been shipped to Chicago from the Washington shops where they have been under construction more than a year. As the Fair opens Joseph W. Hitchcock, chief of the agricultural office of exhibits, will be in charge, with a corps of demonstrators and expert aids.

Among the exhibits taking shape yesterday were miniature live stock farms, effects of rains shown mechanically, orchard heaters warding off frosts, several thousand grasshoppers testifying to pest control by airplane, etc.; modern methods of preparing and shipping foods to market, and a miniature machine which takes nitrogen gas from the air and fixes it in the soil for plant use.

Other research achievements of the last century in farm progress to be shown include control of dust explosions in grain; improved forest products; utilizing the wastes of the farm, such as cornstalks, cobs, cheap fibers and chaff; new and powerful insecticides, and the modern uses of power machinery contrasted with those 100 years ago.

Shows New Reclamation Work.

One of the exhibits will illustrate the new administration plan to reclaim waste lands by making work for unemployed, new timber for commercial use, water for power and industrial uses, forage for cattle and sheep, and recreation for idle city families.

"Put the dairy cow on a business basis," reads the sign over another exhibit unit in which improvements in breeding, feeding, and care of dairy cows and milk products are shown. Other exhibits will show the work of the weather service, the experiment stations, the extension service, food and drugs administration, the home economics bureau, and other phases of the federal agricultural activities.

Stage Coaches Arrive at A Century of Progress

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

California's exhibit in the Court of States occupies 8,000 square feet of floor space and one of the main features is a miniature reproduction of the City of San Francisco, with 40,000 tiny buildings carved from California redwood. The miniature city is 27½ feet long and 15 feet wide. It required Rudolph G. Theurkauf six years to complete the reproduction, and cost $42,000.

Lieut. Carl E. Rosenthal, U. S. N., former commander of the dirigible Los Angeles, was a visitor at the Fair grounds yesterday, the guest of Capt. Frank H. Roberts, representing the navy. Lieut. Rosenthal is a survivor of the Shenandoah disaster.

A special party for 50 children from the Central Baptist Children's home, Maywood, was given on the Enchanted island yesterday. They saw the Magic mountain and all the comic page characters, took in the rides, and had two ice cream cones apiece.

A preview of the pageant of grain handling, which will be open to the public at the Chicago Board of Trade during the Fair, was held yesterday afternoon. The display, electrically operated, shows every stage of grain handling from the farms to the terminal markets.

A battalion of infantry, 400 officers and men, and Troop A, 14th cavalry, arrived at the United States army camp on the Fair grounds from Fort Sheridan yesterday. Another battalion of infantry, Battery B, 3d field artillery, Troop B, 14th cavalry, and a machine platoon of Co. D, 2d infantry, will arrive today. The troops will remain throughout the Fair, living regular army life in model camps, and putting on formal guard mounts and parades for the visitors.

More than 1,000 specimens of pearls still in the oyster and clam shells in which they were formed were brought to the Exposition yesterday by A. Schoor, the collector, for an exhibit to be called the Fountain of Pearls. The collection is valued at $500,000, and represents all the pearl producing waters of the world. There are bronze, pink, purple, black, and opalescent pearls, clusters, natural cigarette holders and a pearl parrot found in Persia which fits in a shell found in India.

Fifty men, women and children from a Winnebago Indian tribe in Wisconsin, arrived at the Fair grounds yesterday and set up their wigwams in the Indian village at 31st street. More than 200 American Indians are to arrive before the Fair opens, including a tribe of Navajos from Arizona, Hopis from New Mexico, and Sioux from South Dakota.

Capt. Joseph Palczynski of the Chicago police department yesterday was made official World's Fair Greeter. He says he can speak twelve Slavic languages and some German.

A stage coach used in the California gold rush days, the Louis McLane, named for the president of the Wells-Fargo Express company, was rolled onto the Fair Grounds yesterday as part of that company's exhibit. The old coach was shipped around the "Horn" in the Carrier Pigeon, a clipper ship which was wrecked off the California coast. It was pulled out of the hold and put into service between Sacramento and Salt Lake City, and is believed to have been in some of the highway robberies in the days before the railways reached the west.

ITALIAN LINER SETS RECORD ON VOYAGE TO U. S.

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The Conte Di Savoia of the Italian line broke all trans-Atlantic records for speed between the Mediterannean and New York when she arrived here today 5 days and 20 hours out of Genoa—almost one full day faster than she or the Rex of the same line had made the trip before.

She came near equaling the record of average speed of the fastest liners in the North Atlantic service. Her average from Gibraltar to Ambrose light was 27.63 knots and from Genoa to Ambrose it was 27.57 knots.

The Bremen of the North German Lloyd line has a sustained speed record of 27.91 knots.

When the ship passed Ambrose it was credited with 6 days 3 hours crossing time, including stops at Villefranche and Gibraltar; 5 days 20 hours out of Genoa, and 4 day, 19 hours out of Gibraltar. Its best time was 28.25 knots for 22 hours, from noon yesterday to 10 a. m., today. Its best run was 695 miles from Saturday noon to Sunday noon. A part of the time it bucked headwinds and a light fog off Ambrose light slowed it up today.

SO. PARK BOARD ACTS TO HELP FAIR TRAFFIC

The south park board held a special meeting yesterday to pass measures to aid transportation at the World's Fair. Mayor Kelly, who retains his post as president of the board, and the other members awarded a contract for the extension of 55th street to connect with the outer drive.

Half hour parking was established by the board in Michigan avenue from 55th street to 12th street. From 12th street to Randolph street no parking will be allowed.

A permit to hold an outdoor art fair at the Congress street plaza in Grant park was granted to Mrs. Frank Logan. The board also set 60 cents as the basic rate of pay for caddies for an 18 holes on the park system's golf courses.

STEVENSES WIN POINT IN FIGHT OVER CHARGES

Judge Philip L. Sullivan in the Criminal court yesterday directed the state to furnish a more complete bill of particulars to counsel for Ernest J. Stevens and his father, James W. Stevens, 79 years old. The Stevenses are under indictment for the alleged embezzlement of $1,000,000 from the Illinois Life Insurance company.

Defense counsel, headed by Jay Fred Reeve, argued that the bill provided by the state was not adequate and did not present specific charges. Judge Sullivan ordered the new bill and continued the hearing until May 29.

JUDGE DEMANDS POLICE COURTESY FOR MOTORISTS

Aroused by Girl's Story of Stay in Cell.

The story of an 18 year old girl driver who, after an automobile accident, was kept in a police cell for more than 24 hours without being given an opportunity to provide bond aroused Judge Thomas A. Green in the Traffic court yesterday. As a result the judge started a campaign to enforce police courtesy for motorist visitors to A Century of Progress Exposition.

"I'm not going to permit citizens who have not violated the law to be treated like common criminals," said Judge Green. "This haphazard disregard of personal rights must cease.

Urges Courtesy for Visitors.

"With the coming of the World's Fair the police must be made to understand that the abuse of motorists who have been involved in accidents must stop. Thousands of motorists will be among the visitors to the Exposition and it is now time that explicit instructions be given to policemen to treat these people with courtesy. If the instructions are not enforced I am going to hold some policemen in contempt of court."

These statements were made to Capt. Frank Matchett of the West North avenue police and to Supervising Police Captain Ira J. McDowell. Capt. McDowell appeared before Judge Green to represent Police Commissioner Allman. The commissioner and Capt. Matchett had been summoned to court to explain why Miss Lillian Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street, was kept in a police cell from 6 p. m. Friday until nearly midnight Saturday before charges of reckless driving were made against her.

Girl's Story to Judge.

Miss Zagel told Judge Green that she was driving in Rockwell street less than 600 feet from her home last Friday afternoon when Hyman Muslin, 4 years old, 2621 Evergreen avenue, ran into the street in front of her car. The child was knocked off his feet. Miss Zagel said she stopped her automobile and helped carry the boy to his home.

She remained at the home for nearly an hour until the boy was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he now is recovering, she said. Then she went to her own home. At 6 o'clock, she testified, two policemen appeared and took her to the West North avenue station. That evening she was transferred to the women's quarters at the West Chicago avenue police station and held there until late Saturday night, she said.

Policemen Clear Girl.

Policemen who testified said there was no evidence that Miss Zagel had been reckless. The assertions of witnesses, they said, tended to show that the parents of the child had been negligent in allowing him to play in the street.

Angered, Judge Green halted the hearing and called for Commissioner Allman. When Capt. McDowell arrived an hour later Judge Green informed him that he would dismiss the charges against Miss Zagel for want of prosecution. Then he demanded that a general courtesy order be sent out by the commissioner. Capt. McDowell promised that it would be sent.

$490 F. O. B. FACTORY, DETROIT

THIS AMAZING DISCOVERY GIVES 30,000 MILES AND MORE WITHOUT VALVE GRINDING

INVENTION SAVES GAS

Valve seats are rings of chromium alloy that fit into the engine block. The valves then pound down on these tremendously hard, tough rings instead of on the engine block metal. Valves fit better. Compression is improved. Gas and oil are saved. Valve grinding is postponed for 30—40—50 thousand miles.

YES! . . Dodge has built a new line of 1½-Ton trucks! Unquestionably the most impressive looking trucks that have ever rolled down any highway. For brute strength, sheer power and stamina, these new Dodge trucks have never been equaled . . . not even by Dodge. Remember, of all Dodge Trucks built during the past 15 years, over 63% are in service today. These new low-priced Dodge trucks have dozens of "high-priced truck" features. Hydraulic Brakes, always in adjustment, keep your truck under positive control. Extra deep frames are extra strong. Powerful engines handle the job efficiently. Valve Seat Inserts save gas and postpone valve grinding for 30,000 miles and more. Don't make a deal on any truck 'til you see and test the new Dodge.

FIRST OF QUEEN'S COURT MEMBERS HERE TOMORROW

Hotels Prepare for Charm Contest Winners.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

All of Chicago is poised for the start of A Century of Progress program on Saturday. But at seven of the finer hotels of the city the hurry and scurry has already started, heralding the arrival here tomorrow of the first of fifty-one girls comprising the court of honor for the sovereign of the Fair, winners in the competition sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and fifteen affiliated papers. None of the fifty-one will lack for attention at the several hotels.

The Palmer House has been named chief headquarters for the activities of the court. One group of eight girls has been assigned permanently there, together with the counselor in charge of this group. The remaining girls will be divided between the Drake, Stevens, Allerton, Sherman, Chicago Beach and Congress hotels.

Party at Palmer House.

The historic Palmer house, like the other establishments chosen to house individual groups, will be the scene of one of the most colorful entertainments of the schedule awaiting the court of honor. Its recently redecorated Empire room, rendezvous of the smart element of Chicago society, will be the scene of a dinner party on Sunday night for the Queen, her maids of honor and all her ladies-in-waiting, with the seven counselors. Mrs. Gertrude Loys Hoffman, director of women's activities, will officiate as hostess.

The setting is one to delight the cosmopolite as well as this group of excited girls. But once the orchestra conductor, Richard Cole, strikes up his band, Her Majesty and her court won't have eyes for anything but the entertainment.

Gay Entertainment Ahead.

They'll see Veloz and Yolanda perform the tango as it is rarely danced —with movements as smooth as rippling water and light as down. They will watch the military precision of the Merriel Abbott dancers, proving that practice makes perfect. And both before and after, they'll listen to the music of Richard Cole and his boys, to make the night complete.

At the Chicago Beach hotel on the south side, a special block of rooms fronting the lake has been reserved for another group of the girls and their counselor. Thursday evening the hotel will be the scene of the first formal dinner for the party, for which reservations already are being booked. Members of the Blackfriars of the University of Chicago will perform and there will be an orchestra and other entertainment numbers.

Judging at Hotel Sherman.

Great excitement naturally accrues to the Hotel Sherman's part in their program, since the portentous judging of the candidates will take place Friday afternoon in the Bal Tabarin, and the coronation dinner, at which the identity of the winners will be announced by President Rufus Dawes of A Century of Progress, will be staged that night in the grand ballroom.

For this event, Buddy Rogers, film star and orchestra conductor, is coming from Hollywood to swing the baton, and Ben Bernie, who will alternate with Buddy this season at the College Inn and the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino on the Fair grounds, will officiate at the microphone as master of ceremonies. Earl Benedict is in charge of the reservations for the dinner.

Mayor Kelly has accepted an invitation to attend the coronation dinner. Other distinguished guests will include the eight judges intrusted with the selection of the Queen and the two maids of honor—Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mrs. Paulin Palmer, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Howard Ellis, John T. McCutcheon, and Wallace Kirk.

Dawes to Proclaim Queen.

At 10:30 o'clock President Dawes will make the official announcement of the names of the winners over a nation-wide NBC-WJZ network. Niles Trammell, vice president of the National Broadcasting company in Chicago, arranged the radio program.

The Congress hotel, which also will be host to a group of seven girls and a counselor, will greet the entire court in the Joseph Urban room for dinner on Saturday, following the official opening of the Fair. Vincent Lopez will be there in person, directing the orchestra, to the delight of the fifty-one girls and the probable discouragement of their escorts, who will have to vie for their partners' attention. A trip to the Fair is scheduled after dinner, then the party will return to finish the evening in the Urban room.

Other groups of the girls have been assigned to the Drake hotel, the Allerton, and the Stevens. Mayor Kelly has also promised to be the guest of honor on Tuesday evening when the court is dined at the Stevens, where an orchestra will play during the dinner hour. The Drake is concluding preparations today for a spectacular party which will be announced later.

While the first of the court members will arrive tomorrow evening, the majority will stream into the city on Thursday. One of their first engagements will be in the salons of various members of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association, who have volunteered their services.

RUSH OF BUYING OPENS "LET'S GO, CHICAGO!" WEEK

Shoppers Crowd Stores All Over City.

The roar of cannon on the lake front and the tramp of customers' feet down the aisles of a thousand stores throughout the city marked the opening yesterday of "Let's Go, Chicago!" week.

Reports from State street merchants and from business and civic organizations in the outlying shopping districts of the city showed that the citizens of Chicago had adopted with the "I Will" spirit, Mayor Kelly's watchword for the week, which is:

Customers Crowd Stores.

While comparative figures on their sales will not be available until today, merchants along State street reported that the week opened yesterday with a rush of customers. The head of one great store, who said that his counters were lined with customers, pointed out that prices already have started to rise in wholesale merchandise lines.

"Our shoe buyer went east last week with instructions to spend $25,000," he said. "He returned without making a purchase, unable to convince himself that the rise of manufacturers' prices has not been so swift that there is bound to be a slight reduction soon. Buyers in a dozen of our other departments all make the same reports of rising prices in their merchandise fields.

Prices Bound to Be Higher.

"These reports will not affect the prices of the stocks we have on hand. We are content to take our normal profit on those. But when we have to fill our shelves with new merchandise prices are bound to be higher.

"I was glad that Mayor Kelly, in announcing 'Let's Go, Chicago!' week, made it plain that it was an affair for the whole city and not just the downtown merchants. For if the outlying merchants can increase their sales, so can we increase ours."

An executive of another State street store reported that there had been unusual crowds in the store all day long, and, furthermore, that the majority of the customers were making substantial purchases.

From a West Side Store.

From the head of a west side department store came the report:

Said another west side business leader:

"I've had good news all along the line today. The most optimistic returns have come from machine shops, letter jobbers, and hardware stores."

"The 'Let's Go' week was an inspiration," said the president of a north side business association. "I notice that people in our district are eager—on edge—for the Exposition to open. There has been unusual activity in our district all day, and I believe that a survey would show that a new high had been reached in business for the year."

Activity on South Side.

A business men's association on the southwest side, which spent $1,000 for street decorations to usher in the week, reported through its secretary that practically every merchant in the district had inaugurated special low prices to boom sales during the celebration. Other south side organizations announced that their members are getting up special decorations and arranging sales to attract customers.

Mayor Kelly fired the first gun of the salute in Grant park which ushered in the celebration yesterday. At 9 a. m. factory whistles throughout the city screamed a one minute salute to "Let's go, Chicago."

Today six planes of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, under Maj. Merrill D. Mann, will perform over the loop between noon and 1 o'clock. Later they will fly over the outlying business districts, going as far as Evanston, Oak Park, and South Chicago.

OLD GUTENBERG BIBLE PRINTING PRESS ARRIVES

A reproduction of the printing press invented by Johann Gutenberg [1398-1468], together with the exhibit of the Gutenberg museum of Mainz, Germany, arrived yesterday and was unpacked in the General Exhibits building of the World's Fair. By Thursday the arrangement of this exhibit is to be completed, under the direction of Dr. Aloys Ruppel, who brought it from Germany.

During the Fair a type page of the famous Gutenberg Bible will be on exhibition and a copy of a page of this Bible will be struck off on the Gutenberg press each day.

Gutenberg's press is credited with contributing more to the enlightenment of the world than any other invention of man. Prior to his day printing was done only by the tedious method of carving the characters of an entire page on wood or stone.

Gutenberg's original press is not in existence. It probably was destroyed, historians say, in the sack of Mainz in 1462. Dr. Ruppel said the press brought over from the Gutenberg museum, reproduced about 10 years ago, is the only one of its kind in existence. It is a crude affair, consisting of two uprights and two cross beams, with a screw that presses the type upon the flat bed.

Two Accused of Cashing Stolen City Pay Checks

William Coleman, 40 years old, 420 West 69th street, and his nephew, Stanley Morrison, 24, of 8133 South Winchester avenue, were arrested yesterday by Sergt. Frank Freemuth on charges of cashing stolen city hall pay checks.

NEW YORK VOTES TODAY ON REPEAL OF U. S. DRY LAW

Decisive Margin Asked to "Aid" Administration.

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The voters of New York state will register tomorrow their stand on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The polls in the city will be open from noon to 10 p. m. for the balloting for 150 delegates to a state convention which will meet on June 27 to fulfill the voters' mandate.

Speaking for the Roosevelt administration, as well as the Democratic party of the state and nation, Postmaster General James A. Farley emphasized the moral effect an overwhelming majority for repeal would have in states where wet sentiment is less strong. He also asserted that a victory for repeal would aid in carrying out the reconstructic program of the Roosevelt administration.

Policy of Administration.

"Repeal is the policy of the President of the United States and the national administration," the postmaster general said. "It is the policy of the governor of New York state and the state administration. It is the policy of the great Democratic party. I hope that all Democrats in our commonwealth will lend their support to the movement by casting their votes tomorrow in favor of repeal."

Mr. Farley stressed the economic benefits that follow repeal, which he declared would bring more than one billion additional revenue into the federal treasury and result in a saving of at least 300 million annually in state and federal taxes to taxpayers in this state. He also urged repeal as a temperance measure.

"Nation Watches Us."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national head of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, also made an appeal for wet votes. She pleaded for a twenty to one vote in favor of the repeal candidates.

"Make no mistake; the American people are looking to see what New York does tomorrow," she declared.

Predictions in political circles were of a substantial vote throughout the state and a sweeping victory for the wet candidates. Vincent Dailey, chief lieutenant of Mr. Farley, predicted the repeal candidates would win by six to one.

2 DEAD, 4 ILL OF MYSTERIOUS RIVER MALADY

Philip Hemsley, 3 years old, of Millington, 15 miles southwest of Aurora, died yesterday in the Woodward Memorial hospital at Sandwich of a strange malady which has caused the death of one of his brothers and afflicted four other members of the family.

The sickness was contracted on a small island in the Fox river on which the family, almost destitute, had been living. Officials said overflowing waters of the river might have contaminated the water supply, thus causing the malady.

The family became ill on Friday. Frederick, 5 years old, died that day. June, 6 years old; Robert, 2, and Philip were taken to the hospital, where Philip died yesterday. June and Robert may die also, physicians said. The parents, Homer and Ruth Hemsley, are in private homes, seriously ill. Hemsley, 35 years old, was formerly a telegraph operator. He gave up that work for a farm. Losing his farm recently, he took his family to live on the island.

U. S. DRY AGENTS SEIZE 3.2 BEER IN SAN ANTONIO

Sale Illegal in Texas, but It's Being Sold.

San Antonio, Tex., May 22.—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents seized more than 2,000 bottles of 3.2 beer in Sunday night raids here.

The raids against establishments selling a brew legalized by the federal government were declared by United States Attorney John D. Hartman to have been made under provisions of the new beer bill protecting dry states.

Texas has not legalized the new beverage, but it has been sold openly here and in several other cities of the state.

No one was arrested, but persons in charge of establishments visited were ordered to report today to the office of Capt. Verne Miller, deputy prohibition administrator who led the raids.

Washington Calls for Report.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—John S. Hurley, assistant prohibition director, today asked a report from the deputy administration at San Antonio on the beer situation there.

Reports have reached the bureau that federal prohibition agents have raided beer dispensaries in the Texas city operating under federal permits.

The internal revenue bureau's interpretation of the statute is that the bureau is required to sell revenue stamps and permits, regardless of the state laws when application is made.

On the other hand, the law directs that the enforcement officers prohibit shipment of beer into states that are dry by their own option.

While the revenue bureau sells permits, it requires that these be posted prominently in the dispensary, and it was said today at the bureau that this was deemed an aid to enforcement, as it would show places selling beer in dry states.

Police Linguists to Help Foreign Visitors at Fair

Linguists on the police force will be used to aid foreign visitors at the World's Fair. Police Commissioner Allman last night notified district commanders to send him the names of their men who speak two or more languages. These men will be detailed at railroad stations and other points, according to plans.

Wed in Waukegan

Benjamin L. Behr Jr. of Lake Forest, former Oxford student, and Miss Mae June Riley, of 999 Lake Shore drive, were married early yesterday by Justice of the Peace Michael J. Haney in Waukegan.

It was the second marriage attempt the couple had made in the last two months. The first effort, made in Crown Point on March 26, was halted by intervention of Behr's sister, Edith; his uncle, Otto W. Lehmann, 209 Lake Shore drive; Capt. James U. Sammis of Lincoln park police, and Crown Point authorities. Miss Behr suspected that her brother had started for Crown Point, and notified her uncle, who notified Capt. Sammis, who in turn notified the Crown Point authorities that young Behr was not yet 21 years old.

Early yesterday young Behr, who has now celebrated his 21st birthday, Miss Riley, Virginia Chapman and A. S. Kirkeby roused County Clerk Lew Hendee of Lake county and got a marriage license. Clerk Hendee said that the telephoned Mr. Lehmann and was told that young Behr is of age.

Miss Riley is 18 years old, a graduate of the Starrett school, and the daughter of Mrs. H. L. Baumgardner of 999 Lake Shore drive, wife of a retired contractor. At the Behr home it was said that Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Behr Sr. are out of town.

Son of Judge Borrelli Weds Sister of Grid Pal

Bruce J. Borrelli, son of Judge Francis Borrelli, was married yesterday to Miss Helen Stafford, 7520 Coles avenue, a sister of Edward Stafford, a former football teammate with whom young Borrelli played for seven years at Mount Carmel High school and later at De Paul university. The ceremony was performed at high mass by the Rev. F. X. Breen at Holy Family church.

DRY CHIEF SAYS BEER WIPED OUT 50,000 'SPEAKS'

San Francisco, Cal., May 22.—[Special.]—Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, national director of prohibition, declared here tonight that the advent of legal 3.2 beer had driven 50,000 speakeasies out of business. The figure, he said, was based on investigations by his department.

Of the blighted speakeasies, he added, 20,000 were in Chicago and New York. Many of the owners, he said, had become law abiding vendors of legal brew.

Maj. Dalrymple asserted that the new deal in prohibition had changed the attitude of the public toward his department.

"Under bone dry laws, it seemed that we didn't have a friend," he averred. "Now we have thousands. Citizens who did not sympathize with the prohibition laws, or took little interest in enforcement, now want the bootleggers smashed because they are cheating the government of its just revenues."

Another point covered by the dry director in a long interview was the outlook for wine sales. He was prepared, he said, to go before congress and request passage of a law that would prevent profiteering in vinous liquors. Druggists, he said, should not be allowed to purchase their supplies at 75 to 95 cents a gallon and retail it for $5 to $7. He has prepared a regulation that would permit bonded wineries to sell to individuals by the case, provided a licensed apothecary is present when the deal is made.

EVANSTON CITY COUNCIL HEARS DEBATE ON BEER

Wet and dry groups in Evanston debated before the Evanston city council last night on whether 3.2 per cent beer shall be prohibited or permitted in their city. The council now has pending before it two ordinances, one banning and one licensing the brew, but no final action on them will be taken for a week or two.

The drys were led by William A. Dyche, business manager of Northwestern university, and Miss Ada Townsend, 1719 Hinman avenue. Attorney Douglas Murray, organizer of the Evanston Beverage Dealers' association, spoke for the beer proponents.

Mr. Dyche and Miss Townsend warned that if beer were permitted, it might mean the stepping stone to saloons. Mr. Dyche read a TRIBUNE editorial dated July 11, 1917, condemning the evils of the old saloon. Attorney Murray asserted that merchants in Evanston wished to sell beer. He said that 3.2 brew is nonintoxicating as defined by congress. A prohibition against such a beverage would be illegal, he declared. More than 300 persons heard the debate. There were no demonstrations.

Vancouver, Wash., May 22.—(AP)—About 450 men, most of them from Illinois, reached Vancouver barracks on two trains today eager to go to work in the forests of the Pacific northwest as members of the civilian conservation corps. Many of the recruits were from Chicago. All came direct from Fort Sheridan, Ill., where they had spent three weeks training and conditioning.

JAPANESE PUSH AHEAD; 10 MILES OUT OF PEIPING

Expect to Occupy City Within Two Days.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 22.—Reports from Tientsin today said that the invading Japanese troops have arrived at Niulanshan, ten miles north of Peiping, and that Japanese cavalry has reached the edge of the walled city of Tungchow, 13 miles east of Peiping.

The Japanese force advancing on Tientsin has occupied Tangku, 80 miles to the east. It is expected the Japanese will occupy Tientsin and Peiping within the next two or three days. It is doubtful whether there will be any actual fighting, since the Chinese apparently are withdrawing upon orders of Gen. Ho Ying-chin and Gen. Huang Fu.

Ready to Occupy Both Cities.

The situation is confused due to the inability of the Nanking commanders to control their subordinates, some of whom are determined to resist the Japanese and not heed a truce arrangement. The Japanese have announced their determination to occupy both cities as well as Kalgan at once unless the Chinese clarify their attitude.

The tension at Tientsin was heightened tonight when Gen. Nakamura, Japanese garrison commander, made a formal demand of the Chinese railway administration for a special train to carry 600 Japanese soldiers from Tientsin to Peiping.

The general intimated that if the demand for a train was refused Japanese troops would seize one. Thus far, no Chinese official has taken the responsibility for permitting the use of a train. The dispatch of Japanese soldiers would be exceedingly hazardous. It would mean marching outside the concessions to the railway station through Chinese territory and then an 88 mile journey through towns where the are collectively about 100,000 Chinese troops.

Crisis in South China.

Meanwhile the situation in South China also has reached a critical stage. It was precipitated by a clash between the two vanguard regiments of the 19th Route army and Nonanese troops at the town of Chenchow in southern Hunan province near the border of Kwangtung.

The 19th Route army defended Shanghai early last year against the Japanese invasion and later was transferred to Fukien province where its commander, Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, is military governor.

Recently the 19th Route army in cooperation with Cantonese and Kwangsi forces organized the so-called "Anti-Japanese National Salvation army." It was composed of the 4th Independent Kwangtung division, the 24th Kwangsi division, and two brigades of the 19th army which led a march northward from Kwangtung toward the railhead at Chenchow leading to Hankow.

According to report from Hongkong, a clash resulted when Hunanese province troops fired, resulting in casualties on both sides. The 19th Route troops withdrew to the town of Kanchow awaiting reinforcements. Gen. Tsai declared his intention of forcing his way through Hunan despite opposition.

Gen. Ho Chien, commander of the Hunanese troops, with headquarters at Changsha, ordered his subordinates to cease firing and telegraphed an apology to Canton, capital of Kwangtung and of South China.

CHICAGO VISITOR

Harry Gordon Selfridge Jr., son of the London merchant who was once a member of Marshall Field & Co., came to Chicago, the city of his birth, yesterday as a Century of Progress visitor and was filled with optimism about the uptrend in business the world over. He went to the World's Fair grounds on a tour of inspection and praised the accomplishments of the sponsors of the exhibition.

"I can see the vast difference in the attitude of the people from what it was a year ago," he said. "Then people were downcast and fearful, while today I find that Chicago is carrying on in masterful style and folks are happy and hopeful for the future."

Conditions are improving in England, Mr. Selfridge said. The British in general believe the Roosevelt administration here is bound to be successful and they are with him in his disarmament plans. And, he added, they hope to make trade agreements with this country that will be helpful to both nations.

Foreclose on Friars' Club in N. Y. for $261,000 Debt

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The six story clubhouse occupied by the Friars' club at 106 to 110 West Forty-eighth street was sold at foreclosure today to the Bank for Savings in the city of New York as plaintiff for $200,000. The foreclosure action was brought by the bank against the National Association of the Friars and others, defendants, to satisfy a judgment of $261,456 and interest with taxes and other liens totaling about $16,000.

BACHELOR TAKES WITNESS STAND FOR MRS. JELKE

Newport, R. I., May 22.—[Special.]—The man with whom witnesses have said they saw Mrs. F. Frazier Jelke leave a New York apartment house early on the morning of last Aug. 3 took the stand in Mrs. Jelke's divorce trial here today to refute charges growing out of the incident brought by the southern society woman's broker husband in his suit heard earlier.

Witnesses for Jelke had testified that Mrs. Jelke's escort on the morning in question was a "tall man with a dark mustache," but Robert E. White, bachelor broker who revealed himself as Mrs. Jelke's companion at the time, has blonde hair and a light mustache.

Denies Spending Night Together.

As a large courtroom audience waited for the 27 year old wife to take the stand and "tell all" as she has indicated she would, White flatly denied that she had ever spent a night in his apartment. Mrs. Jelke, White said, had met him in the lobby of his apartment house for an automobile drive, following a party with friends the night before.

White gave an account of the incident as follows:

"I met Mrs. Jelke in June, 1932, at my brother's home in Virginia. The afternoon of Aug. 2, she came to my apartment with Timmy Dobbins, an instructor at the Foxcroft school, which Mrs. Jelke used to attend.

"We had cocktails from 5 to 7 p. m. and went down to Greenwich Village for dinner.

Then we danced for a while at the Waldorf-Astoria roof and at 11:30 I left Mrs. Jelke at the Savoy-Plaza, where she lives.

"We had an engagement to go to Douglaston, L. I., the next morning. It was raining and Mrs. Jelke drove over from her hotel to join me at my place. We started out to Long Island in my car."

Never Kissed Her, He Says.

Under cross-examination White declared he had never kissed Mrs. Jelke, and the only time he put his arm around her was when they were dancing. Insisting that there was never anything "improper or illegal" between them, the witness told Charles P. Sisson of Jelke's counsel that their friendship was a purely platonic one between "two sympathetic" people. He found Mrs. Jelke "very chummy and delightful," he said.

Emil Anderson, a chauffeur who drove the Jelkes on a tour of Europe in the spring of 1931, told of an acquaintance the broker made with the countess of Drogheda while he was in London, and of his buying clothes for her.

U. S. RACKET WAR ON; 10 QUIZZED BY GRAND JURY

Drive on Hoodlums Starts with Dye Trade.

The government's drive to break up racketeering in Chicago was begun yesterday as ten witnesses appeared before the federal grand jury.

Federal indictments charging income tax violations against six of the major labor hoodlums in Chicago are said to be the goal of investigation. Murray Humphries, successor to Al Capone, William [Three Fingered Jack] White, William [Klondike] O'Donnell, Marcus [Studdy] Looney, Sam Hunt, and Gus Winkler are said to be the targets of the government offensive.

Start with Dye Industry.

That the first phase of the inquiry was directed at the racketeers preying on the cleaning and dyeing industry was indicated as B. M. Squires, former head of the Cleaning and Dyeing institute, went into the grand jury room. Dr. Squires is said to have been forced out of the cleaning and dyeing industry by factions controlled by gangsters.

Among the other witnesses during the day were J. P. Gorman, field secretary of the Cleaners and Dyers institute; A. Borris, a business agent of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union; L. W. Crowley of the Cleaners and Dyers institute; George Bendel, a business agent of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union; Benjamin Albert, alias Abrams, a business agent of the Cleaners, Dyers, and Pressers' union; and Fred Salzman, a retail cleaner.

Drive Follows Long Inquiry.

The government drive was begun after a six weeks' investigation conducted by the same agents who broke up the old Capone gang by sending Al and Ralph Capone, Frank Nitti, Sam and Jack Guzik, Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake to prison for income tax fraud. The present investigation is said to have revealed that Humphries has taken $500,000 a year from labor and trade associations.

The investigation is said to have been concerned largely with the activities of the Trucking and Transport exchange, 188 West Washington street, which is alleged to levy on employés and unions alike.

U. S. OFFERS TO JOIN EUROPEAN SECURITY PACT

proximately to the level established by the peace treaties; that is, to bring armaments as soon as possible through successive stages down to the basis of a domestic police force," he continued.

"In particular, as emphasized by President Roosevelt, we are prepared to join other nations in abolishing weapons of an aggressive character, which are not only the most costly to construct and maintain, but at present are those most likely to lead to a breach of the peace.

"To cut the power of offense and remove the threat of surprise attack would do more than anything else to lessen the danger of a war."

As a result of Mr. Davis' speech, the disarmament conference took on a distinctly more optimistic aspect. Making good on Chancellor Hitler's promise, Germany virtually agreed to transform the reichswehr into a standardized conscript army, thus removing one of the chief obstacles in the way of a disarmament convention.

Plan "Assistance Pact."

Moreover, it was learned from American sources, Germany is disposed to join a European pact of mutual assistance by which any country, if the victim of aggression, could count upon the help of other signatories.

It was learned that the United States will announce its readiness to consult the nations in the event of a threat to peace by issuing a unilateral declaration. The rest of the world would consider this sufficient.

Thus the United States has given the spur to disarmament, but has frankly warned the world that participation in the machinery of peace will be dependent at least in large measure on achievement of substantial reduction in armaments.

EUROPE IS PLEASED

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 22. — Norman H. Davis' statement at Geneva, in which he stated America's position on disarmament, was hailed with delight here, tempered with a cautious desire to examine the text closely before saying too much. British authorities are not likely to commit themselves before Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon returns from Geneva and explains in detail to the cabinet exactly what the Davis speech means. On the face of it, one British statesman is reported to have said today,

"America is in it with both feet and we can now go ahead with the certainty that no European power will dare reject the British disarmament plan."

The feeling here is that Davis has done much to force both France and Germany to a reasonable frame of mind and that the concessions he has made are well worth while. It is also felt that the outlook is now much brighter for the success of the economic conference, which is only three weeks off. Had the disarmament conference broken down many Europeans were convinced the meeting of the economic conference would be futile.

Germany Is Pleased.

BERLIN, May 23.—[Tuesday].—(AP)—Norman Davis' disarmament speech was published prominently in German newspapers today and was warmly praised in Chancellor Hitler's mouthpiece, Voelkischer Beobachter.

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, head of the Nazi party's foreign division, and editor of the Voelkischer Beobachter, said Mr. Davis "opened the eyes of the world to the essentials of Germany's standpoint, namely, that disarmament is the way to peace, is obligatory to all, that any power refusing to comply is a treaty breaker, and that Germany's right to equality is definitely established. The powers must now make up their minds either for reconstruction of peace or chaos."

The newspaper said political circles in Berlin emphasized the necessity of Germany sticking to her purpose and not allowing herself to be confused by any counter maneuvers designed under "some specious pretext" to shelve indefinitely the work of making equality in armaments effective. Other papers commented similarly.

Paris Says It's Satisfied.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 22.—Official quarters here received the contents of Norman Davis' disarmament statement with profound satisfaction. It had been expected, because Mr. Davis outlined its contents to the French government the day after President Roosevelt's disarmament message to offset the intense disappointment at the lack of security guarantees in the President's message.

The news arrived in Paris too late for comment by the evening papers, but it is expected that the usual division of opinion will occur, with the opposition press attacking the United States for not committing itself further on the question of military and economic sanctions, while pro-government and moderate newspapers will hail what officials admit is one of the most important documents since the world war.

"Ambassador Davis' splendid exposition of the American thesis on disarmament, consultation and security conforms exactly with my conversations with President Roosevelt in Washington," former Premier Herriot said. "No one can rejoice more than I over this matter. I never doubted after my interview with President Roosevelt that America would speak as she did today. I consider that the proposals offered at Geneva constitute a step forward which marks a new phase in the development of world security and world peace."

Rome Hails Speech.

ROME, May 22.—(AP)—Semi-official circles expressed deep satisfaction with the declaration by Norman Davis of the policy the United States will pursue to aid in preserving peace. They welcomed his declaration that America would enter into consultation with European nations in event of a war threat. Italy already has expressed a favorable reaction to the American indorsement of the MacDonald disarmament plan.

TEXT OF AMERICAN ENVOY'S SPEECH ON SECURITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—The state department today made public the text of the speech by Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, before the disarmament conference at Geneva. The speech was as follows:

"The initiative taken by the President of the United States in communicating directly with the heads of the states participating in the economic and disarmament conferences was prompted by the pressing need for concerted and decisive action to solve the interrelated problems with which these two conferences must deal.

"The disarmament conference has reached the moment for definite decisions. We must face the issue; we must now determine whether the nations of the world propose to go forward with progressive disarmament or revert to the pre-war system of unrestrained competition in armaments with all the continuance of the international suspicion and fear which this will involve.

Arms an International Affair.

"At the end of the world war the peoples of all states and their leaders resolved that the suicidal armament policy of the preceding decades must be changed.

"They were convinced that this policy had been one of the contributing factors which brought about the war. Hence a new policy regarding armaments was incorporated as a fundamental part of the peace settlement.

"This policy, adopted to prevent a future race in armaments, was based on the principle that armaments are a matter of general concern and that the time had passed when each state should be the sole judge of its armaments.

"To carry out this conception, provision was made for the disarmament of the defeated powers and at the same time a decision was taken, unprecedented in history, whereby the victorious states voluntarily assumed an obligation to reduce their own armaments.

Germany and Allies Disarmed.

"As a first step the peace treaties reduced the armaments of Germany and her allies with a view to rendering impossible any aggression on their part. In fact, the theory behind these treaties was that the military forces of the disarmed powers should be fixed on the basis of the maintenance of internal order and the necessary policing of frontiers, but no more.

"The whole purpose of these provisions was to guarantee that the armies of Germany and her former allies should thenceforth stay at home.

"It would neither have been just nor wise, nor was it intended, that the central powers should be subject for all time to a special treatment in armaments. There is and has been a corresponding duty on the part of the other powers, parties to peace treaties, that by successive stages they too, would bring their armaments down to a level strictly determined by the needs of self-defense.

Warns of Another War.

"While the United States is not bound by the provisions or the implications of those treaties, I have no hesitancy in saying that it is the will of our people, interpreted by President Roosevelt, to join with the other powers in disarming down to that level, and we are prepared to exert our influence to bring this about, not by theoretical statements of good intentions, but by decisive and progressive reduction of armaments through international agreement.

"The present situation admits of no further delay. The states of the world must either go forward in good faith to carry out in all its implications the disarmament policy which they adopted in 1919, or we must recognize frankly that this policy has been abandoned and reconcile ourselves to reverting to a race in competitive armament.

"If the latter course is taken the consequences are inevitable. Sooner or later there will be the breakdown of the peace machinery which has been so laboriously built up since 1918 and the world will be swept into another war.

Budgets Are Burdened.

"The immediate result of a failure here would be a setback to economic recovery, which depends upon such mutual confidence between nations as will permit a real collaboration in the task of restoring international trade and the freer movement of goods.

"This is impossible in a situation clouded by the fear of war. National budgets, which should be devoted to productive and social ends, are burdened with excessive and wasteful expenditures for armament. This leads, in turn, to an almost unbearable load of taxation on all our peoples.

"If we thus candidly face the situation there is really no alternative for a sane world to consider. It is inconceivable that the responsible leaders of any country in the world could hesitate over this issue. We cannot shirk the duty which this choice imposes upon us. We cannot safely delay taking effective steps to reduce armaments to a purely defensive basis.

Tells U. S. Point of View.

"As far as the position of the United States is concerned we are frank to recognize that we have a simpler problem to meet than have many of the European powers. Fears and apprehensions based on historical and racial grounds have led to the maintenance of large armaments in Europe. These large armaments have caused resentment, particularly in the less armed countries. The resulting political tension has, in turn, reacted to keep up the general level of armaments.

"We are not unaware of the difficulties which lie in the way of reduction in armaments here. It is our very detachment from this situation which gives us hope that we may exert a helpful influence towards the realization of our common objective. But we are prepared to aid in other ways than through exerting our influence, and I shall take this opportunity to show what we are prepared to do.

Would Ban "Aggressive" Arms.

"As regards the level of armaments we are prepared to go as far as the other states in the way of reduction. We feel that the ultimate objective should be to reduce armaments approximately to the level established by the peace treaties—that is, to bring armaments as soon as possible through successive stages down to the basis of a domestic police force.

"In particular, as emphasized by President Roosevelt, we are prepared to join other nations in abolishing weapons of an aggressive character, which not only are the more costly to construct and maintain, but at present are those most likely to lead to a breach of the peace.

"To cut the power of offense and remove the threat of surprise attack would do more than anything else to lessen the danger of a war.

Accepts British Plan.

"Almost a year ago the American government submitted a proposal along these lines. This proposal, which received the approval of a large number of states, was not acceptable to certain states and was, therefore, not adopted.

"A few weeks ago the British prime minister submitted a detailed proposal which embodies many of the features of the American plan of last year. As the British proposal represents a real measure of disarmament, we accept it whole-heartedly as a definite and excellent step toward the ultimate objective. We therefore are prepared to give our full support to the adoption of this plan.

"In addition, I wish to make it clear that we are ready not only to do our part toward the substantive reduction of armaments, but if this is effected by general international agreement, we are also prepared to contribute in other ways to the organization of peace.

Willing to Consult.

"In particular, we are willing to consult the other states in case of a threat to peace with a view to averting conflict.

"Further than that, in the event that the states, in conference, determine that a state has been guilty of a breach of the peace in violation of its international obligations and take measures against the violator, then, if we concur in the judgment rendered as to the responsible and guilty party, we will refrain from any action tending to defeat such collective effort which these states may thus make to restore peace.

"Finally, we believe that a system of adequate supervision should be formulated to insure the effective and faithful carrying out of any measure of disarmament.

"We are prepared to assist in this formulation and to participate in this supervision.

Proposes Supervisory Body.

"We are heartily in sympathy with the idea that means of effective, automatic and continuous supervision should be found whereby nations will be able to rest assured that as long as they respect their obligations with regard to armaments, the corresponding obligations of their neighbors will be carried out in the same scrupulous manner.

"The disarmament conference has already formulated measures for the establishing of a permanent disarmament commission. The powers now proposed for this commission may well be reënforced. The commission will have many important duties, but none more essential than that of effectively supervising the fulfillment of the treaty.

"We recognize that the ultimate objective in disarmament must be attained by stages, but we believe that the time for the next and decisive step is long overdue and cannot be further postponed.

Would Define Aggressor.

"Virtually all the nations of the world have entered upon the solemn obligation of the Briand-Kellog pact to renounce war as an instrument of national policy and to settle their disputes only by pacific means.

"If we are to keep faith with these obligations we must definitely make up our minds to settle our disputes around a conference table instead of preparing to settle them on the battlefield.

"It was with such a thought that the President proposed an undertaking by the nations that, subject to existing treaty rights, armed forces should not be sent across national frontiers.

"In the long run we may come to the conclusion that the simplest and most accurate definition of an aggressor is one whose armed forces are found on alien soil in violation of treaties.

Two Main Obstacles.

"There have been two main obstacles to disarmament. One was the apprehension that Germany proposed to rearm; the other the reluctance of the armed powers of Europe in the present state of the world to take a real step in disarmament.

"If at this decisive point any nation should fail to give conclusive evidence of its pacific intentions and insist upon the right to rearm, even though the other powers take effective and substantial steps toward disarmament, then the burden of responsibility for the failure of the disarmament conference, with the incalculable consequences of such a failure, would rest on the shoulders of that nation.

"The problem with which we are faced cannot be solved if one nation insists on rearming while the others disarm. The result inevitably would be another race in armaments.

Recognize Right to Security.

"As regards the action of the other powers, we are not unaware in the United States of the political difficulties which still lie in the way of the reduction of European armaments.

"We recognize the legitimate claim which any state has to safeguard its security.

"But we are firmly convinced that in the long run this security can best be achieved through a controlled disarmament by which the military strength of the most heavily armed nations is progressively reduced to a level such as that provided for in the peace treaties.

"To the extent that armaments create political tension, they in themselves constitute a menace to peace and may jeopardize the security of the very nations which maintain them.

Calls Hitler Stand "Helpful."

"If we take a long step in the direction of disarmament today and agree by stages to achieve our ultimate objective, we can meet any legitimate claim of the powers bound by the peace treaties and at the same time effectively help to insure peace. A few days ago the conference met a serious obstacle to further progress in its detailed examination of the British plan. Since then there has been an appreciable change.

"The recent speech by the German chancellor before the reichstag clarifying the German attitude and policy with regard to disarmament and indorsing the proposal of President Roosevelt has been most helpful.

"This and also the subsequent announcement made here by our colleague, Herr Nadolny, of Germany's acceptance of the British plan as the basis of the future convention have so altered the situation as to justify us in assuming that we can now resume our consideration of this plan with real hope of agreement.

Accepts War Material Plan.

"Our present agenda is a consideration of the chapters on war material. It was understood that other related subjects might be introduced and my colleagues may feel that I have made wide use of the latitude thus given me.

"But in closing my remarks and to bring our discussion back to the concrete question before us, I desire to state that the American delegation accepts the chapter on material and expresses the hope that the other delegations will join in this acceptance and that the way may thus be cleared for an immediate decision on the concrete proposals in this chapter.

"This conference is not only a disarmament conference. It is an emergency conference of a world in a state of political uncertainty and economic depression.

Crisis Near at Hand.

"The next weeks will bring the decisive test. It will require courage and statesmanship to meet this test, but the failure to do so will go far to shatter any hope of world organization for peace.

"As far as the United States is concerned, our abilities and our incentive to collaborate whole heartedly in the continuing task of helping to maintain world peace depends in large measure upon the results achieved here in disarmament.

"President Roosevelt's message is a clear indication of the fact that the United States will exert its full power and influence and accept its just share of responsibility to make the results in disarmament definite, prompt and effective.

Would Hasten Recovery.

"The results of success here and now would bring benefits beyond all calculation. It would give new confidence and hope—confidence that governments can still govern and leaders lead; hope that a definite step in disarmament having at last been taken, economic recovery will be hastened and the millions in all countries who are only asking for the opportunity to work will have restored to them the possibility of living in peace and of earning their daily bread.

"If by a great act of faith each and every nation will now summon the courage to take a decisive step in general disarmament, conditions throughout the world will so improve that we can henceforth face the future with a real feeling of security and confidence.

"With the alternative to success in mind, we cannot allow ourselves to fail."

LEAGUE TO PICK FIVE TO HANDLE CHACO CONFLICT

GENEVA, May 22.—(AP)—The present plan of the league of nations is to appoint a commission of five members to handle the Gran Chaco dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia, of which one would be from the United States and one from Argentina. The league commission on the Leticia controversy between Peru and Colombia probably will include one from Brazil and one from the United States.

The league received today a message from the government of Peru accepting in principle the proposals for settlement of the conflict with Colombia. The Peruvian delegate has been instructed to present the league council with the government's stipulations. The league proposals entail simultaneous evacuation of occupied territory and an investigation by a league commission.

But the pound the mahatma is losing each day is weakening him, and physicians will redouble their attention during the next week as well as in the week after the fast.

MUSSOLINI TELLS ITALY WAR SCARE HAS VANISHED

Predicts Era of Peace in 4 Power Pact.

ROME, May 23.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, in a speech at an executive session of the Fascist grand council which ended early today, declared the international situation "is greatly improved" as a result of recent events.

He informed the council of the outcome of negotiations for his four power peace pact, informally accepted yesterday by Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy and now awaiting official initialing. The date for the formal announcement invoking the pact, which is intended to guarantee peace in Europe for 10 years, has not yet been fixed.

Mussolini described President Roosevelt's initiative and the speech last week by Chancellor Hitler of Germany as the high spots in recent events which have led Europe out of a dangerous crisis.

He expressed the view that the world economic conference, opening in London June 12, will lead to useful results if it confronts problems energetically and is determined to reach a practical decision.

He convoked the grand council to meet again Thursday night.

Stresses Benefits of Pact.

The duce addressed the council lengthily, stressing especially what he described as the benefits of the four-power pact. He said it was "destined to assure a long period of peace for Europe."

He also spoke on disarmament, expressing hope for an early accord on the British disarmament plan.

The grand council met after last night's session of the chamber of deputies. Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs Fulvio Suvich addressed the deputies and held Europe's "big four" responsible "for peace or war in Europe and the world."

The acceptance of the four power pact, however, does not mean there is "less desire and necessity for collaboration" with the smaller states of Europe in observing peace, Suvich added.

The pact provides the best method possible for the revision of the post-war peace treaties, he declared. The pact points out the possibility of revision under article 16 of the covenant of the league of nations, which contemplated such action in event a threat to peace developed.

Mussolini Is Cheered.

Mussolini and many foreign diplomats heard the address. The chamber rose to its feet and cheered Mussolini when Deputy Cassallo paid a fervent tribute to the Duce's foreign policy. Mussolini, who was standing, smiled and bowed.

Suvich asserted the Mussolini pact will result in the disappearance of small groups "antagonistic one to the other which organize political maneuvers in press campaigns which produce repercussions in all countries and poison public opinion.

"Revisionism arose with the treaties of peace which sanctioned it," he continued. "Evolution is a law of life and cannot be suppressed. A normal peaceful outlet is necessary and nothing better could be suggested than an understanding among the four western powers."

Loud protests were shouted in the chamber session when Deputy Ezio

ECONOMIST PREDICTS PRESENT DEPRESSION IS THE WORLD'S LAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 22.—Stephen B. Leacock, Canadian literary humorist, emerged in his other professional rôle as professor of economics at McGill university today to prophesy before the Political Science association that the world is in the throes of its last depression; that depression will "move away as rapidly as a passing storm"; that "price quotations are now straining at the leash," and that an eager market will greet the first upturn in the movement of commodities.

His declaration that certain "profound differences" exist between Italian and German fascism provoked noisy interruptions. Shouts of "Down with democracy!" greeted remarks he made which were considered too critical of the German Nazis.

In discussing the German Nazi movement Garibaldi said it was distinguished by three differences from Italian fascism, namely, anti-Semitism, the campaign against "intellectuals," and reëstablishment of the large land holding class in Prussia through birthright.

Garibaldi is a grandson of Giuseppe Garibaldi, who fought for and secured Italian unity more than two generations ago.

Poland Still Opposed to Pact.

WARSAW, May 22.—(AP)—The semi-official Iskra News agency said today that Polish political circles continued opposed to the Mussolini four power pact, now revised, on the ground that it contravenes the principle of equality of nations and therefore the league of nations covenant. Furthermore, it said, Poland will respect only treaties concluded with her participation and signed by her.

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer—it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

WALLACE READY TO LEVY FARM PROCESSING TAX

Bank of England Adviser May Stay in U. S.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—While the Roosevelt administration was proclaiming today at home and abroad the abandonment of traditional American policies of political and economic isolation, it was taking other steps bound to produce important repercussions in Europe.

The principal actions had to do with lifting the ban of foreign complications, from the starting of the farm relief project and with plans for establishing a managed currency and with the stabilization of the dollar in foreign exchange.

At a conference between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace the way was opened for a permissible immediate launching of the farm relief undertaking, notwithstanding the tariff truce subscribed to by the leading powers at the instance of the United States.

Would Start Processing Taxes.

As a result, if President Roosevelt gives his approval, Secretary Wallace will proceed with as little delay as possible to assess processing taxes on wheat and cotton and probably corn and hogs from the proceeds of which bounties will be paid to the producers.

When the farm relief bill became a law, the President instructed Mr. Wallace to withhold the levying of the processing taxes because they entailed a commensurate increase of the tariff on the commodities affected.

Mr. Roosevelt held that such action would be a violation of the tariff truce that had just gone into effect. By the terms of this truce all the subscribing nations pledged themselves to erect no new barriers to imports until the conclusion of the world economic conference which is to meet in London June 12.

Relative Positions Unchanged.

All of the signatories, except the United States, however, made reservations exempting tariff increases in process of negotiation or contemplated.

Secretary Wallace took the position that the levying of the processing taxes entails no violation of the tariff truce. The farm relief act provides that when a processing tax is imposed a compensating tax on imports of the competing foreign product or its derivatives shall be levied.

The tariff would be raised but the price of the domestic product would also be raised by the processing tax. So the relative price levels of the domestic and imported articles would remain unchanged.

Mr. Wallace convinced Mr. Hull that this operation involves no violation of the tariff truce. Mr. Hull said that as far as the state department is concerned, the department of agriculture is free to proceed to put farm relief into full effect. The matter, however, is to be put up to the President for a final decision. The prevailing view is that Mr. Roosevelt acted hastily without understanding the economics involved.

One reason that the farm relievers want to assess the processing taxes at once is that until they do so they lack sufficient funds to carry the act into effect unless they tap the treasury for several hundred million dollars.

Discuss Currency Stability.

Currency management and stabilization were considered, at the White House conference the participants in which were the President, Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, Gov. Eugene R. Black of the federal reserve board; Dean Acheson, undersecretary of the treasury, and Prof. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard university, who is economic adviser to the Bank of England.

The administration invited Dr. Sprague to Washington several days ago to advise the treasury on currency problems. At the conference today the President offered Prof. Sprague the position of economic adviser to the treasury. The economist is understood to have accepted. Announcement of the appointment is expected tomorrow. Secretary Woodin said he would have an important announcement to make within 24 hours.

The retaining of Dr. Sprague is construed as a move in the direction of stabilization of the dollar either through employment of a stabilization fund like the British fund for stabilizing the pound sterling or through international agreement establishing relative values of the dollar, pound, and franc. The feasibility of effecting a temporary stabilization of currencies before the economic conference is being studied in both Washington and London.

Discusses Davis' Speech.

While the White House discussion was in progress official Washington was taking stock of the announcement by Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador-at-large to the Geneva disarmament conference, that the United States stands ready to enter a consultative pact and take sides against a nation deemed to be an aggressor.

Following this proclamation abroad of the abandonment of the traditional American policy of "splendid isolation," Secretary of State Cordell Hull outlined to the press the Roosevelt project to end our economic isolation by razing protective tariff walls through international agreement at the London conference.

Late in the day the President and his secretary of state gave further consideration to shaping the resolution Mr. Roosevelt will ask congress to adopt authorizing him to negotiate reciprocal tariff reductions with other nations. The President plans to submit this resolution before the end of the week, accompanying it with a special message justifying the action sought.

Although both the Democratic and Republican platforms prepared the public mind for the abandonment of isolation by declaring in favor of the United States entering a consultative pact bearing on the outbreak of war in any part of the world, and although President Roosevelt had foreshadowed the step taken today, the full extent of the departure from our traditional policy it involves was not realized until the text of Ambassador Davis' Geneva speech became available.

Under the terms of the Davis proposal, the United States would take sides in any war arising in Europe or any other part of the world. It would participate in fixing the blame and then will be obligated to do nothing that would give aid or comfort to the nation declared the aggressor.

If the powers were to declare a blockade, the United States would waive its neutral right to trade with the offending nation. It would be required to embargo the shipment of arms to the offender, to prevent American financiers from lending money to the offender.

Under the terms of the pledge, however, the United States would not be obligated to send armed forces against the aggressor.

Mr. Davis also informed the conference that the United States is ready to participate in the international commission proposed for the supervision of armaments.

Hoover Rejected Similar Pact.

The last effort made to put the United States into a consultative pact was during the London naval arms conference in 1930. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who headed the American delegation, agreed to the proposal, but President Hoover rejected it following a senate outburst against it. The senate objection was to the effect that it would involve us in every war in any part of the globe and entangle us inextricably in the political quarrels of Europe.

Mr. Hull declared that the United States is ready to go as far in economic as in military disarmament. Whether other nations were prepared to go as far as the United States in scaling down tariff walls he did not know. He was not "overoptimistic."

He became evasive when asked if the industry control project, requiring higher instead of lower tariffs.

Says Tariff Walls Have Failed.

"We must determine as we go along," he said, "whether a level of tariff and trade barriers, which President McKinley advocated 30 odd years ago and which I have repeatedly proclaimed as embodying the level that I am advocating—whether that level of moderate tariff and trade barriers in the functions of international finance and commerce will be the objective or will be finally abandoned and every nation turned back to try out the isolation policy anew.

"The nations for 12 years have been trying out this policy of economic extremism. I take it that every man, woman and child with few exceptions is worse off than they were 12 years ago. I am content to let the civilized nations try this out to their hearts' desire."

GUY C. SHEPARD WILL BE PACKER ADMINISTRATOR

Georgia Man Chosen for Cotton Aid.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.]—Guy C. Shepard of Evanston, Ill., former vice president of the Cudahy Packing company, today was appointed administrator in charge of packing house products under the farm relief act.

Selected by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and George N. Peek, co-administrator of the farm relief act, Shepard will have general charge of the trade agreements to be made between packers and between producers and processors relative to the packing house products, chiefly hogs and their products, included in the act.

Atlanta Man Named.

Shortly after Mr. Shepard was drafted from retirement to handle the packing house end of the huge farm relief program, C. A. Cobb of Atlanta, Ga., editor of the Progressive Farmer-Ruralist, was picked to handle the cotton work. Both Mr. Shepard and Mr. Cobb rank alongside of Prof. M. L. Wilson, wheat administrator, chosen some time ago.

Mr. Shepard's work, it was explained at the department of agriculture, will be confined to the processing end of the packing house industry. Production of hogs, the chief meat animal included in the farm program, will be placed under the direction of another administrator, it was predicted.

"Real work" will begin in about a week, Mr. Shepard indicated today. He expects to return to Evanston "to tidy up" his affairs there before settling down to his desk here, he said.

Will Work with Peek.

The trade agreements which he is to engineer may set prices but do not need to do so, Mr. Shepard pointed out, adding that he would have to confer with Mr. Peek, his superior, before outlining his work in detail.

A 60 year old veteran with 40 years of experience in the packing industry behind him, Mr. Shepard is not new to emergency government work, having served on food committees during the war. Mr. Peek, the administrator under whom he will work, has been his friend since boyhood days in Council Bluffs, Ia.

Starting as an office boy at $6 a week when he was 18, Mr. Shepard worked up to the vice president of the Cudahy company during the two decades he remained with the company. He retired two years ago.

HOODLUM FOUND SHOT IN CICERO FREED ON BAIL

Charles S. Conroy, ex-convict, who was found shot in a bungalow at 3223 South 54th court, Cicero, last week, was released from custody on $10,000 bond yesterday forenoon. He is in the Berwyn hospital and the effect of the bail was to remove the police guard from his room.

Police attempted to keep secret the bailing of the hoodlum. Mike Solar, formerly a music dealer, the new police chief of Cicero, refused to say who furnished the bond or otherwise talk about Conroy's release, and avoided questioners. Magistrate Henry Sandusky, who approved the bond, asserted there was no need for secrecy about the matter, and criticized police for their attitude. He set the hearing for June 7.

In the house where Conroy was found police discovered fifty-six sticks of dynamite, fuses, caps, and guns. Conroy was charged with receiving stolen property and disorderly conduct. The stolen property charge involves the dynamite, supposedly taken from the Lemont quarries.

FEINBERG QUITS CHICAGO BAR IN RECEIVER FIGHT

Association Head Replies to Judge's Charges.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg resigned yesterday from the Chicago Bar association as a result of the association's report criticizing the conduct of himself and Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski in receivership cases. Charles P. Megan, president of the bar association, retorted to Judge Feinberg's open letter of resignation with the statement that it was a great relief to the association to be able to strike the judge's name from its roll of members.

Judge Feinberg criticized the bar association's attack on his receivership practices, charging that its publication was timed to strike at his candidacy for reelection. The rules of the Circuit court, he said, provide for the filing of charges against judges with the executive committee of the court, and he asserted that the bar association should have done this instead of having the charges investigated by its own committees.

Megan Makes Reply.

"The report of our receivership commitee on Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski was not timed with reference to the coming [June 5] judicial election," said Mr. Megan. "Had there been any desire to influence the election by this means, a much better time would have been preceding the holding of the convention that nominated these two judges.

"The two candidates were forced on a party not their own to the great dismay of their fellow candidates of both parties. I am sorry that the report was not finished earlier; perhaps it would have saved the situation."

This reference was to the fact that Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski, both Republicans, are candidates for reelection on the Democratic coalition ticket.

"On Saturday," Mr. Megan went on, "Judge Feinberg talked before the legislative committee investigating receiverships about an arrangement whereby Attorney A would apply for a receiver and then have Attorney B appointed as receiver's attorney, while in the next case Attorney B would apply for a receiver and have Attorney A apointed as receiver's attorney.

"Judge Feinberg has said this before, but has never given an instance. If the judge knows any instances he should follow them relentlessly, as we would do.

Raises Question of Powers.

"He points out in his letter of resignation that the Chicago Bar association has no power to subpoena witnesses or put hem under oath, while judges have both those powers. His complaint then is that we have exceeded our authority in investigating the conduct of judges, which investigation, he says, we should leave with the courts where it belongs.

"But the court has not used its great power to investigate receivership cases. That the Chicago Bar association would coöperate to the fullest degree is known to the public from what we have already done.

"It is needless to add that we shall not submit charges against judges to be tried by those judges themselves. We shall resort to the bar of public opinion when the public interest requires it. Such necessity surely exists here."

CANDIDATES FOR CIRCUIT BENCH

(Election June 5)

THEODORE F. EHLER

Theodore F. Ehler, Republican candidate for the Circuit court and one of the winners of a bar indorsement, has been on the Municipal court bench for the last 12 years. He is 56 years of age, was born in Germany, and when 6 years old was brought to Chicago, where he has lived for half a century. He is a citizen by virtue of his father's naturalization.

He was educated in the public schools of Chicago, attended the Chicago Kent College of Law, and was admitted to practice in Illinois in 1901. While attending law school, Judge Ehler was clerk for H. G. Schulte, justice of the peace. From August, 1919, to April, 1920, he served as an assistant corporation counsel.

Judge Ehler was elected judge of the Municipal court in November, 1920, to fill a vacancy. He was reelected in 1922 and again in 1928, his present term as Municipal judge running until December, 1934. Last November he was Republican candidate for a vacancy on the Superior court, being defeated by Judge Francis Allegretti, Democrat. He is married, has two children, and lives at 8004 South Sangamon street. He is a member of the Englewood Business Men's association, Masonic fraternity, Modern Woodmen, Knights of Pythias, Moose, and the German Club of Chicago.

In the recent bar primaries Ehler ran in eleventh place among the 20 candidates indorsed for the Circuit court. The bar association report said of Judge Ehler: "His service as a judge of the Municipal court for 12 years has been marked by courteous, patient, industrious, and careful judicial work. He is well qualified to be a judge of the Circuit court.

SONSTEBY ASKED TO EXPLAIN HIS BUDGET DEMAND

Sends Word His Position Is Just the Same.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court was asked yesterday to explain why he is demanding for the court a 1933 appropriation that is $90,042 higher than the 1932 appropriation. Almost alone among all tax spending agencies, the Municipal court is opposing the economy campaign deemed necessary by experts to help Chicago recover from its financial ills.

Judge Sonsteby was "not in" to a reporter who called at his office. But after some insistence on the part of the visitor, the judge's secretary carried the question in to the judge and returned a few minutes later with his answer.

"The judge's stand has not altered," the secretary said. "Every one has taken a pay cut and that is considered sufficient. He says to tell you that his position remains the same as it always has."

Defends His Special Staff.

Some months ago, when the chief justice's expenditures for a secretary, several assistants, a special assistant, two court reporters, two law clerks and a stenographer for his personal office alone were criticized by some of his colleagues, he defended the hiring of a special staff. He declared that he had helped clear up the crowded dockets in the Municipal court during his term in office.

Despite much criticism, notably from Associate Judges Edgar A. Jonas and Edward B. Casey, the chief justice has refused, in his 1933 budget, to ask less than $5,000 a year for his secretary, a young woman; $6,000 for each of three assistants; $2,500 for each of two more assistants; $10,000 for a special assistant; $7,500 for another assistant; $3,500 for each of two court reporters; $3,000 for each of two law clerks; and $2,500 for a law stenographer.

Asks $76,000 for Own Office.

With the chief justice's own salary of $15,000 yearly, the appropriation requested for his office alone is $76,000.

The city council is helpless to cut the appropriation for the Municipal court, aldermen pointed out, because the law requires that the council appropriate for the Municipal court as the court directs. The total appropriation asked for the operation of the court during the current year is $523,500. Last year Chief Justice Sonsteby was given $433,458, of which he spent $432,888, a balance of $570 remaining.

Dr. Mesirow Threatened with Jail in Alimony Suit

Dr. Maurice E. Mesirow, husband of Irene Pavloska, opera singer, yesterday was ordered by Circuit Judge Craig A. Hood to show cause on Thursday why he should not be jailed for failure to pay alimony to his first wife, Mrs. Eda Mesirow, who is a patient in a Los Angeles sanitarium. Dr. Mesirow owes her $3,000, her attorney told Judge Hood. Dr. Mesirow and his present wife live in the Sutherland hotel, 4659 Drexel boulevard.

DRUNKEN DRIVER ON RELIEF ROLLS IS GIVEN 90 DAYS

Herbert Zinzi, 44 years old, 1024 South Fairfield avenue, an idle mechanic who has been a relief "client" for more than a year, appeared in the Speeder's court yesterday on charges of driving his automobile while intoxicated. He was arrested at 12th street and Western avenue late Saturday.

"This man was drunk," Policeman Edward O'Shea told Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green. "He was driving all over the street and refused to stop. When he finally halted he attacked me. He had 1933 license plates on the machine, too."

"Where did you get the money to buy license plates if you aren't working and are getting relief from the county?" asked the judge.

"My friends chipped in and bought them for me," said Zinzi.

"If the county must support you I think it will be wise to put you where you can't get drunk and drive an automobile. I'll just give you ninety days in the House of Correction and fine you $100 and costs," announced the judge.

LINDBERGH HOME BUTLER GRAVELY ILL IN HOSPITAL

Princeton, N. J., May 22.—(AP)—Ollie Wheatley, butler in the Hopewell home of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, is seriously ill in Princeton hospital.

Dr. Ralph Belford revealed today Wheatley underwent an operation Friday night for a perforated ulcer, which he said caused an "acute condition in the abdomen." At the hospital tonight Wheatley's condition was reported "slightly improved."

Col. Lindbergh is keeping in daily touch with the butler's condition. He called at the hospital Saturday and telephoned yesterday and today.

Wheatley was at the Lindbergh home the night Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped. Servants were among the first questioned. All were exonerated.

INJURED MAN IDENTIFIED.

A man who was seriously injured Sunday when he walked in front of an Illinois Central engine on the tracks near Archer avenue and Pitney court identified himself yesterday at the county hospital as Taczma Theophil, 41 years old.

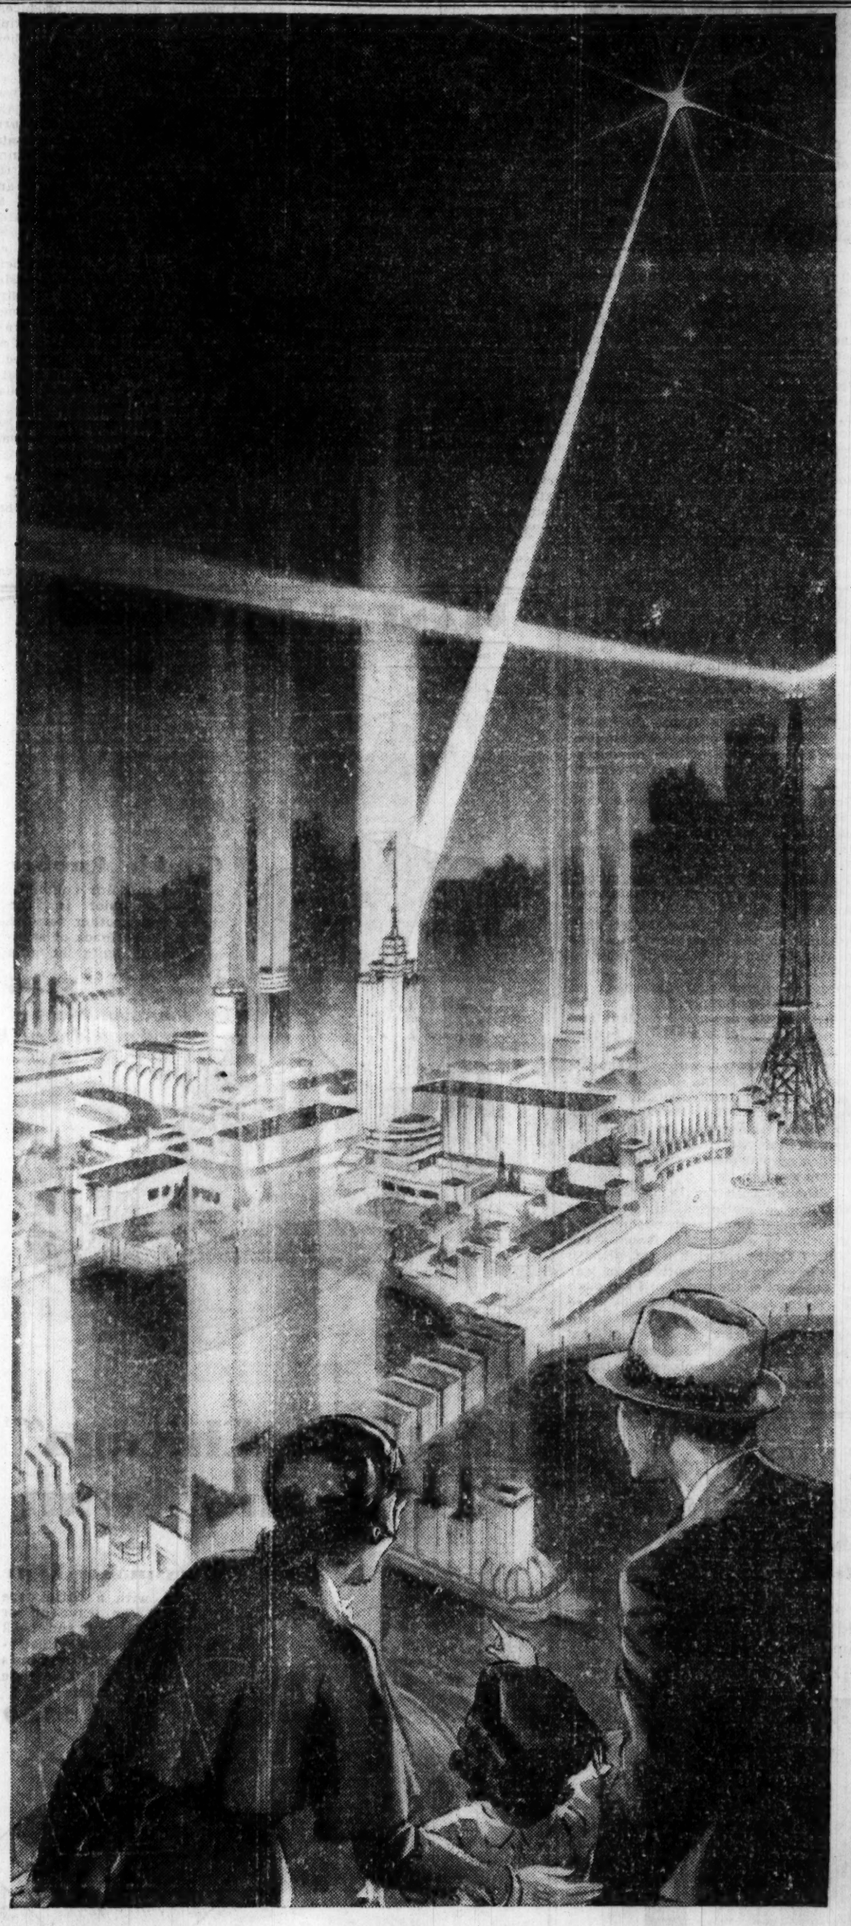
"I believe that Chicago, now on the eve of its great Century of Progress Exposition, can do much to accelerate the return of better times."

Mayor Edward J. Kelly

"It's in the Stars"

..we're going to have visitors!

FORTY YEARS AGO, at the time of the 1893 World's Fair, a beam of light left the star Arcturus and started speeding toward us. This Saturday, May twenty-seventh, it will reach Chicago . . . and will turn on the illumination at the 1933 Century of Progress. This same beam of light will also be the signal for railroads, buses and automobiles to start pouring millions of visitors into Chicago. All Summer long the crowds will be coming . . and many of them will be friends and relatives who will visit your home!



Get Ready for the Century of Progress

Of course you will want that home to be comfortable and inviting. Modern electric appliances will make it so . . . and at little cost. A modern radio and attractive lamps will lend an air of hospitality to your rooms. One of the new lightweight electric irons will take the wrist-ache and back-ache out of ironing day—will help you keep guest linens crisp and fresh. An electric coffee maker and electric toaster will save time at the breakfast table this Summer. And why not install more electric outlets so that you will have electric service handy in every room?

Get Your Spare Room Ready

Saturday of this week will see the grand opening of the Century of Progress. Why not start fixing up your spare room today? Attractive rooms will be in demand during the Century of Progress—rent yours and earn a profit. Employ people now—during "Let's Go, Chicago!" week—to finish up the odd jobs around your home. Buy the equipment you need from Chicago merchants. Chicago's opportunity is here. Let's all do our part and all will benefit. Let's Go, Chicago!

How I Lost 62 Pounds Ugly Fat

Without Harmful Dieting or Drugs

By MARGARET GEORGE

210 Lbs. 148 Lbs.

Above are my photographs taken before and after I drank Germania Herb Tea. I used to be so tired and weak I could hardly stand on my feet. I am now giving free demonstrations in the leading department stores of America. I am 50 years old, work 14 hours a day, am on my feet all the time and never felt so good before in my life. I would love to have you come and meet me.

Simply Drank Delicious Germania Herb Tea—

SIXTY-TWO pounds of fat in three months was the welcome loss in weight I registered without taking any harmful drugs or salts—without violent exercising and without going hungry for a single minute. Drinking three cupfuls a day of delicious Germania Herb Tea, obtainable at food, department and drug stores, I hold entirely responsible for the loss of all my ugly fat and the return to me of a youthlike strength and energy I had not possessed in years. To obtain a trial package free, note coupon below.

Made of herbs grown on the sunny slopes of hills and mountains in Germany, Germania Herb Tea is strictly a vegetable product containing no harmful drugs. It tastes just like ordinary orange pekoe tea. It is made the same way and you can drink it, either hot or served as iced tea, with lemon, cream or sugar.

Delicious, I found it and many women I know who drink it say the same. But getting rid of 62 pounds of fat cannot be accomplished by drinking any ordinary tea. Remember, you must drink Germania Herb Tea—and the remarkable thing about it is you lose weight without going on a freak starvation diet that runs you down and makes you weak and strengthless. I lost weight every day and each day I ate what I wanted, except much fatty meats and starches, felt better, and grew stronger. The body simply must have plenty of good, wholesome food, and of the right kind, containing vitamins and other necessary substances to sustain life and build strength and energy. Get it at your nearest Food, Dept. or Drug Store, or—

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands who have piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of money refunded if they do not end your Pile misery.

TAXI MONOPOLY OPPOSITION IN COUNCIL GROWS

Ordinance Up Today Bars Independents.

The provisions of the proposed new taxicab ordinance that continue in effect the high fares and the monopoly now enjoyed by the corporately related Yellow and Checker cab companies, barring independents from entering Chicago with lower rates, were attacked yesterday by members of the city council.

The ordinance will be submitted this morning to the city council subcommittee on taxicabs. There it will meet with an opposition, the aldermen declared, that will demand an opportunity for independents to operate on a fare of 15 cents for the first third mile and 5 cents for each additional third mile. The Yellow and Checker rates are 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each additional half mile.

Hold 500 Unused Licenses.

"I'm absolutely opposed to a continuance of the taxicab monopoly," declared Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], "and I'm going to insist that licenses be issued to the independents. The Yellow and Checker companies have approximately 500 cab licenses that they are not using. Those licenses should be turned over to independents who want to operate on the streets at lower fares.

"A few of the independents are being permitted to operate as an experiment pending the passage of a new ordinance. They have been charging the 15 and 5 rate and the testimony shows that the drivers have been earning a living wage. Distribution of the 500 Yellow and Checker licenses among the independents would permit other drivers to go to work."

Ald. Bryan Hartnett [12th] stated that he would not vote for the ordinance. He said that a suggested reduction of 5 cents in the Yellow and Checker flag charge of 25 cents would still leave Chicago with the highest metropolitan taxicab rates in the country.

Assails License Board.

Besides assailing the rate and monopolistic feaures of the ordinance, Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th] opposed the provision that retains for the public vehicle license commission the autocratic powers under which it has repeatedly denied licenses to independents.

"The vehicle commission has abused its powers,' said Ald. Ross. "Licenses that have not been used have been issued to the Yellow and Checker companies, but independents who want to operate with lower fares are denied them."

R. F. C. GRANTS ILLINOIS $2,500,000 FOR RELIEF; CASH TO OTHER STATES

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins' first act as federal relief administrator was to allot $5,336,317 today to eight states to care for their needs during the latter part of May as follows: Illinois, $2,500,000; Michigan, $1,630,540; Colorado, $302,645; Texas, $611,865; Georgia, $40,622; Iowa, $47,207; Mississippi, $164,193, and Ohio, $39,245.

Hopkins telegraphed the governors of the states that these funds would be made available immediately from the $250,000,000, which is to be matched by expenditure of $3 of state funds for each federal dollar.

Sworn in as relief administrator, he immediately went to the office of Fred Croxton, who has been in charge of relief advances made by the Reconstruction corporation under the old relief law. Mr. Hopkins said probably 16,000,000 people are on relief rolls and it was not the administration's purpose to perpetuate any such system. Work would be provided.

FRIENDS HONOR MARY BARTELME, RETIRING JUDGE

Crowd Hotel Ballroom for Civic Dinner.

A tribute was paid last night to Mary Bartelme, retiring as judge of the Juvenile court this June after twenty years on the bench.

The grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel was crowded with Judge Bartelme's friends at a civic dinner in her honor sponsored by the Friends of the Juvenile court.

There were representatives of a hundred settlements, welfare societies, women's civic clubs and hospitals. Clergymen of all creeds were there, and judges and lawyers, stenographers, and not a few of the boys and girls Judge Bartelme had guided from the bench.

Court Widely Copied.

The Paulist choristers came to sing, telegrams poured in to be read, and speakers told of Judge Bartelme's work and influence in behalf of underprivileged children, not only during her judgship, but even years before that.

The assembly recalled that the project of having a juvenile court was started back in 1899. It was then considered visionary by many. The court has since been copied in every state but two, and in many foreign countries. Judge Bartelme, having been appointed as public guardian by Gov. Tanner in 1897, was in 1913 made Judge Pinckney's assistant to hear the cases of juvenile girls. For twelve years she has been judge and friend to thousands of children who have come before her each year.

Horner Sends Message.

Among the messages were telegrams from Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly. Miss Jane Addams, lifelong friend of Judge Bartelme, after reviewing her accomplishments in the Juvenile court, pledged continuance of its service and ideals.

Judge Phillip Finnegan described Judge Bartelme as "a great jurist and a sincere humanitarian who has given back to society many useful citizens." Other speakers included Harry Hill, chief probation officer; Russell Whitman, past president of the Chicago Bar association; Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, president of the Chicago Woman's club, and Edward L. Ryerson Jr., who presided.

Judge Bartelme, after expressing her gratitude, made recommendations which she considers essential to the future of the Juvenile court.

"There should be a trained worker and probation officer in every police district," Judge Bartelme said. "We should have more adequate provision for the mentally defective and the court should exercise all jurisdiction over all persons of juvenile age."

BAR ASSOCIATION DIVIDES CITY INTO CAMPAIGN DISTRICTS

The Chicago Bar association announced yesterday that it has divided the city into districts, in order to campaign more effectively for judicial candidates indorsed by the association for election at the June 5 polls.

The campaign committee of the bar association will direct the work of the district organizations. Campaigns in the suburbs will be organized under a chairman in each town. The district chairmen are Samuel W. Klpnitz, Lawrence J. Dahlgren, Edwin C. Podewell, William A. Cunnea Jr., Albert J. Meserow, Henry F. Antes, Charles Lewis, Thomas L. Owens, Joseph T. Harrington, Rocco DeStefano, A. J. Parker, Mel J. Griffith, Charles G. Loucks and Alwin F. Pitzner.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy and Mrs. Eric Stubbs are organizing women voters in support of the bar association candidates. Mrs. Cudahy will give a luncheon today at the bar association for women speakers who will take part in the campaign.

Two Robbers Beat Victims Unconscious; Steal $660

Two men were beaten unconscious yesterday by three bandits who escaped with $660 from the Portage Park News agency, 4106 Milwaukee avenue. Isadore Sered, the owner, was struck with a gun when he failed to raise his hands. J. Hartnett, receiver for the building, and an employé, Sol Rubrnick, entered while the robbery was in progress. Rubrnick was knocked unconscious and Hartnett was robbed of $110. The rest of the money was taken from Sered.

CUT RELIEF LIST BY 6,000 IN APRIL; SAVING IS $98,000

Six thousand families were removed from the relief rolls in Cook county during April, the statistical bureau of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies announced yesterday. A survey conducted by the bureau showed that the removal of the families from relief aid resulted in a saving of more than $98,000.

During March the total unduplicated number of families receiving relief in the county was 203,543. This number included those aided by all welfare family agencies, public and private, special work fund, mothers' pensions, settlements and minor relief agencies, private suburban agencies and rural divisions of the county. The cost of relief during March was $5,606,043.

The total receiving aid at the end of April was 197,475 families, representing an expenditure of $5,507,940.

FALSE TEETH
"Stay Put," Says Druggist

"With my gums gradually shrinking I had difficulty keeping my plate in position with various denture powders. Most of them lasted only a few hours. Now I use FASTEETH and what a difference! I now wear my plate for 24 hours with absolute security and comfort. Fasteeth does not wash away or become thinned out, but 'STAYS PUT' until I am ready to remove plate. FASTEETH is tasteless. Does not sour or cause foulbreath. Holds false teeth all day long."

You never saw a FURNACE LIKE THIS BEFORE

A COMPLETE HEATING UNIT for hot water, steam, vapor, or warm air . . . not just an oil burner attachment.

BUILD, in your imagination, what you consider the ideal kind of automatic heat—and you would have what actually exists in the General Electric Oil Furnace.

No winding, only one setting of the Electric Thermal Control Clock, and you are ready for cold weather when it comes next Fall. Automatically, at the first sign of cold, up comes the heat. You haven't touched a thing—no building of fires, no adjusting. The Thermal Control has taken care of it.

Enjoy It Summers, Too!

It does seem strange that you can enjoy the comfort of the General Electric Oil Furnace all summer, too. But it's true, because this furnace has a built-in automatic hot water heater. With it you have a plentiful supply of domestic hot water on tap all year round—at a considerable saving on fuel cost.

With the installation of the General Electric Oil Furnace your basement is immediately made available for a game room, workshop or cool extra living room. The furnace is completely enclosed in a lacquered steel jacket, with chromium trim—no soot, no dust, no noises and no smell.

Nothing Like It Before

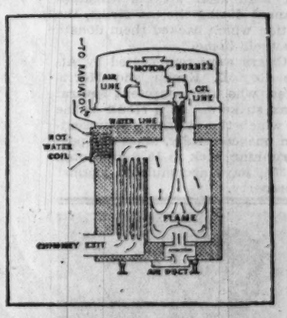
You'll find this an entirely different kind of automatic heating. The whole furnace is a complete unit designed and made by G-E to get the most heat from oil and to trap that heat. With the burner on top, the chimney set at the bottom and a combustion chamber so arranged that the flame and gases must pass three times through the furnace before they escape; it gives more heat per gallon of oil.

The oil itself is atomized by G-E's patented new "impact-expansion" atomization which breaks it down so finely that an oil drop the size of a match-head becomes 100 million microscopic particles.

The atomized oil is burned completely—none is wasted. The G-E Oil Furnace uses No. 3 grade oil. Present users report from 14 per cent to 53 per cent fuel savings.

Have This Furnace Now

Act now, while the dollar buys more than ever before—and no sales tax. Have automatic hot water all summer at a considerable saving. Have heat automatically at the first sign of cold weather next fall. Remember, no "extras" to buy later—all controls are built in as part of the furnace. Mail the coupon now or phone.



Cross section showing how the construction of the new G-E Oil Furnace provides an automatic heat trap. Burner is at the top. Heat must travel down, then up, then down again before waste gases reach chimney exit at bottom.

TAX PAYMENTS SAG AS JARECKI SUSPENDS COURT

Promises He Will Renew Campaign Today.

Tax collections sagged suddenly yesterday when County Judge Jarecki was unable to hold court because of the funeral of a relative. As a result the drive to collect delinquent taxes was temporarily halted.

Only $11,595 in 1928 taxes was collected during the day, a checkup showed. The collection of 1929 taxes totaled $34,019 and of 1930 taxes $104,227. The total of $149,841 collected for the three years was more than $100,000 under the average daily collections last week.

Collections for 1931 totalled $228,619. Personal property tax payments for 1931 were $11,141.

During the last two weeks, with the county judge appointing receivers under the Kerner-Skarda act to collect taxes, the big property owners have been hurrying into court to pay up and avoid the receiverships.

Shows Need for Pressure.

Tax experts pointed out that the delinquent taxpayers were only too ready to seize advantage of even a momentary delay. County Treasurer McDonough asserted that the sudden slump in tax collections was evidence that constant pressure must be maintained upon the big taxpayers to make them pay at least 75 per cent of their 1928, 1929, 1930 taxes.

Judge Jarecki will be back in court today, however, and more than a score of receivership petitions will be heard by him. He announced that the drive will be renewed in earnest and that no property owner who has paid less than 75 per cent of his delinquent taxes will be given any consideration in his court.

37 New Petitions Filed.

Thirty-seven petitions for receivership were filed against delinquent tax properties in the County court, making a total of 334 such actions started since May 1. A list of the defendant properties and the amounts of taxes owed on each follows:

CISARS FORFEIT HOME ON WHICH TAX WAS FOUGHT

Edward F. Cisar and his wife, Lillian, in whose name one of the most stubbornly fought of Cook county's tax strike suits was brought, have lost the bungalow at 438 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, on which they protested the taxes in a case which was carried unsuccessfully to the United States Supreme court.

Yesterday the Bankers Life company of Des Moines, Ia., which held a mortgage on the property, asked Judge William J. Lindsay in the Superior court to appoint a receiver for the bungalow. They have already bidden in the property at a foreclosure sale for a debt of $4,997, but will not obtain possession for a year, and asked a receiver to collect rent on the place in the meantime. Judge Lindsay continued the case until June 10.

"If I appoint the receiver they will probably get relief more quickly," said Judge Lindsay. "But I would suggest that, after all the litigation they caused during the tax strike, the association which backed them donate to save their home."

The Cisars were represented by Attorneys Roy D. Keehn and Morris Schaeffer, who also represent several large tax strikers. As a result of the suit in which the attorneys represented them unsuccessfully, taxes and penalties, running back to 1928 and totaling $1,385, have accumulated against their property.

FORTY ARE POISONED BY FOOD SERVED AT AN INDIANA CHURCH

Sheridan, Ind., May 22.—[Special.]—Forty persons, including twenty-six members of the Marion college glee club, today suffered from ptomaine poisoning after eating pressed chicken and beef sandwiches at the Wesleyan Methodist church at Bakers corner, four miles east of Sheridan, last night. The sandwiches had been made by members of the church in the afternoon and those made of chicken became tainted when kept in a warm room.

HUNT POISON PEN WRITER PREYING ON SOCIETY FOLK

Private detectives were reported yesterday to be trailing a poison pen writer who has been harassing society folk recently with letters containing threates, scandal and innuendoes. The writer is said to be signing the epistles as "Dracula."

Among the score of those reported to have heard from "Dracula" are Miss Marjorie Goodman, 1530 North State parkway, a daughter of Mrs. James M. Hopkins; and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, 20 East Cedar street, wife of the vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

The Harrises could not be reached yesterday but James M. Hopkins, president of the Camel company, railway supply firm, and the stepfather of Miss Goodman, said that she had not received any threatening letters to his knowledge.

Crank letters of various kinds have come to be regarded as another depression discomfort in the last year, it was learned. The announcement of an engagement, a marriage or a trip abroad by any well known family has become the signal for a barrage of mail demanding a job, money or castoff clothing from that family, it is said.

The "Dracula" letters are of a different type, however, it is reported. The writer is said to have shown an intimate knowledge of current gossip and the habits of those mentioned in the "poison" missives.

Thus far there has been no complaint to the postoffice inspection service, according to Frank T. Frawley, acting inspector in charge. Inspector Frawley expressed doubt that the government would have jurisdiction, explaining that the law bans poison pen letters only where they contain lewd and scurrilous matter, or money demands accompanied by threats of bodily harm.

Police also have received no complaints, it was learned. A detail from East Chicago avenue was sent to the Hopkins home when reports were published of the delivery of "Dracula" letters there, but were told their services were not required. A butler admitted that Miss Goodman had "received a good many calls," but did not mention the letters.

Mayor Kelly yesterday proposed to the county board that the city and other local government bodies lend employés to the county assessor and the board of appeals to expedite the handling of the 1932 real estate assessment, as an alternative to making additional appropriations.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs and Fred Brummel, member of the board of appeals, consented and told the county board that they would inform them today how many employés are needed.

The county board has indicated that it would be illegal to grant the $90,000 requested by the assessor and the $35,000 requested by the board of appeals, as the additional funds could not be included in the budget.

John O. Rees, managing director of the Sargent committee, told the board that the second installment tax bills for the 1931 real estate assessment must be mailed by Sept. 1 if the county expects the backing of the banks in disposing of warrants.

Con Men Rob Him of $2,500 Savings, Valet Charges

Joseph Morn, a valet for Walter B. Wolf, an attorney living at 209 Lake Shore drive, reported yesterday to police that two confidence men had robbed him of $2,500 savings. The men, John Lisenki and a man whom he knew only as Alex, persuaded him to draw his money from the postal savings bank, telling him that he would get more interest from another bank.

and so you think Detroit is a one-industry town?

WE'LL not argue the point about Detroit being the world's automobile capital. It is, and we're proud of it.

Let's see what old Uncle Sam has to say about Detroit's industries (we all trust him).

• • •

Uncle Sam will tell you that the YEARLY NON-AUTOMOTIVE industrial production of the Detroit area EXCEEDS THE TOTAL INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION OF ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI, one of the great industrial centers of America. And the old gentleman is also authority for the statement that (surprising as it may seem) ONLY ABOUT ONE-THIRD OF THE TOTAL INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT OF MICHIGAN IS ENGAGED IN MAKING AUTOMOBILES . . . and industrially, Detroit is Michigan.

Now, then, you begin to say to yourself . . . Just what are some of these hundreds of huge non-automotive industries in Detroit.

Then we have the Kelvinator Corporation . . . a giant that sold $16,500,000 worth of electric refrigerators in the last fiscal year.

Note the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Co., whose product lightens the burden of housewives the world over . . . the Detroit-Michigan Stove Company and the Detroit Vapor Stove Co., two of the world's largest, on whose gas ranges and kitchen stoves the meals of a nation are cooked, 365 days in the year.

Plus all of these you'll find the Michigan Alkali Co., whose cleaning compounds keep America spotless in a hundred different ways . . . the Timken Silent Automatic Co., whose oil burners, all through these depression years, have been installed in thousands of American homes . . . the Stinson Aircraft Corporation, a leader in the aviation industry . . . the Great Lakes Steel Corp., an industrial giant of first-rate importance, now operating at approximately 100 per cent of capacity, when the rest of steel is running about 36 per cent.

And, besides, we have such nationally famous cigar and tobacco plants as Scotten-Dillon Co. and Mazer-Cressman; the Semet-Solvay Co., alkali products; Berry Bros., with their world-famous varnishes and lacquers; Ferry-Morse Seed Company, the LARGEST SEED HOUSE IN THE WORLD; Acme White Lead & Color Works; Caille Motor Co., and Kermath Mfg. Co., with their marine engines; and the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., THE LARGEST OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD.

Leaders, every one of them, in their respective fields. But even these do not constitute all of Detroit's non-automotive industries by any means. Detroit also leads in the production of brass castings; electric irons, and salt that savors a nation's food. The value of the food products manufactured every year in Detroit exceeds the total yearly retail food sales of a great city like Los Angeles.

And so we might go on and on . . . yards of figures that explain Detroit . . . that tell you what a market it is . . . quoting Uncle Sam, always a very truthful gentleman.

Yes, Detroit is a city of diversified industries. And a top-notch leader in many. Detroit is busy, intensely so . . . in hundreds of factories . . . getting busier every hour as the tide of production mounts . . . its one and a half million people still smiling and buying and earning and spending.

And for guidance . . . daily guidance in their thought and their buying, they turn regularly (a great audience) every day and Sunday to the one newspaper that has faithfully served them and their fathers and grandfathers for more than a hundred years.

SPAIN WELCOMES CLAUDE BOWERS AS IDEAL ENVOY

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, May 22.—Claude G. Bowers, new American ambassador to Spain, reached Madrid today. At the end of this week or early next week he will appear at the former royal, now the national palace to present his credentials to President Alcala Zamora.

The arrival of the American envoy, who appears likely to establish a democratic tone in the relations between the two repulics, aroused immense curiosity. Spanish newspapers tonight prominently displayed Mr. Bowers' declaration on his arrival.

Oldest and Newest Republics.

"To me it is a great privilege to represent the oldest republic in the new world in the newest republic of the old world," he began. "Naturally the people of my country are deeply and sincerely interested in the process you are now engaged in here of building republican institutions along democratic lines. In writing my book 'Jefferson and Hamilton' I made an intensive study of the problems which confronted the American people during a similar period and naturally my personal attitude here is most sympathetic."

Bowers' devotion to the democratic ideal has been fully presented by the republican press. The possibility is welcomed of a revival of the cordiality which has been missing in Spanish-American relations since the late Alexander P. Moore "chummed" around with the king of Spain, though not exactly with the people of Spain.

Called Ideal Diplomat.

"Mr. Bowers always has defended the most advanced liberal doctrines," says one Spanish paper. "He will make an ideal diplomat. He is competent to feel and understand the restless urges of our young republic and translate them into sympathetic terms to his President and his people."

It is understood that negotiations for a treaty to settle long standing grievances between Spain and the United States have been postponed until after the world economic conference.

Call Truce in Strike.

SEVILLE, Spain, May 22.—(AP)—Interior Minister Casares announced today that the economic federation has agreed to "call a truce" in the general strike in protest against failure of the government to end a crime wave in Andalusia. Federation officials said the strike would be held in abeyance pending fulfillment of promises by the minister.

Police today fired revolvers to break up a demonstration against Casares during a funeral procession for a prominent manufacturer, who was assassinated Saturday because he led a movement to impel the government to take action against the crime wave.

W. S. Linns Take a Change of Venue in Divorce Case

Attorneys for Winfield Scott Linn, broker, and Mrs. Elise Rice Linn of Cleveland, who have a contested divorce action pending in the Circuit court, yesterday took a change of venue from Judge Frank Bicek to Judge Craig A. Hood. The case will go to trial Friday before a jury in Judge Hood's court, with the principal point in controversy the custody of Elise, 8 year old daughter of the couple.

AUSTRALIA PUTS FINANCIAL HOUSE ON SOUND BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, May 21.—Despite sporadic outbursts of public political temperaments in various Australian states, this country is definitely on the mend financially and industrially.

Victory of the secessionsists at the West Australian elections on April 8, coupled with the threatening attitude of strong groups in South Australia and Tasmania for secession, apparently has not mitigated yet against Australia's national rehabilitation schemes as set down in the three year premiers' plan.

Nor has the powerful influences of the socialization groups with the Australian Labor party clouded current activities and future prospects of trade revivals in primary and secondary industries.

Financial Position Better.

Encouraging financial positions of the commonwealth and the mother state, New South Wales, are disclosed in the latest federal treasury figures for the nine months of the financial year. In both spheres there is noted a continued improvement in revenue.

For the same period, New South Wales shows a deficit of $17,000,000 as against a deficit of $48,000,000 for a similar period ended March 31, 1932. Premier B. B. S. Stevens of the New South Wales government predicts that the budget estimate of a defit of $20,000,000 for the full fiscal year ending June 30 would be fulfilled, according to the premiers' plan.

General improvement in the reduction of governmental expenditures is definitely shown in social services, railway operation, interest charges, and state owned operations. Expenditures for food relief in all quarters has been mateurially reduced owing to an improvement in the idle situation.

Australia's unfunded debt position on March 31 was as follows: Treasury bills, Australia, $10,000,000; debentures, London, $50,000,000.

Federal government expenditures for the nine months ended March 31 included bounties and relief measures aggregating $15,000,000 and $10,000,000 for wheat growers and other primary producers.

Unless the country is menaced again by the powerful socialization influences that threatened to break up the premiers' plan signed by all state governments in April, 1931, all Australia should have state and federal budgets balanced according to the plan by June, 1934.

HITLER REVIEWS GERMAN FLEET ON NAVY DAY

BERLIN, May 22.—Germany celebrated Navy day today. Chancellor Hitler, Vice Chancellor von Papen, Premier Hermann Goering of Prussia, Minister of Propaganda Goebbels and Franz von Epp, Bavarian Nazi chief, reviewed the fleet at Kiel. Hitler was greeted with a 19 gun salute and received ovations from the population.

"Our desire for peace is as great as our determination to restore freedom and equal rights for Germany," Hitler said in a speech.

Nazis Win Church Election.

BERLIN, May 22.—(AP)—Early returns today from 60 of the 150 United Protestant provincial synod elections gave the German Christians [Nazis] a two to one majority over other parties. German protestantism, aside from the so-called sects, is divided into three main bodies, the Lutherans, the reformed churches, and the United Protestants.

Nazi Trooper Found Slain.

BAIL IS $100,000 FOR RACKETEER IN U. S. TAX CASE

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—Irving "Waxey Gordon" Wexler, wealthy beer distributor and all round racketeer, pleaded not guilty to income tax evasion today before Judge George W. Doddard in federal court and was held in $100,000 bail until Monday, June 5, when trial date may be set.

Tonight the overstuffed beer manufacturer was a prisoner in the federal house of detention, in quarters not nearly so comfortable as the eight room hunting lodge at White Lake, N. Y., from which he was rudely plucked on Sunday morning by federal agents.

The government indictment charges that Wexler owes more than $380,000 in taxes on his income for 1930 and 1931, but he blandly denied it.

"I paid every year," he said.

Joseph Aront and Henry Klein, the two men captured with Wexler in his hunting lodge on the lake, also appeared at police lineup. Later they started back upstate, guarded by troopers. They are held on charges of "consorting with known criminals."

HEALER DENIES GETTING MONEY THROUGH JUDGE

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—From an invalid's chair before the Vice President's desk, W. S. Leake, a San Francisco healer, today told the senate of his friendship with Federal Judge Harold Louderback, to whose defense he came in impeachment proceedings against the California jurist.

The witness spoke into a microphone. He said "not one cent" of the fees allowed to receivers and attorneys by the judge had gone to his pocket. Leake, a gray haired man, clad in pajamas, was taken to the senate chamber on a stretcher.

Judge Louderback himself probably will go on the stand tomorrow as the trial nears its close. Leake was charged in the house indictment with having recommended to Louderback that H. B. Hunter succeed Addison G. Strong as receiver for the Russell-Colvin brokerage company and with receiving $1,200 through John D. Short, who was Hunter's attorney.

Leake said a loan of $1,250 to him by W. L. Hathaway, Short's father-in-law, was a friendly act when his wife was seriously ill.

LEAGUE DELAYS QUIZ OF GERMAN DRIVE ON JEWS

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 22.—(AP)—The question of Germany's treatment of Jews in German Upper Silesia was postponed by the league of nations' council at a private session today to permit the German representative to receive further instructions from Berlin.

The delay also will make it possible for an inquiry to determine whether Franz Bernheim, the principal petitioner for relief, is a member of the German minority in Silesia and has a right to speak for the German Jews there. The question was temporarily submitted to the council's committee on minorities.

Bernheim, contending that Nazi measures against the Jews violates the German-Polish convention guaranteeing protection to the life and liberty of all inhabitants of German Upper Silesia, asked the league to declare discriminatory laws null and void.

JEWS APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT FOR AID IN GERMANY

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—A resolution asking President Roosevelt to "use his good offices to bring about a cessation of the wanton attacks upon the life, property, and honor of the Jews in Germany" was adopted unanimously today at the closing session of the American Jewish congress.

A resolution calling for the boycotting by American Jews of all German goods encountered rough going in a special subcommittee and the indications were that it might fail to reach a vote because of its controversial nature.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE CASE OF WIBO.

The federal Supreme court has decided that the wave length assigned to radio stations WIBO and WPCC, Chicago, shall be given to station WJKS of Gary, Ind. The radio control law provides that facilities shall be apportioned equally among the five zones into which the nation has been divided and within those zones equally among the states in proportion to their populations. As was pointed out repeatedly at the time the law was under consideration, the measure is stupid in that it assumes that the states are equal in their capacity to provide radio programs and it is therefore unfair to the public, even though it appears to establish a fair distribution of facilities throughout the country.

It was quite evident when the bill was in congress that the real motive behind it was the desire of congressmen to increase their patronage. In addition to political jobs, postoffices, and river and harbor projects, the members were to have their radio station privileges to hand out. They got them and the Supreme court has now said that they can keep them.

The transfer of WIBO's wave length was opposed by the radio commission's chief examiner, who heard the testimony at first hand. Thereupon the entire congressional delegation of Indiana, in the words of a particularly well informed observer, "camped on the commission's doorstep, bringing every conceivable pressure to force a decision in favor of WJKS. Attorneys for WJKS filed exceptions to the examiner's report and asked for oral argument. The commission did not grant the request and the Chicago stations never had an opportunity to argue the exceptions before the commission. The commission simply made a sudden decision in favor of WJKS, saying in a vague way that it upheld some of the exceptions and denied others. The case is the most outstanding example of bureaucratic tyranny in the commission's history."

The commission's finding was, in turn, appealed to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, which reversed it. Then came the appeal to the Supreme court, which reversed the Court of Appeals, and there the matter ends unless the commission or the Supreme court grants a rehearing at which points not brought out in the original action may be given consideration.

Meanwhile the effect of the decision has been most unfortunate. On the basis of distribution laid down in the radio law there are too many stations in the metropolitan areas of the country. The stations have been concentrated in these areas for the sufficient reasons that there the listeners are and there the talent needed for program making is to be found. If the aim of the radio law is to give the listeners the best programs available and to serve the largest number of homes, the present distribution of radio stations is far preferable to anything which will come from a mathematical division of facilities such as the law provides.

Indiana got a station from Illinois. The new station is not in or near Indianapolis, but in the northwestern corner of the state, as close to Chicago as it could be, in order to draw upon Chicago's pool of talent and be heard by Chicago listeners. If the purpose is to avoid interference, nothing has been gained. If the purpose is to develop home talent, nothing has been gained, and if the purpose is to serve the peculiar requirements of Indiana, nothing has been gained.

But something of immense value has been lost. Each station owner in states which have more than their quota has been frightened. He does not know when his license will be withdrawn and his wave length transferred to some one in another state. Without security of tenure he cannot afford to make the heavy investment in equipment and entertainment which he would otherwise make. The public will suffer and it will be the public of Indiana as well as the public of Illinois.

If the court or the commission will not reopen the case it is to be hoped that congress will amend the law. To do so, of course, would mean the sacrifice of some patronage, and it is not likely that any such altruism will be displayed unless radio listeners leave no doubt about what they want.

WILDER WILD LIFE.

Wild life in the Chicago region, not meaning the life of the urban or rural hoodlum, has been particularly diverting this season. The phenomena have not included an eagle on one of the building tops or a hawk eating the pigeons. [If the hard times do not soon break for the pigeons they'll be taking in each other's washing to survive.] The usual thrush has been Prisoner of Chillon in the office building well and the customary warblers were found getting a rugged meal off the Bedford stone of the upper stories. These are the usual occurrences.

The eccentricities, marking this spring for their own, have been most noted in the conduct of the dumb robins. This red breasted thrush is a good deal of a natural fool wherever he's found, but in a city he finds more loco weed than elsewhere. One pair built a nest in a Gary steel mill and the workers had to put a metal shield under the dumb clucks' house to protect it somewhat from the terrific heat.

Another pair chose the Buckingham fountain on the Chicago lake front just before the water was to be turned on for the season. Workers have built a cover to keep the nest out of the impending Niagara. Robins window fighting have been reported from all localities and householders have been painting their glass to stop such persistent idiocy.

There has always been a strong bond of sympathy between robins and people. Possibly they recognize similarities in mental infirmity and a common disposition to fix things so that the worst of it must be accepted as the best of it. Men have been known to stop building a house because a pair of robins started raising a family in a half-finished room. These birds can stop a freight car by nesting above one of the wheels. No doubt if two of them got in a philosopher's hair he would not dare go to the barber until the young were on the wing.

The new eccentricities of the robins may merely reflect what they think they have observed in man's behavior, an illustration of the common bond. They may be imitating Drs. Tugwell, Moley, and Ezekiel.

THE GAME OF THE CENTURY.

A smart inspiration in THE TRIBUNE sporting department will give Chicago, as an incident of the Fair, the baseball game of all time. The baseball managements could have found a million reasons why it could not be done but found every reason why it should be. The greatest players of the two major leagues will be selected to play an interleague game which will be class in championship.

There can be pause to admire the sportsmanship and acceptiveness of the managers who took to the idea and made its execution possible. It requires a rearrangement of schedules. It could have been expected, in normal prospect, that the schedules would have been regarded as iron bound. Whenever any adventure in the unusual is proposed in amateur sport, particularly in the professorially controlled college sports, convention is virtually insurmountable. The pedagogic mind is a closed mind, curiously enough. The baseball managers made no difficulties.

These managers are not in the game entirely for their health. One considerable purpose of baseball is profits. The reflection may be that the profit-seeking motive is always the most adventurous, the most open to suggestion, and has the greatest willingness to seek ideas and undertake enterprise. The game is scheduled to be played July 6. Hitters who cannot be stopped will face pitchers who cannot be hit. The man who made the invincible sword will meet the man who made the impenetrable armor.

The ball may be always out of the lot or there may be no runners reaching first. It's good the day is close to the longest of the year with the daylight saving added. The scoreless tie may run into unpredictable innings or within nine innings it may contain the world's record box of hits and runs. Take it any way and it is the game of the century.

WE PAY AND THEY GET.

The four states which have contributed most heavily to the federal treasury through the new beer tax are, in order, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and Illinois. Here is one more demonstration of the fact that the revenues of the government come in overwhelming proportion from a few states. The principle holds true for the income tax, the corporation tax, and now for the beer tax. More than half of all the money which the government collected from beer has come from the four states mentioned.

The unequal distribution of the tax burden might be justified if the expenditures of the government were apportioned among the states with some view to their contributions. The fact is, of course, that the populous states pay and the benefits go to the backward and beggar states which contribute little. The government draws its revenues from New York, Chicago, and the other metropolitan areas and spends its money in the Tennessee and Colorado valleys.

BOYCOTTING THE CHICAGO FAIR.

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

The effort of the Minneapolis Federation of Men Teachers to promote a boycott on Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition strikes us as slightly silly. If the federation hopes to punish Chicago for the manner in which it has scrambled up its school affairs, well and good; we have no doubt that a boycott, if it assumed large enough proportions, would turn the trick.

The federation, however, must be credited with worthier motives. It is plainly and understandably moved by the unhappy plight of Chicago's teachers and is seeking, as best it can, to speed that happy day when they will be paid regularly and in full for their services to the city. This is an extremely worthy purpose, and we are glad that the members of the federation are so solicitous of the welfare of the teachers of Chicago. Nevertheless, it is a little difficult for us to understand how a movement intended to foredoom the World's Fair to failure can materially help Chicago to render justice to its teachers.

Whether Chicago should have undertaken the Fair in the first place, when it could not find funds to pay its teachers, is beside the point. The point is that Chicago has invested money in the Fair, and that if the Fair fails the city will be in a worse predicament than it was previously. There are thousands of Chicagoans who expect to profit from the Fair, and most of them are potential taxpayers. Just how they will be in a better position to pay their taxes, and thus help Chicago pay its teachers, if the Fair is a dreadful flop, is something of a mystery.

It is a strange variety of logic which insists that the best way to aid a city in solving its financial difficulties is to cut its citizens off from the opportunity to do a little extra business. We do not, of course, take the federation's talk of boycott very seriously. That it will frighten Chicago into finding the money for teachers' salaries it has been frantically seeking for many months is hardly probable. But we could have hoped, from an organization such as the federation, for something a little more rational in the way of aid for Chicago's teachers than a movement designed, in the last analysis, to penalize the city as a whole.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GREENWICH POETS in New York held a poets' fair and stuck their poems up on the wall, some of them priced at one hundred dollars. Well, why not? Artists hold exhibitions and price their paintings all the way up to five thousand dollars, ten thousand or what have you. It takes as much brains to produce a poem as it does a picture. Then why shouldn't the poets charge a paltry hundred dollars? We regret to report that the poets who put the $100 sign over their poetry compromised in many cases and exchanged their poems for a hot dog sandwich. Poets must live. Why? you ask. Well, for the same reason that artists must live. Or financiers. Or captains of industry. Or movie picture kings and queens. Or radio announcers. Or the unemployed. There's something about living that makes most of us eager to enjoy it. But why again? We give it up, people seem so much happier when they're dead.

WIRE-HAIRED TERRIER LAMENT.

Soon my Wire will be a father—
And from all the fuss and bother
You'd imagine that he'd eaten
Poisoned chives.
The impending innovation
He's objecting to plurality
Of wives.

Though he says that he is not, he Keeps on thinking of a Scotty.
It's a canine technicality,
I'm sure.
Had I sensed his yen for heather
I'd have kept him on his tether—
And away from his impromptu
Paramour.

He defines his current mating
As a put up job he's hating;
Repetitions he'll decidedly
Avoid.
Now just why in Hades does he
Love that little highland hussy
When he's pedigreed and wire-haired,

DALE FISHER.

"FIVE YEAR OLD HOG Weighing 1,129 Pounds Comes to Market."—Headline. Which reminds us of the city man who was down in the country watching a farmer feeding his pigs. "How long," asked the city man, "will it take to get one of those hogs fat?" "Oh, five or six years," said the farmer. "Great Scott!" gasped the city man, "that's an awful long time!" "I know it is," said the farmer, "but shucks! what's time to a hog."

AND NOW, poor old Illinois is ordered by the government to pay out $35,000,000 right away for sewage treatment plants for the sanitary canal. Ah, friends, how true it is that to those that hath shall be added and from those that hath not shall be taken away even that which they have not. Seelah.

"AND HOW IS YOUR FARM?" we asked old Russell Ross yesterday. "The farm in dear old Indiana, where the moon shines bright tonight along the Wabash." "Well," said Mr. Ross pleasantly but a trifle sadly, "I think it is still there. I rowed over it yesterday in a boat and sometimes I would shove a pole down and it always struck something which seemed like ground. If it was ground as I suspect I can truly say my farm is still there. But I cannot say it is along the Wabash. My farm is the Wabash. Oh, it's a fine farm, but I made a mistake this year in planting corn instead of water lilies and bass and perch." "But remember," said we, "that through the sycamores the candlelights are gleaming, on the banks of the Wabash far away." "I have no words in which to reply," said Mr. Ross with great feeling as he looked up at the sky and sadly noted that the rain was still falling. "All I can say is if Washington still insists on the back to the farm movement we shall need a much larger navy."

"35,057,699 TELEPHONES in Use in Entire World."—Headline. Interesting, of course, but how many of that number begin a conversation with "Guess who this is?" The statistics are silent on this important point, but we would venture to say it was about 33,298,742.

RELATIVITY.

The ancient world was a new world when
It dawned upon the sight of early men.
All words describing age are relative
And relative is the significance they give.
The sun is old if measured but by years,
Yet every golden dawn that now appears
Flushes the east with freshness and desire,
Enkindling new a young and living fire.
The stars are old, far older than the earth,
Stupendous years stretch onward from their birth,
Yet to the eyes of childhood stars are young
And all those bright galaxies that are hung.
To the young plowman on the hills at dawn
The new light of the morning shines upon
Let us cease measuring seasons but by years,
Stars, suns, and moons once known to ancient seers,
Preserve a freshness never growing old,

CLARENCE MILLIGAN.

MUSSOLINI has evolved a ten year peace pact. One of the rules ought to be something forbidding the duce from rattling his tin sword on quiet nights and keeping all the neighbors awake.

AND WE USED TO SAY there was nothing sure but death and taxes. But nowadays we are not so certain about death unless we look after it ourselves, but you never heard of anybody jumping from the seventeenth story in order to pay his taxes.

GROWTH OF CHILDREN.

It is well known that children grow at different speeds, at different periods, between infancy and maturity. Girls grow faster than boys at certain ages. At other ages the order is reversed. At certain ages the growth is principally in length and at others in weight; sometimes the tendency is to gain in height and at others in breadth of shoulders.

Furthermore, there is an unevenness in the rate of growth of different parts of the body and of different structures. At one age the head grows unduly; at another, the nose: at another, the jaws. At one age the feet pitch in and grow at a rate that makes parents wonder how many hides will be required to make a pair of shoes for Junior when he gets his growth. In certain periods the bones grow unduly fast. At other times it is some other structure in the body.

It is not so well known that weight fluctuates at different hours of the day and night, and the rate of increase varies in different seasons of the year. The weight is at the minimum just before breakfast. It may be we gain in weight by sleeping long and well, but, even so, we wake from each sleep somewhat lighter than when we went into it. As to seasonal variation in rate of growth there has been some difference of opinion. Emerson said he thought there was not much seasonal variation and such as there was resulted from the greater prevalence of children's diseases in the different seasons.

Ten years ago the United States public health service undertook a comprehensive study of the health of people living in Hagerstown, Md. An important part of the study related to the size and weight of children in the schools. This study was followed sufficiently long to cover the progress of some children from kindergarten age through the school years.

Statisticians have been analyzing the results for years and periodically they issue valuable, carefully weighed reports on different phases of the questions involved. A recent one by Dr. C. E. Palmer covers seasonal rate of growth. Autumn is given as the period of most rapid growth. October 6 is about the midday of the period of most rapid growth.

The rate drops rapidly during November. The December rate of growth is about half that of November. During January, February, and March children grow almost but not quite as rapidly as during December. The rate of growth in April is only one-half that of December and bottom is touched during May. The rise starts in June. It is slow. Likewise that of July. In August the increase is rapid and this rapidity of increase continues during September. Only about four months is required to reach the October peak, while about eight months is required for the drop to the May low. There is no satisfactory explanation of why children grow so slowly in May and so rapidly in October.

LEAKING VALVES.

2. What does a heart murmur mean?

3. If the heart is enlarged can this condition be relieved?

4. How would it affect one's health and breathing?

REPLY.

1. Of the many causes, rheumatism ranks first and sore throat second.

2. As a rule it indicates a leaking valve.

3. Probably not. That may be fortunate. A leaking heart must be large in order to do the extra work.

4. It may cause asthma. It may cause serious illness or worse. Proper answers as to a given person should be based on conditions shown by a careful examination. General answers are likely to mislead.

DIETING IS FUTILE.

H. L. writes: What foods should one avoid in a case of psoriasis?

REPLY.

INTERPRETATION OF WILL.

Moline, Ill., May 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A will was executed by a sister leaving her estate to a brother, and at his death it was to be equally divided among his children. A certain property of the estate left to the brother was sold, with he himself signing the deed and also all his present living children signing deed. 1. Could any future children come in for their share of the sold property? 2. If future children can come in for a claim isn't there a law in Illinois whereby this can be prevented after property was sold? 3. Would a tax deed properly written exclude all possible claims? J. G.

1. Depends upon whether the will was so worded as to indicate that "children" meant children then living or included after-born children.

2. We cannot give advice of any value without having the wording of the will before us.

3. In general, one of several co-owners is not permitted to assert a tax title against the others.

PURCHASE CONTRACT.

Maywood, Ill., May 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a bungalow in 1927 and sold same on a contract in 1928. The purchaser, the same year, without consulting me, took out the furnace and had a new one installed. The new one he only partially paid for and upon his vacating the premises (1) with a constable's order the furnace dealer removed the furnace. What is my legal status in the matter? 2. Against whom, if any one, should I take legal action? I have had a new furnace installed at my own expense. O. E. M.

1. It seems probable that with proper resistance you could have prevented this order from being entered or have secured its reversal on appeal, but since the order was permitted to stand it probably is conclusive against your holding the contractor liable. The constable is the officer who serves the papers of the justice of the peace or a police magistrate. We assume that you mean that the order was entered by one of the latter officials.

2. Against the tenant. If he has sufficient assets to make court proceedings worth while you should employ an attorney.

CHICAGO.—"And they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves aprons." This quotation from Genesis appears on a green panel at the left side of a wreath encircled monogram in the Merchant Tailors' building at the World's Fair. On the other side in a similar panel is another which reads: "Unto Adam also and his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them." Yesterday the merchant tailors dedicated their pretty little house, and they pointed with much pride to the above scriptural sayings as evidence that theirs is the oldest of all industries.

The India building was opened yesterday and it took ten Columbian guards to keep the throng of people in line. They had sat around for hours on wheelbarrows and lumber lines waiting for the cups of India tea which were given away.

Tomorrow will be Maine's big day at the Fair, and Gov. Cleaves of that state is here to take part in the ceremonies.

Three live sharks make an interesting addition to the aquaria in the Fisheries building. They were caught in nets at the fisheries commission station at Morehead City, N. C.

The duke and duchess of Veragua and the ducal party went to the World's Fair by water.

Thick as the proverbial leaves of Vallombrosa are the protests against Sunday opening and the threats submitted by pastors of churches, Christian Endeavor societies, and other similar organizations. When the communications first began coming in they simply declared against Sunday opening. Next the writers demanded injunction proceedings. Now they have reached the third stage and are declaring a boycott against the Exposition. They declare they will not attend the Exposition themselves and will use their influence to deter others from visiting the Fair at any time if it be kept open Sundays.

Wheelmen who want to get to the Fair on their machines will be taken care of. There is now in course of construction a bicycle "stable," opening out into Stony Island avenue, where wheels may be checked for a small consideration.

MAY 23, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Jacob M. Loeb, president of the school board, shot the lid off city hall politics. In a sensational message which he read to the board of education he broke with the mayor and Fred Lundin, uncovering a big and detailed plot to raid the school system. He showed how Lundin is plotting to take over the positions of attorney, business manager, secretary, architect, and all their assistants in the offices of the board of education. He read a letter from the mayor which, he said, was proof of a plot to disrupt the civil service and to control even the pettiest jobs in the school system.

WAR SUMMARY.—Paris reports heavy artillery actions on the Chemin-des-Dames. The Germans were repelled in an attempt to retake ground in the Champagne. London reports successful raids and the destruction of a German ammunition dump. Berlin reports repulse of the British at Bullecourt and Croisilles. The French in Nauroy regions also were repelled. Berlin says. Rome reports continued of vicious fighting in the Trentino and the repulse of all Austrian efforts to advance.

WASHINGTON.—The use of old ammunition left over from the Spanish-American war was responsible for the premature bursting of shells fired from the St. Louis, Mongolia and other armed merchantmen, according to a statement issued by Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

NEW LIGHT ON THE ST. LAWRENCE TREATY.

Wilmette, Ill., May 19.—Section 3 of article 4 of the constitution of the United States reads:

"No new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state, nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned as well as of congress."

The federal government, possessing no jurisdiction within a state which has not been definitely ceded to it, possesses no right, under the constitution, to clothe some other party with jurisdiction which it does not itself possess. Or, not possessing jurisdiction, it cannot obtain it merely by the act of contracting with some other party to exercise it, whether that party be an individual, a corporation, or a foreign government. For example, the federal government could not by treaty sell, pledge, lease, or otherwise dispose of, let us say, the lower part of Michigan to the dominion of Canada without the consent of the legislature of Michigan and action of congress, regardless of whether the President signed the treaty and the senate adhered to it. It is being contracted to perform an unlawful act, for the constitution specifically provides that no new state [no new jurisdiction] shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any state without the consent of the legislature of the state concerned and of congress, and the senate is not congress.

There is at present pending a treaty with Canada whereby that country and the United States will join in forming and erecting a new state, a new jurisdiction with sovereign rights, responsible to neither government nor to their courts, and to this state the two governments agree to deliver jurisdiction in and over territories now comprising states of the United States, but without the consent of congress or of the legislatures of the states concerned. For instance, the division engineer at Chicago states that inasmuch as there is no means of measuring diversion of water at the shore of the lake, those shores, under the treaty, are taken to extend to the control gates at Lockport, Ill., an interior city within the exclusive jurisdiction of the state of Illinois. Or, the new state is given jurisdiction within the state of Illinois which is equal to or superior to that of the legislature of the state itself.

Should the treaty with Canada become effective and a new state thereby be erected within the territory of Illinois the people of Illinois, acting through the legislature, could declare the constitution of the United States to be null and void and thereupon reassume their original status of citizens of a free and independent state.

In equity any contractual instrument which does not specifically provide a penalty for violation and for which no penalty can be imposed by law, upon deliberate violation stands null and void, for no contract can be binding on one which is not likewise binding on all.

TRANSPORTATION TO THE FAIR.

Chicago, May 15.—A man with a family will have a heck of a time climbing into the jammed buses to get to the World's Fair. It will end up by his taking the Illinois Central down to Van Buren or Randolph on some point south and then paying an extra fare on the street cars home. DOUBTFUL.

THE CHICAGO AVENUE TUNNEL.

Chicago, May 21.—Every civic organization in Chicago has been notified by the Chicago Civil Service Protective association of the contemplated action of the city council to turn over to private contractors the work of completing the Chicago avenue water tunnel project, thus depriving 1,800 civil service employés, who are residents and taxpayers of Chicago, of their daily employment and filling their places with "imported" nonresident labor. At the same time it is planned by the city fathers to turn over also to the private contractors city owned machinery and equipment used on this project valued at approximately $4,000,000, which has been designed and perfected by city employés.

This contemplated action savors of political spoils to a degree that has no comparative rival in the city's history for many years. Past experiences have taught Chicago that private contractors do not undertake city work because of civic pride—they undertake this work only for profit. Looking back into the initial construction of the Chicago avenue water tunnel project it is found that to date seven years of labor has gone into this project and up to the present time, noted authorities on this subject agree, this project is a model of its kind and has been performed at a comparatively low cost.

Should this work be turned over to private contractors the results of such an ill-advised move are manifold. First, 1,800 city employés, who are residents and taxpayers of Chicago, will be displaced with itinerant laborers; second, another major civic scandal will shortly unfold to besmirch the reputation of Chicago; third, the comparative low cost of completing this project will in reality become a high priced "white elephant" before final collections of "extras" are placed into the pockets of private contractors; fourth, replacements of damaged, destroyed and disappearing city equipment now being used on this job will more than eat up any proposed savings estimated by the aldermen as they scan the bids submitted by private contractors. GEORGE FITZGERALD,
President Chicago Civil Service Protective Association.

JUST SO.

Chicago, May 20.—After three months in Chicago I find myself most impressed with the loyal spirit and friendliness of the people of Chicago. THE TRIBUNE I consider the most progressive, interesting, and diversified paper I've found on my travels, which include practically every metropolis in these United States.

However, I am not precisely in accord with the decisions of the judges in the "Queen" contest, inasmuch as it is my opinion that approximately half of the first twenty winners must have been selected by judges who left their spectacles at home. He who perceives charm, personality, and character in the features of some of them is a better and more discerning man than I.

PARENTS ASSAIL BOGAN'S REFUSAL OF SENIOR HIGH

Push Fight for Conversion of Hirsch Junior.

The South Shore Parents' association has declared war on Supt. William J. Bogan and his assistants because their children have not been given high school facilities. The association, of which Mrs. Ray Gibson, 7719 Colfax avenue, is president, demands that Hirsch Junior High school at 7740 Ingleside avenue be made a senior high.

It is pointed out that 200 children of the first year high school age have been placed in various elementary schools in the south shore area while seventh and eighth grade pupils are allowed to enjoy the complete facilities of Hirsch Junior High school. Supt. Bogan and his assistant, Don Rogers, in charge of building survey, took this method of utilizing many of the vacant elementary classrooms last January.

Threaten to Withdraw Children.

"These children are placed in makeshift branches," said Mrs. Gibson, "with much younger children in the same school. They are given no choice of a language to study and other high school advantages are denied them. Many of the mothers and fathers are threatening to take their children out of school."

The 200 children in question are those who completed eighth grade work in February. Mrs. Gibson declared that the superintendent's office was planning to treat the June eighth grade graduates in the same way.

Mr. Bogan and his assistants assert that conversion of Hirsch into a senior high school would "wreck the system." Mrs. Gibson and her organization say the educators are not progressive enough to solve the problem in a practical fashion.

Built at Cost of $2,000,000.

Hirsch Junior High school, with capacity for 2,100 pupils, was built in 1924 at a cost of more than $2,000,000. It is constructed in the sumptuous "club house" style that has characterized Chicago's junior high schools. The observer notices upon entering the main lobby the comfortable lounging chairs and settees grouped about the wood burning fireplace.

The city council on Feb. 1, unanimously adopted a resolution asking that the parents' request for converting Hirsch into a senior high school be carried out. The citizens' committee, which spent several months in analyzing the question of school housing, reported that Mrs. Gibson's plan is economical and practical.

Among the organizations that have indorsed the plan are: South Shore Chamber of Commerce, East 75th street and East 79th street business men's associations, South Bryn Mawr and Triangle Improvement associations, Grand Crossing Chamber of Commerce, Stony Island Business Men's association, South Shore Real Estate board, South Shore Renting Men's association, Seventh Ward Boosters and McShane and South Shore American Legion posts.

O'HARA MURDER TRIAL TO BEGIN LATE THIS WEEK

CRIMINAL COURT.

Harry Ragan, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Edward Yonaitis, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Joe Piano, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary; Charles Robinson, robbery, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Ralph O'Hara, business agent for the motion picture operators' union, will go on trial late this week for the murder of Frederick Oser, head of a rebel faction of the union, who was shot to death in the union headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue on March 24. Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court agreed yesterday on motion of the state to hold the case on call.

The trial will be started after the completion of the embezzlement trial of Jesse Binga, Negro banker, which is expected to be finished by Thursday.

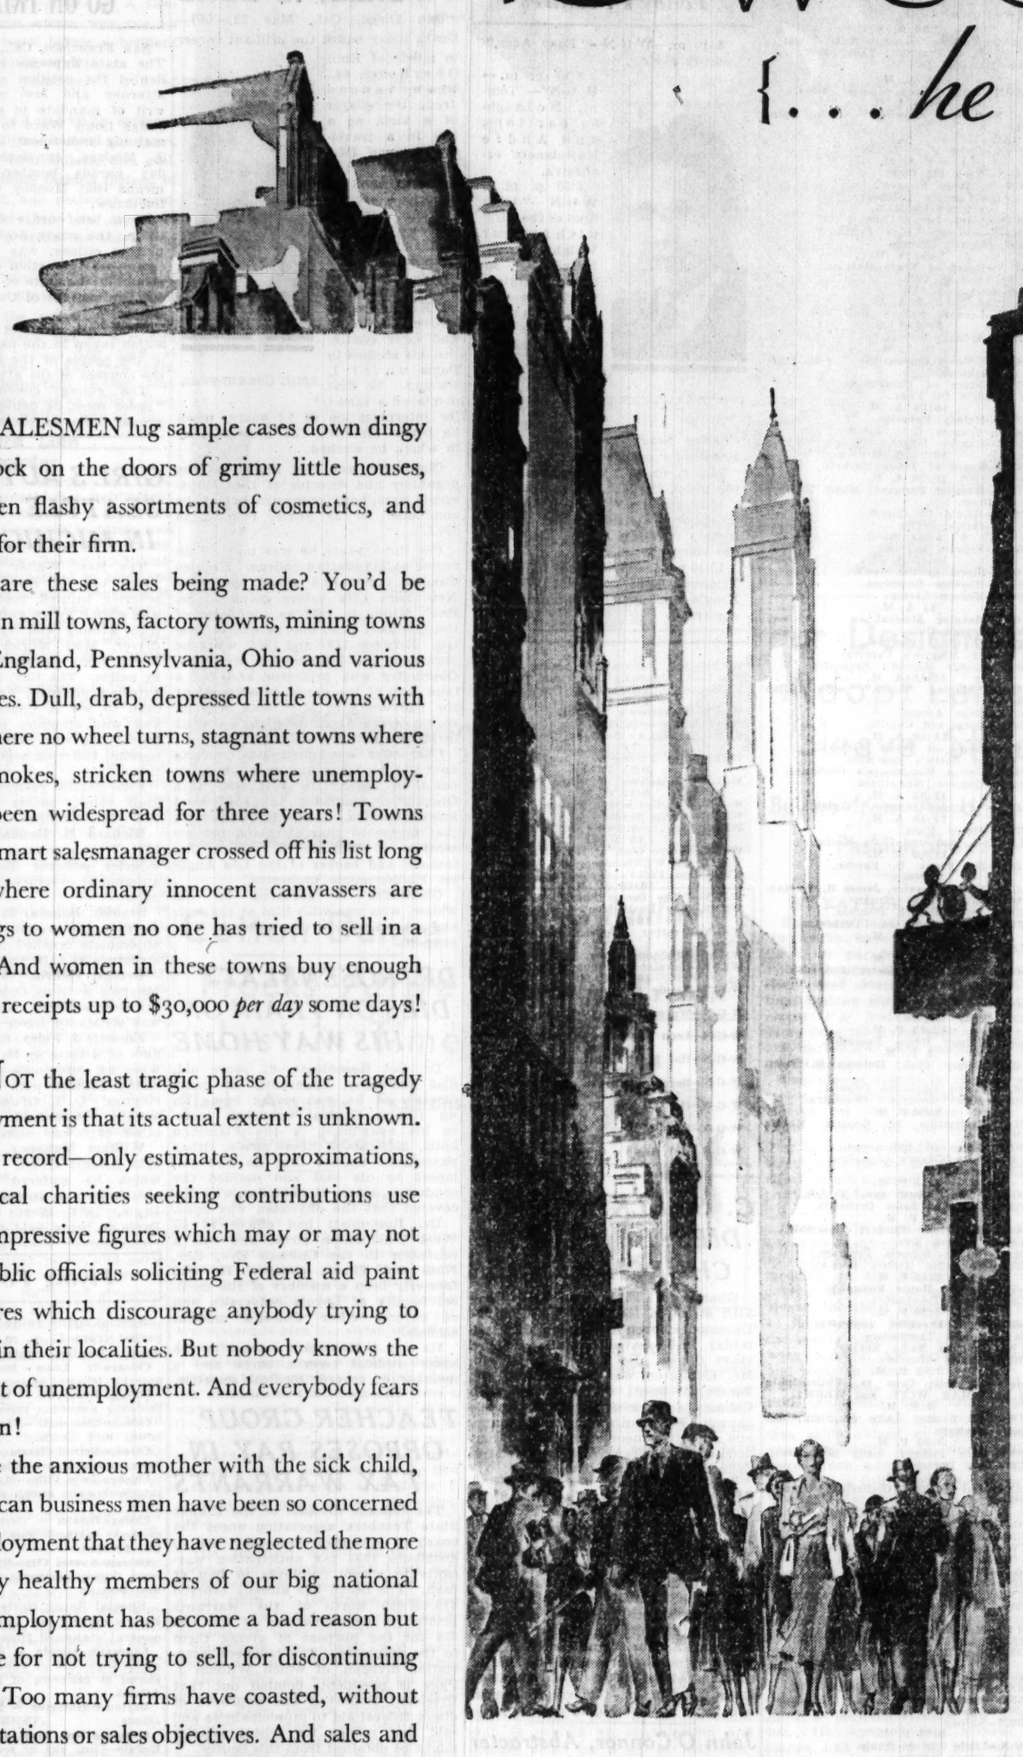
WABASH

Tell it to Sweeney! {...he has a job!}



SALESMEN lug sample cases down dingy streets, knock on the doors of grimy little houses, show women flashy assortments of cosmetics, and make sales for their firm.

Where are these sales being made? You'd be surprised! In mill towns, factory towns, mining towns—in New England, Pennsylvania, Ohio and various eastern states. Dull, drab, depressed little towns with factories where no wheel turns, stagnant towns where no stack smokes, stricken towns where unemployment has been widespread for three years! Towns that every smart salesmanager crossed off his list long ago—but where ordinary innocent canvassers are selling things to women no one has tried to sell in a long time! And women in these towns buy enough to bring the receipts up to $30,000 per day some days!

NOT the least tragic phase of the tragedy of unemployment is that its actual extent is unknown. There is no record—only estimates, approximations, guesses. Local charities seeking contributions use large and impressive figures which may or may not be true. Public officials soliciting Federal aid paint black pictures which discourage anybody trying to do business in their localities. But nobody knows the actual extent of unemployment. And everybody fears the unknown!

And like the anxious mother with the sick child, some American business men have been so concerned with unemployment that they have neglected the more economically healthy members of our big national family. Unemployment has become a bad reason but ready excuse for not trying to sell, for discontinuing advertising. Too many firms have coasted, without plans, expectations or sales objectives. And sales and business have suffered in consequence.

In all conservatism, this we know:

—that some two-thirds of the workers in this country are still gainfully employed, still enjoying incomes, still able to buy.

—that the rise of savings bank deposits and the increase of money in circulation indicate far more buying power than actual buying.

—that good advertising, prudently employed in selected markets, still attracts customers, still makes sales, still betters business.

TELL it to Sweeney, another "Forgotten Man" . . . he still has a job. He lives in and around New York City and earns from six thousand dollars a year down. His numbers include twelve million people—the most fortunate, best off twelve million in the world today. His job is and has been safer, because he does so many things which must be done even in a depression. His income does not depend on agriculture or the price of any one crop. He doesn't live in a one-industry town, or off any one industry. His firm's factory elsewhere may be closed, but its New York office is still open and running. The local manufactures which support him are for the most part secondary, supplying consumption goods closer to actual demand. He works in thousands of offices and stores. His banks are open, solvent, and conspicuously few of them have failed. Millions of visitors come to his home town every year, keep their money in his banks, spend their money in his hotels, shops, and amusement places. A great share of the export and import business of the whole country comes through New York. All these factors make his job, help him keep it. He has felt the depression least of any American. He is still open to new ideas, new suggestions, new susceptibilities. And today he feels that the country is going places and good times are on the way back.

Best of all from your standpoint, he reads for the most part one newspaper. This newspaper gives your advertising access to two-thirds of the families in New York City—an overwhelming majority of the Sweeneys and the Stuyvesants, too! Alone and by itself it reaches a majority of prospects for almost everything. Its influence is great enough to be felt by any dealer, or any number of dealers here. Its small pages magnify your advertising, bring it to more eyes and more minds, make it do more work per line or per dollar spent. Its cost is at an all time low! We have a strong suspicion, furthermore, that unemployment has affected News readers remarkably little! The paper still continues to sell goods in amazing quantity, to pay big profits on advertising investment. Did you know, incidentally, that The News, tabloid, was first in display advertising among all morning papers in the first quarter of this year?

Tell It to Sweeney—in The News, to get more business out of America's best market—now!

FAMILY IS GIVEN $700,000 IN WILL OF E. J. WARNER

Estate Admitted to Probate in Lake County.

The will of Ezra Joseph Warner, head of Sprague Warner & Co., who died on May 9, was admitted to probate yesterday in Lake county by Acting Probate Judge Theodore Fordy at Waukegan. The will lists $600,000 in personal property and $100,000 in real estate.

The widow, Mrs. Marion Hall Warner, 440 East Walnut avenue, Lake Forest, is willed $50,000 outright and two-thirds of the income of the remainder of the estate, which is left in trust with the Northern Trust company. The residual income is equally divided among three children, Mrs. Marion Warner Dennehy, Mrs. Jane Warner Dick, and Ezra J. Warner Jr. On the death of Mrs. Warner the trust will terminate and the principal will be equally divided among the children.

Five Wills Are Filed Here.

Five wills were filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Cook County Probate court yesterday and were admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. The wills are:

WALTER L. ROLOSON, died May 15. Estate, $130,000, to nephew, Robert M. Roloson Sr., $25,000; to Adele M. Roloson, $10,000; to Maud Rutter, $10,000; residue to grandnephew, Robert M. Roloson Jr. Robert M. Roloson Sr. is the executor.

THOMAS J. CUDMORE, died March 11. Estate, $12,000 to any heirs at law $1 each; residue equally to the Little Sisters of the Poor, the Catholic Charities of Chicago, and the Catholic Bishop of Chicago. William Bertha is the executor.

GEORGE HANS, died Jan. 27. Estate, $2,500, to sister, Katie Hans, $200, to five nephews and three nieces, $200 each, residue to niece, Marie Biller. Catrines de Haan is the executor.

CLARENCE BUEL, EDITOR, WRITER DIES, AGED 82

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Clarence Clough Buel, former newspaper man and former associate editor of the Century magazine, died today at his Manhattan home after an illness of several months. He was 82 years old.

Buel was born July 29, 1850, in Leona, N. Y. When he was 18 years old his family moved to Minneapolis, where he was one of the first students to enter the newly organized University of Minnesota.

In 1881 he became assistant editor of the Century magazine, and later became associate editor, succeeding Robert U. Johnson.

Buel is survived by his second wife, the former Miss Maria Torhillon, and their daughter, Miss Victoria Buel, and by two sons and two daughters of his first marriage to the former Miss Alice Snow, who are Thomas Buel, Richard Van Wyck Buel, Mrs. Henry Clapp Smith and Mrs. Vivian Burnett.

Lorenzo Gove, Known to Dartmouth Alumni, Dies

Laconia, N. H., May 22.—(AP)—Lorenzo D. Gove, 71, of Hanover, known to thousands of Dartmouth alumni through his long connection with the Hanover inn, died at the Laconia hospital today. He had been ill several months. He was unmarried.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

LAWYERS CLASH OVER CONDITION OF J. W. HARRIMAN

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The true condition of Joseph W. Harriman, recuperating from superficial knife wounds, self-inflicted, was the subject of acrimonious debate between his attorney, George S. Leisure, and United States Attorney George Z. Medalie today when the indicted banker's case was called before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Mr. Harriman's trial on an indictment which charges him with having made thirteen false entries in the books of the Harriman National bank, which he founded and headed, finally was placed on the calendar for next Monday. It probably will be adjourned again at that time to permit Mr. Medalie to conclude the prosecution of Charles E. Mitchell on charges of income tax evasion.

"I would like to know just what the defendant's real condition is, and to that end I would like to have some competent evidence presented concerning it," Mr. Medalie asked.

"I would like to know," retorted Mr. Leisure, "if Mr. Medalie wants to go to trial this morning."

ELLSWORTH, THE POLAR EXPLORER, MARRIES TODAY

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—Lincoln Ellsworth, explorer, who flew across the north pole in a dirigible with the Amundsen-Nobile expedition, and Miss Mary Louise Ulmer of Pottsville, Pa., will be married tomorrow morning in the Church of the Transfiguration.

Mr. Ellsworth crossed the north pole in the dirigible Norge on May 12, 1926 his forty-fifth birthday. He now is engaged in plans for a flight over the south polar region.

He will be accompanied on the expedition by Bernt Balchen, trans-Atlantic and polar flier, who is on his way to the base of the flight in the Bay of Whales.

E. OBERHOFFER, NOTED IN MUSIC WORLD, IS DEAD

San Diego, Cal., May 22.—(AP)—Death today ended the brilliant career in music of Emil Oberhoffer, 66, who advanced from the player of a viola as a boy in a traveling German Passion play to the foremost rank of American orchestra conductors.

A native of Munich, Bavaria, Oberhoffer early in life was a pupil of Father Cyril Kistler in his native Germany and later continued his studies in Paris under J. Philipp. Te first displayed a talent for interpretation at 12 years, when he began directing the musical play in which he worked.

EMIL OBERHOFFER

Oberhoffer was best known as the organizer and director of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which he conducted for 19 years, retiring in 1922.

For three years he was musical director at Manhattan college. He also directed comic and grand operas in New York City before going to St. Paul, Minn., in 1897 as conductor of the Schubert Club chorus and orchestra. Between 1897 and 1903, when he organized the Minneapolis orchestra, Oberhoffer was professor and for a time dean of the music department at the University of Minnesota and director of the Apollo club male chorus in Minneapolis.

Oberhoffer conducted 170 concerts annually at home and in cities from coast to coast. In 1923 and 1926 Oberhoffer conducted the Hollywood Bowl orchestra. It was his work with that orchestra that attracted the attention of William A. Clark Jr., founder and backer of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra.

Oberhoffer is survived by his widow, who was with him at the end, and a brother, Otto Oberhoffer of Minneapolis.

DR. ROSENBLATT DIES ON TRAIN ON HIS WAY HOME

Dr. Sol Rosenblatt, 61 years old, died yesterday, apparently of heart disease, as he was riding home on an Illinois Central suburban train to his apartment in the Flamingo hotel, 5520 South Shore drive. Other passengers noticed that he had collapsed in his seat and notified the conductor, Harry Buckbinder, who discovered that the physician was dead.

Dr. Rosenblatt had offices at 55 West Washington street and was a professor in the Chicago Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat college. He had formerly been a member of the medical faculty of Loyola university and of several other Chicago medical schools.

He was a lieutenant colonel in the army medical reserve corps and a member of several medical societies.

TEACHER GROUP OPPOSES PAY IN TAX WARRANTS

The Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' association urged the board of education yesterday not to distribute 1933 tax anticipation warrants to school employés in lieu of cash. The board has already ordered $10,400,000 worth of the warrants printed in denominations of $50 and $25 for the purpose of giving them to the employés. The teachers' association division, of which William J. Page is president, pointed out that President Roosevelt has approved of direct federal aid to municipalities and said that money for school salaries might be obtained from this source.

HIGH COURT'S RULING FORCES MOONEY TO GO ON TRIAL TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., May 22.—(AP)—The state Supreme court late today denied the petition of John O'Gara, attorney and law professor, for a writ of mandate to compel Superior Judge Louis Ward to dismiss the remaining indictment against Thomas J. Mooney, convicted Preparedness day parade bomber. The decision means that Mooney will go on trial tomorrow.

In a brief order denying the petition, the court declared O'Gara, a private citizen, was "unqualified to commence the action on behalf of the people of the state of California without the consent of the state attorney general."

State law requires that any legal action taken in the name or on behalf of the people of the state must have the consent of the attorney general.

The ruling concluded that the "order must be denied for want of a proper party as plaintiff."

GIRL'S AUTO HITS SEATTLE PASTOR IN MICHIGAN AVE.

The Rev. Walter Bishop Bell, 60 years old, of Seattle, Wash., was severely injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at Michigan avenue and 11th street. The driver, Miss Muriel Connelly, 1258 North State parkway, was not held by police. The Rev. Mr. Bell, a Presbyterian minister, had come to Chicago to see A Century of Progress and was stopping at the Congress hotel. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital suffering a possible skull fracture.

Five deaths yesterday brought the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 358. The victims:

Stanley Bakota, 21 years old, 2426 North Lotus avenue. Killed when his automobile crashed into the elevated structure at 19th and Paulina streets.

George Henris, 75 years old, 217 Maypole avenue, Oak Park. Died of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck in River Forest.

Emmett J. Foley, 62 years old, manager of a farm at Barrington. Killed when an automobile in which he was riding collided with another in Barrington. D. L. Grundset, 3214 Maple avenue, Brookfield, driver of the other car, was unhurt.

William Mahoney, 39 years old, 5009 Altgeld street. Died of injuries which he suffered May 19 when struck by the automobile of Thomas Pryle, 1532 West Superior street. Pryle is being held for the inquest.

CAPT. F. M. BISHOP, SALT LAKE CITY VETERAN, DEAD

Capt. Bishop was chief photographer for the expedition of Maj. John Wesley Powell down the Green and Colorado rivers in 1871, and wrote an extensive diary of the perilous trip, which was embodied in the official government report by Maj. Powell.

The captain was born in Essex county, New York; was a graduate of Wesleyan university of Bloomington, Ill., and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He was once a professor at the University of Deseret.

You can't hide TOILET STAINS AND odors

PEOPLE notice a dirty toilet bowl. Ugly film and stains breed odors. Germs thrive there. You can scrub and scrub and never get toilets spotless. But Sani-Flush does all the work for you.

Try Sani-Flush. Sprinkle a little in the bowl. (Follow directions on the can.) Then flush the toilet and see it glisten. Sani-Flush even cleans that hidden trap that scrubbing won't reach. It can't harm plumbing.

Chicago Girl's Diary of 1869 Is Published

Julia Newberry Describes Life of City.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Julia Newberry, who was 15 years of age in 1869, belonged to a period when young ladies kept journals in locked books. In such a volume she set down the record of her life, her thoughts and occasionally the events of the great world. Other volumes preceded it, for she mourns, in the last entry, the destruction of "all my journals that I have taken such pains to write and keep, a record of all my ideas since I first began to have any!" That entry is a final emotional outburst torn from her by the news that her beloved Chicago lay in ashes, the Chicago which was always home to her, torn from it though she was by the "advantages" of foreign travel.

JULIA NEWBERRY.

Most journals of the girls of her day are "quaint." But Julia Newberry's has a richness of human observation which makes of it a real contribution to the recorded pictures of her day. She was the daughter of W. L. Newberry, who was one of the founders of one of the first public libraries in the middle west, in 1841, when Chicago was four years old as a city! And today his name graces one of the greatest libraries in the United States, proudly an institution of the city which he loved. His daughter's diary begins the year after his death, which came upon him at sea as he was on his way to meet his family in Europe. It ends on Oct. 19, 1871, in Paris, where Julia heard the news of the great Chicago fire and wrote with passionate nostalgia of the home that was no more.

During that girlhood Julia Newberry suffered from a "delicacy" which kept her and her mother and sister ever in search of more healthful climates, in her native land and abroad. The diary accompanies her to New York where she is taken out of a private school and sent off to Florida for her health, thence back home where Chicago fills her heart for a bit, and finally on the long trek through Europe in search of health. The elegancies of life in her day were all enjoyed by the girl who was known as an heiress devoted to painting and music. There were no frontier privations about the life of the Newberrys in Chicago or elsewhere and Julia's naive tales of the grandeur of the remodeled Newberry house include the sentence, "I was amazed and delighted with the house, which has been almost entirely rebuilt since last summer at the gentle cost of $60,000."

Her record of the social life in which even as a child she had a part proves that there was luxury and culture in Chicago happily comparable to that of the east whence many of Chicago's families came bringing their ideals of the comforts of life with them. And their contacts all over the world were as cosmopolitan as they are today. They met the same people in New York, Nice, Baden Baden, Rome, St. Augustine. . . . The international fashionables of the day included Chicagoans as well as Parisians and Londoners.

Against the background of cosmopolitan society the gift of young Julia Newberry for observation shines in her diary—amusingly, charmingly. She is worried at fifteen as to whether "the knowledge that we acquire here will be useful to us in our future stage? Certainly reading, writing, drawing, painting and playing the piano won't do us any good." At the same age she describes a fellow guest at a hotel as "not very nice; too many diamonds"; and another as "homely, sings, is engaged and affected." A dinner she describes as "rare and costly, composed of beefsteeks and mutton chops."

She says of her first dinner party [at 15] "never in my life was I so bored. I had the illustrious Mr. Stuyvesant Fish who, in spite of his having a Grand-Father, is little less than an idiot." Another man to her "looked horrid, just like the Prince of Wales." Gen. Phil. Sheridan she notes as "distingué, but frightfully ugly [perhaps not frightfully, but still anything but handsome]. He is very short [shorter than I]. VERY broad: & his eyes are only long narrow holes. His head is most extraordiry shape. It is sunk between his shoulders & his mouth is covered with a large moustache. He has a nice foot, and good manners, an Irish accent . . ." Col. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte whom they meet on the boat to France she sighs over as "I know that I shall never see another man with SUCH A FIGURE if I live a hundred years . . . Now?!!!"

On her seventeenth birthday she sums up her life thus: "Seventeen rather eventful years take them altogether. I have been twice to Florida, and three times to Europe. I have been to two boarding-schools & gained a great many friends in different ways. Have been run-away with twice, & had my portrait painted. I have learned how to faint, & have inherieted a fortune. Have been through long illness & had a terrible sorrow! And I might have been married if I had chosen.

"On the other hand I have never had on a long dress, or been into society as a young-lady. Nor in the conventual form, have I been to my first ball. I have never given my photograph to a young man, or any other souvenir, either, nor have I made my hair uneven by distributing locks among my friends. I have never waved my handkerchief to a male biped on the other side of the street, or appointed a rendevous on my way to school. I have never sworn eternal friendship to any one, nor written poetry since I was eleven years old."

Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Fairbank end their delightful introduction with an observation which must occur to many. "For the discerning reader," they say, "there is in her work a possible indication that with Julia Newberry a mute, inglorious Jane Austen died."

The original diary in Julia's own handwriting is on display at the book department of Marshall Field & Co., and there also are gowns worn by her in the same department and at Kroch's bookstore.

Register New York Society People to Pose for Ad Photos

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Katrinka Van Cortlandt Suydam Roelker, 21, and Miss Dorothy Wentworth [Dickie] King, 20, New York society girls, have gone into business. They have founded an agency, it was disclosed today through which advertisers may hire one of the city's aristocrats, male or female, to pose for an advertisement and testify about how much they like the company's cold cream, mattress, cigaret, monkey wrench, or whatever it is the advertiser sells.

The two society girls already have persuaded seventy-five socially prominent persons to enroll.

"We have Louis and George Ehret [grandsons of the famous brewer] among those signed up," said Mrs. Roelker, who admitted she thought their grandfather would not have liked the idea.

The girls sent letters to 150 society people in which they said: "Realizing that at the moment there are so many of our friends who are anxious to earn a little extra money, we are organizing a bureau . . ."

Exactly half of the society people wrote back they wanted to make a little extra money by posing.

Smart to Have Scarf, Beret, and Bag Match

BERET, SCARF AND BAG.

It is smart to match your scarf and handbag to your hat, and is well worth the little trouble. With a gray dress or suit, a navy blue and white checked woolen beret, scarf, and bag will add distinction. Red crinkled crêpe is smart with a gray or blue costume.

The bag design which comes with the pattern, No. 3459, has a change purse and an inside zipper closing. It comes only in one size.

Smart Throng at Washington Track Opening

Celebrates Forty Years of Social History.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FORTY years in social and sporting history were bridged yesterday afternoon at the Washington Park race track. With all the color and gayety that characterized the opening of the old Washington track in Chicago's first World's Fair year, the initial race of A Century of Progress season was run on a modernized track before a brilliant crowd of city fashionables.

There were contrasts . . . of course.

Chauffeured motors replaced coaches and tallyhos beyond the gates. Smart tweeds, trim sailors, and ghillies were the ruling fashion instead of parasol, bonnet, and petticoat ensembles. And there was no American Derby on the program as there was four decades back.

But the hot sun and the cool wind were the same. So was the fast track set down in the midst of country fields (the old track was at 61st and Cottage Grove . . . the new is close to 161st street). And then there were several important ladies who were the cynosure just as Lillian Russell "arrayed in white" was in '93.

Mrs. Howard Linn Is Gay Spectator.

Gayest of all yesterday was Mrs. Howard Linn dressed in a lightweight woolen coat of tulip red, a gray silk dress diagonally crossed in black, and a white fez set jauntily over her curls. The guest of Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, fashionably attired in black and white, she spent most of her time in the grandstands . . . when she wasn't at the betting windows. Also with Mrs. McCormick yesterday was Mrs. Charles Edward Brown in a brown ensemble.

Largest of all the parties in the clubhouse was that of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody. Gay as any of her guests in a tailored black coat dress, a matching beret, and a startling yellow scarf dotted in black, Mrs. Peabody divided her time between groups gathered on the lawn in front of the clubhouse and others who chose to stay in one of the Peabody boxes in the grandstand.

There were four McLaughlins present . . . Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, Mrs. Herbert P. McLaughlin, Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II., and Miss Harriet McLaughlin. Mrs. Alan C. Dixon, wearing brown plaid, was another of the Peabodys' guests, and so were Mrs. Philip L. Reed, Miss Amy Brewer, and Mrs. Dudley Mudge in a lightweight gray wool suit with sleeves well puffed. Mrs. Darrow B. Fulton, Miss Margaret Bane of Philadelphia, a guest of Mrs. Fulton; Miss Cornelia Scott of St. Louis, who is in Chicago visiting her relative, George Scott; Miss Helen Gurley, Mrs. Thomas Miller, and Mrs. Howard Vincent O'Brien were others at the party.

Guests Entertained at Luncheons.

All of the Peabodys' guests had luncheon before the races in the special little dining room in the clubhouse decorated with revolutionary war murals, hunting prints and geranium boxes that is always reserved for Mr. Peabody. He is vice president of the Washington Park Jockey club. In the other attractive dining rooms Mrs. McCormick entertained her guests, and so did Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hooper.

Between races the Hoopers with the Ralph Richardsons, Mrs. Horatio Hackett, James Sheldon, and Farren MacMahon spent most of their time leaning on the paddock rail taking notes on the jockeys and their mounts. With the Hoopers during several of the races was Miss Julianna Doane smartly dressed in a red straw sailor and a gray mannishly tailored suit. Another red hat was that worn by Mrs. Harold Strotz. Her suit was brown trimmed in brown fox.

And then there was Mrs. Paul Walker trying to pick a winner and succeeding at least two times out of four. She was in a party with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blossom, Mrs. Allan McMurray, and Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay.

Another Party for Fair Opener.

Not all the socialites will be at the Bal des Quat'z Arts Saturday night, for we heard yesterday about a crowd of gay "young marrieds" who are going to celebrate the opening night of A Century of Progress by dining and dancing at the Casino de Alex, a café on the lake shore next to the General Motors building on the Fair grounds. Ames W. Ross, the architect of the Casino, and his attractive French wife and the Charles C. Daweses are entertaining fifty, who are having a Dutch treat party, for cocktails before the dinner dance at the Rosses' residence on Ridge avenue in Evanston.

Among others who will be in this party are the former Jean Dawes and her husband, Robert T. Sherman [she and Charles C. Dawes are both children of Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, and Mrs. Dawes], the John Eliot Warners, the junior Artemus D. Watsons, the Mitchell Harpers, the Perrin Millers, and Andrew Berkey.

Some Costumes at "Paris" Party.

"Costumes are in order but not necessary" was the information we were given yesterday at the headquarters of the Bal des Quat'z Arts to be given in the Streets of Paris at A Century of Progress on the opening night. So many people seemed in doubt as to whether they must wear fancy costumes that we thought it wise to clear up that point. As far as Andrew N. Reberi and his corps of co-workers know, about half will be in costume and the other half will be in conventional evening garb.

The James Ward Thornes' party,

Cotton Dance Frocks Arrive Just in Time

Black Arganya Fashions Stylish Models.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Just in time.

A collection of brand new cotton dance frocks especially attractive for summer evenings, all of them made with ruffles, double and single flutings and an alluring taffeta slip under them. All the fascination of 1933 cotton materials plus the swish of taffeta to make them dress-parade.

You will find some knockout models made of black organza . . . long clinging numbers to the knees and then a maze of circular ruffles to the floor. One black beauty has cascades of filmy black ruffles placed in the back and side back sections, with a cleverly fashioned ruffled scarf that can be tied a dozen different ways around the V neckline and down around the waistline.

The smartest dotted swiss dance dresses are fashioned with three soft ruffles from the knee to the floor, with a tiny train . . . the tiniest of colored dots are spattered over white backgrounds for these Spanish affairs.

Sometimes the quaint and short sleeves are made of yards and yards of tiny ruffles, no wider than an inch, sewed in widening circles till it looks like a huge rosette covering each shoulder . . . others have deep ruffles around the neckline like an old fashioned bertha and just a deep ruffle falling softly over the shoulder as a sleeve. But all of them are romantically picturesque and quite different from anything you have seen in a long time.

One store is showing some fluted organdy dresses that are fascinating. They have wide and huge fluted ruffles that stand up around the shoulders . . . a demure high collar and a row of buttons down the center of the chest, a long slim skirt edged with a wide and deep fluted ruffle . . . look for the rosy-pink affair with a narrow ribbon, tied around the waist, that matches the tiny ribbon bow at the collar . . . or the white one with a bit of Scotch plaid ribbon for accent.

A lot of the best looking dresses for small allowances are delightfully decorative with ruffled short sleeves outlined with inky black velvet edging . . . others are made of embroidered organdies with contrasting velvet sashes that match the color of the embroidered pattern and still others are made of cotton net in soft pink and blue and white tied with wide silken sashes of accenting ribbon . . . all of them are long, divinely slim and young looking, and all of them have price tags that will appeal.

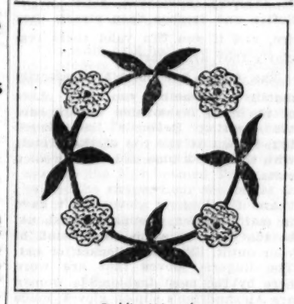
Thrifty Quilter Will Welcome "Dahlia Wreath"



Dahlia Wreath.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The "Dahlia Wreath" might properly be dubbed the economy or depression quilt, since it affords an opportunity for the thrifty quilter to use up the many scraps which have been left over from other quilting bees. Each block may be pieced of a different color, or each bloom on the wreath may be cut from a different print.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Arrange Jewish Day.

Several hundred Jewish women will rally Thursday noon at the Covenant club to perfect an organization and discuss plans for a Jewish day celebration July 3 at A Century of Progress.

Fur Designers Adopt Latest Sleeve Styles

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Fur coats in styles as revolutionary as frocks have been the last year went on parade last night at the Palmer house before 1,400 buyers here from coast to coast to attend the annual fashion show held by the Associated Fur Industries of Chicago. More than 250 styles, each valued from $150 to $65,000, were modeled by fifty mannequins.

The newest trends in the fur coat styles, the fashions disclosed, are puff sleeves for the dressier coats and raglan sleeves for the sports styles. For instance, a Hudson seal coat for street wear boasts the full puff sleeve effect, is not so fitted as last year, and positively has no flare.

Particularly popular with the buyers since fashions have gone mannish in many respects are the sports coats modeled on the swagger style now current in spring wraps. The raglan sleeve, the short length, usually 36 to 42 inches, has been incorporated in the sports coat. The chief furs used were leopard, kid caracul, raccoon, and some in mink.

The fashions for evening were in sable, chinchilla, white ermine, black caracul and mink. A genuine Russian sable valued at $38,000, and a gray chinchilla cape worth $65,000 were much admired by the buyers. The cape, a full length evening wrap, was said to be the first in Chicago in the last 20 years, so rare is chinchilla.

"Furs next fall will be within the means of the shop girl as well as the wealthy," said Louis E. Himmel, president of the industries. "Marvelous values as low as $150 will be available, and of course any one with money would find that chinchilla cape desirable."

The coats exhibited were valued by Oscar P. Larson, chairman of the show, at between $750,000 and $1,000,000. He reported that several airplanes had arrived in the morning bringing customers from the Pacific coast.

Art Show of 1,500 World Famous Treasures Is Opened at Institute

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

MAYOR KELLY and Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, were not able to be at the Art institute yesterday afternoon to open the 75 million dollar exhibition of paintings and sculptures that will be on view there during A Century of Progress. But the exhibition—all but Whistler's "Portrait of My Mother," and that will arrive and be installed on May 29 with due pomp and ceremony—was there in all its glory. And so two mere men were not missed, even such distinguished ones as the mayor and the president of the World's Fair.

Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the art committee of the institute, whose untiring efforts for four years have resulted in this stunning exhibition, cut the white satin ribbon on the grand staircase that opened the gorgeous show, and, with an eye to the future, he said when he handed the shears to an attendant, "Save these scissors."

That they will be displayed in the Chicago Historical society at some future day as the ones with which Mr. McCormick cut the ribbon that opened this stupendous showing of American owned works of art—Whistler's "Portrait of My Mother," which has been lent by the Louvre Museum of Paris is the exception—there is not the slightest doubt, for the exhibition is staggering in its beauty and importance.

Open to Public This Morning

Yesterday's opening was a private one for the lenders of the works of art, contributing artists and the members of the institute and their families and out-of-town guests, but this morning at 9 o'clock the doors will be thrown open to the public. The exhibition is on the second floor and to see it there will be a charge of 25 cents, necessitated because of the great expense of insurance, transportation and installation of the 1,500 objects, but the rest of the institute [three-fourths of it] will be open free of charge to every one from today until the close of the Fair.

Ten thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight persons visited the exhibition yesterday but they all will want to pay other visits because the crowds were so great that no satisfactory view of the pictures and sculptures could be obtained yesterday. But even such a cursory examination as one could make yesterday was enough to make one know that here, available to all, are some of the most magnificent paintings in the world. "A visit to this exhibition is equal to a month's tour of the art galleries of Europe" said the institute special news letter of May 20, and it is true.

Potter Palmer Opens Ceremony

Potter Palmer, president of the Art institute, was the first speaker at yesterday's ceremony, and he introduced Charles S. Peterson, vice president of A Century of Progress, who represented Mr. Dawes. Mrs. Palmer, charming looking in a print gown with a black background and a lily of the valley design in pastel shades, and a broad brimmed beige straw hat, was there, and did her duty as the wife of the president by receiving guests by the hundreds during most of the afternoon.

With her part of the time was her lovely daughter-in-law, who reminds one of the flower for which she is named, Rose, with her spun gold hair and pink and white complexion. Mrs. Palmer Jr. was in a blue and white print with a brimmed hat of white embroidered linen with a blue facing. The senior Mrs. Palmer's flowers, worn at the waist, were most unusual, a species of orchids, tan with red stamens.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who arrived a bit too late for the opening ceremony, wore a stunning gown of printed silk, black and white and a reddish purple, the same shade as the orchids she wore. Her brimmed black straw hat had a crown entirely covered with tiny white flowers pressed flat.

Mrs. F. G. Logan Wears Gray

Mrs. Frank G. Logan, who with Mr. Logan, honorary president of the institute, was there, wore gray and sables, and lavender orchids, and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, wife of one of the trustees, was in blue and red, coat and tiny hat of the blue and dress of the red.

A few of the other thousands were Walter S. Brewster, also a trustee, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and her lovely young daughter, Miss Louise Dewey, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. John A. Chapman and Miss Virginia Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze, Mrs. John Simpson, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Vaux, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Thomas W. Ritchie, Mrs. Robert F. Hall, Mrs. Duncan Hodges, Mrs. David W. Cook, Mrs. John L. Senior, Mrs. George Senseney, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. Charles H. Conrad, Mrs. Philo A. Otis, Mrs. Clarence Hough, and Mrs. Charles Deering.

The nearby places where lemonades and other cool drinks were sold did a rushing business during the latter part of the afternoon, for the Art institute did not try to serve tea to such a huge throng, and every one was so worn out by the heat of the galleries and the distance one tramped to see the exhibition that one's first thought on leaving the institute, even though one's soul was full of beauty, was of how good a long, cool drink would taste.

As we left and crossed Michigan avenue to the nearest ice cream place, we almost knocked down Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who had just gotten off a bus and was hurrying across to the institute, looking chic in a brown outfit, the details of which escaped us in such a short encounter.

Art Institute to Build Addition; Use Estate Gift

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers yesterday interpreted the will of B. F. Ferguson, wealthy lumberman who died in 1905, so as to permit the Art institute to construct a $400,000 addition to the east wing. Ferguson directed in his will that the Art institute receive the income from a $1,000,000 trust and use it to build "statues and monuments commemorating national figures and historical events."

Attorney Percy Eckhart, vice president of the institute, filed the suit, which was of a friendly nature, against Attorney General Otto Kerner, who has jurisdiction in public trusts. Attorney Eckhart said that 11 monuments had been built with the income, and $400,000 had accrued which the Art institute desired to use to build a Ferguson Memorial addition.

Judge Brothers construed the word "monument" to include a building. Attorney Eckhart announced that a national competition would be held for architects to draw plans for the addition.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man [illegible] silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shouts; Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she who shot Divine.

INSTALLMENT XX.

A NEW PROBLEM.

"Let's have dinner together," Baron said, "and see if we can't talk this over."

"I can't. I haven't any more to say. I—I'm sorry, but really—I'd rather go home."

He was silent for a long time.

"Of course it's got to be whatever you want," he said. "But you're rather hard on me, aren't you?"

"You never could," she cried. "You never could even imagine how it haunts me."

"I can understand that well enough," he said. "I'm more sorry for you than I can tell you. But you didn't mean it to happen. You're not to blame. Divine was my friend. I know better than any one else, perhaps, what a lot of good there was in the poor devil. But when it was a question of a pretty girl, especially if he'd been drinking . . . You see, he'd lost faith in women, naturally."

She heard a man's voice speaking in there.

"There's no use in our talking any more," said Dinah.

"But there is! That's the only way we can ever understand each other."

"We never could, if we talked for ever and ever."

"Won't you give me a chance? Let's have dinner together. Let's talk of something else for a while."

"I'm sorry, but I want to go home," she repeated in a panic lest she should sob again. "I've told you the truth about what happened. Now you can do whatever you want about it."

He waited, but she said no more, and he started the engine and turned the car.

"Very well!" he said. "If you want it this way . . . if you won't listen to me, won't trust me, won't even let me try to help you . . ."

He drove fast, faster than she had ever been driven before, and that suited her. The rush of wind in her face, the steady beat of the powerful engine brought to her a sense of recklessness that was almost exhilaration.

"I don't care," she thought. "Whatever he does, whatever happens, Jane and I can manage together. We're not criminals. If she was the one who killed him it was in self-defense."

Then before her eyes rose the dreadful image of Divine lying on the floor. Her recklessness vanished, even her fears. Nothing remained but a limitless regret and remorse. He had been young. He had had so much to live for, and he was dead. By her hand?

"O, no!" she cried in her heart, and then she thought: "It must be worse for Jane. She doesn't know, either. And for her to think that she killed him—her own husband . . ."

"Will you stop somewhere on the way home?" asked Baron. "Even if it's just for a sandwich and a cup of coffee?"

His tone was stiff and formal; she saw that she had affronted him, or perhaps hurt him.

"It doesn't matter," she thought. "He'd do as he pleased anyhow. He just wanted to talk me over to his side, against Jane. No, thanks," she said aloud. "I'm tired."

They were back in the city now. She glanced at him from time to time by the lights they passed, and his face seemed to her no more than a handsome mask.

"It doesn't matter," she said to herself again. "The thing's got to end some time, some way."

"Murder will out." No matter what the provocation, what the cause, that death would not be forever unavenged. Some one would pay.

"Am I to drive you home?" he asked.

It seemed to her that his voice was challenging, and she reacted promptly.

"No, thanks," she said. "I'll get out here, please."

He drove to the curb and got out to help her, but she had already sprung out.

"If I ring you up tomorrow will you let me know when I can see you again?" he asked.

"I think you'd better not," she answered. "Thank you for the drive, Mr. Baron. Good-by."

It was not until she had turned the corner that any realization came to her of what she had done. She stopped short, seized with a strange dismay; she turned and hurried back. But his car was no longer there. He had gone. And she had let him go in resentment and bitterness.

It was of vital importance that he should be friendly, and she had antagonized him. She had followed the impulse of her uncertain young heart. She had rejected all his offers to help her. Whether his solicitude had been genuine or not made little difference. She had had a chance to keep him quiet for a time and she had thrown it away.

And had she thrown away something more? She recalled what Jane had said to her about young Fiske. Had she done that again; again, with the wanton obstinacy of a spoiled child, disregarded a man's honestly proffered devotion? When she looked back, remembered his voice, his words, it seemed to her that he had been honest. If he had wanted to deceive or entrap her he could so easily have concealed his ardent dislike for Jane.

She was frightened—of herself this time. She was a fool, worse than a fool, when in a situation so dangerous she had alienated the two men who could help, and who could harm.

"I'm going to be nicer to Jack Fiske!" she thought. "Very nice."

It would not be hard now. She was aware of a great need of some one to cling to, some one strong and steadfast. She and Jane seemed so desolately alone in their trouble, so threatened on every side, so helpless. The very thought of Fiske as an ally warmed her heart; she hastened her steps, hoping, almost praying that he would not have gone out.

"I guess," she thought, "I'll tell him the whole truth. I won't let him go on thinking Jane was the one—the only one."

But if she did tell him perhaps he would change towards her, not be her ally.

"Perhaps I'd better just be nice to him at first," she thought.

She ran up the steps of the boarding house and opened the door with her latchkey. The dining room door, at the end of the hall, was closed and that made her suddenly aware that she had had no dinner and was hungry. The dismal parlor was occupied only by the two old ladies; the house seemed unpleasantly quiet.

She ran upstairs to their room, but Jane was not there. And it seemed to Dinah that for the first time in her life she was truly alone.

She went to a cafeteria nearby and had a most forlorn little dinner. She was, as a rule, well aware of her own young charm; how was she not to be when she had learned its power in her childhood? Almost always, wherever she went, there was some man who could not keep his eyes off her lovely little face, and that open admiration had pleased and reassured her.

She ate in haste and hurried back with that ineradicable instinct that has led to captures beyond number, that instinct to get home, that idea that home is safety. She ran up the stairs again, but outside the door of her room she stopped short. She heard a man's voice speaking in there.

Never would Mrs. Cotter allow any one, even her favorite Jane, to bring a man upstairs, unless it were some man who could not be denied, a detective, a policeman.

"If it is," she thought, "I'd better not go in. I can help more if I'm free."

Standing motionless in the hall, she faced this new problem, thinking with the speed and clarity an emergency brings.

"If it is—a detective—or some one like that I'd better get away at once. Better hide somewhere."

Fresh Salads Add a Zestful Note to Meal

BY MARY MEADE.

Such a delectable spring salad as I did run across yesterday at one of my infrequent flings at bridge!

The whole house (it was a lovely little white and yellow one out in the country) was busy smelling like a veritable garden of May flowers. Our luncheon covers, spread over the card tables during lunch time, were of a simple pale green linen. Low Japanese iris glowed from the sideboard. And the food—lovely!

But most impressed was I over the salad. Impressed because it was so utterly simple—yet so delectable and charming. "It just doesn't have a name," explained the hostess of this pleasantness. "It just happened!" So I am calling this happenstance salad:

CUCUMBER-RADISH FAN SALAD.

Select smooth, straight, medium-small cucumbers. For each salad you will use a section three inches long. You may be able to get two sections from one cucumber, but likely you will have to use one for each salad; snip off the ends and save them for tomorrow's cut-up salad. Now take these cucumber sections—one for each diner—and peel carefully. Lay each on its side and with a sharp knife cut the sections down in thin slices, cutting almost but not quite through. The slices should hold together firmly along the bottom. Place the cut sections in ice water and chill till very crisp. At the same time crisp thin slices of red radish with the skin left on. When ready to serve drain all thoroughly. Place the cucumbers on beds of crisp lettuce. Spread them a little to form a fan shape and place a crisp slice of red-rimmed radish between each two slices of cucumber. The effect is something to rush home and crow over! Then across the length of the fan weave a tablespoon of French dressing.

Then another glad spring tip for dressing up salads. This one is the simplest imaginable—yet it makes all the difference between any old cabbage salad—and perfection!

Start with the coldest, crispest lettuce cups you can create. A head of lettuce, separated, rinsed in cold water and then placed in a covered refrigerator pan for a few hours, does the trick even better than soaking lettuce in cold water.

Next comes cabbage. It should have been shaved fine with a sharp knife and then cut across several times to eliminate the bother of fork-danglers. It should also have been crisped—this time in cold water, till positively brittle. Drain and then pat off any leftover moisture in a soft, clean cloth.

Now for the putting together. Rub gently the inside of a generous sized salad bowl with the least bit of crushed garlic. Drop in the cabbage and add creamy mayonnaise. Toss till every bit of cabbage is coated with dressing. If you lean toward the bite and the gay color of green peppers, snip some crisped shreds of it in with the cabbage.

By this time that tiny suspicion of garlic has suggested itself to all parts of the salad and you are ready for the final flourish. With the scissors, shred a little crisp green leaves of lettuce into each lettuce cup on the salad plates, then pile the salad in with this much applauded "studied carelessness" of which one reads. But you're not through yet. Atop each salad place the largest, thinnest slice of crisp raw carrot you can conjure up—just one slice. The bigger around it is the better. Cold water will do the crisping stunt.

GET RID OF ATHLETE'S FOOT THE EASY WAY

Bathe feet morning and night with Resinol Soap and hot water, allowing lather to remain ten or fifteen minutes to aid in killing fungus. Apply Resinol Ointment gently but abundantly, letting it remain until next dressing.

This simple treatment goes to work at once and clears up even the most stubborn cases of "athlete's foot." First, it soothes the inflamed skin and relieves the itching torment. Then as the Resinol medication works into the pores it kills the infection and hastens the healing. Get Resinol Ointment and Soap at any drug store. Smart Parisian Accessory Made of Whole Cloth

DOROTHY DULIN DARIS

BY BETTINA BEDWELL

PARIS.—[Special.]—It's harvest time for the weaver of cloth this summer. There are few accessories in Paris styles which aren't made out of whole cloth, and much smarter because of this. Fabric hats, you know all about, no doubt, but have you seen those for hot weather, made out of organdy and cool, crisp linen? Softer and fresher than straw, they are, and if you can valet them regularly they are smarter.

The fabric hat doesn't necessarily match the ensemble, you know. Lots of the most fashionable women here are wearing Reboux's line slouch hat, shown at the top of the sketch, with their dark blue and black woolen suits.

And the lingerie gloves don't have to match either, though they should be the same as some other detail of your outfit, like collar, jacket, or hat. The lingerie gloves that are worn here by the most fashionable women are Alexandrine's slip-on gloves, made of piqué, linen, batiste, and organdy. They come in either white or natural string color mostly. Two of these gloves are illustrated for you. They are eight button length and flared above the wrist. The top glove is of natural colored linen crash and the lower of white organdy. This one is trimmed with three corded arrows along the wrist.

Gloves like these are often worn with big, comfortable bags done of the same coarse linen. The smart bag this season is almost always extra large, and in envelope, pouch or round shape. The two bags illustrated show you the kind. The pouch bag is made of linen and has a bamboo handle. The round bag is black and white checkered wool with leather straps.

New Books for Children Show Daily Drama

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Here are the particulars promised yesterday of the three modern little books about the real world, for children under 7, which were mentioned in yesterday's column—little books made to fit children's sense of the interest and drama of the everyday world in which they live.

"Streets"—Stories for children under 7, edited by Lucy Sprague Mitchell. No. 2 of "The Coöperating School" pamphlets, published by John Day of New York City for 20 cents.

"Illustrations for Streets." No. 2 of "The Coöperative School" series. These are to go with the book called "Streets." They are published by John Day company of New York, N. Y.; the price is 20 cents.

"Boats and Bridges"—stories for children under 7. Edited by Lucy Sprague Mitchell. No. 3 of "The Coöperating School" pamphlets. Published by the John Day company of New York, N. Y., for 20 cents.

"Illustrations for Boats and Bridges" [No. 3 of the Coöperative School series]. This set is to go with the book called "Boats and Bridges." It is published by the John Day company of New York, N. Y., for 20 cents.

"Trains"—Stories for children under 7, editor by Lucy Sprague Mitchell. No. 4 of the "Coöperative School" pamphlets. Published by the same firm at 20 cents.

"Illustrations for Trains" [No. 4 of "The Coöperative School" series.] This set is to go with the book called "Trains." Published by same company at the same price.

MINUTE MYSTERY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ONE FOR THE ROOKIES.

"Say, Inspector, here's a neat problem to give your next 'rookie' class," remarked Fordney. "The following incident happened in the medical department at the university.

"Stewart Brams was thankful the instructor was out of the room when he arrived late for his first class at the laboratory. His tardiness was embarrassing as he had never met any of the students, all of whom were busily engaged in making experiments when he entered. One of the boys had laid his coat across the table at which Stewart was to work and he couldn't find a place to put it.

"He looked around the room—all the fellows were in shirt sleeves and wearing large white aprons. He examined the coat carefully. There wasn't a thing in it to identify its owner. Stewart's keen eye noted the distinctive color and pattern, fine quality and splendid tailoring and it was not without a shade of envy that he muttered to himself, 'Set him back plenty!' But, what to do with it!

"He didn't hesitate long, however. You see, Stewart has been attending my class in criminology and he has learned the value of observation. Without speaking to anyone he picked up the coat, walked across the room, tapped the owner of it on the shoulder and handed it to him, explaining that he needed his table.

"Now, Kelley, you ask your rookies how Stewart knew whose coat it was—but, make sure you know the answer yourself!" tormented the professor.

DO YOU KNOW HOW STEWART KNEW TO WHOM THE COAT BELONGED?

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Mae West Has Prize Fighter She Manages

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 22.—[Special.]—The latest sports interest among the Hollywood movie notables—more recent even than the bicycling craze—is managing prize fighters.

The four Marx brothers have one fighter, a lanky New York heavyweight, whom they sponsor. His name is "Canvasback" Cohen. Probably got the name because he's so good on the duck, but your correspondent can't tell yet; he's only seen Canvasback [whose real first name is Sammy] introduced in street clothes in the ring.

Victor Jory is managing three fighters. They are Mel Brown, 151 pound schoolboy from Pasadena; Long Tom Watkins, 6 foot 4 inch youth from New York who fought in the New York state amateur championships in 1929 and 1930; and Michigan Joe Gans, a southpaw Negro middleweight with great big startled looking eyes, who drifted into Jory's home town of Pasadena via freight train just seven weeks ago and offered to fight any one four rounds for his breakfast.

Mae West is another who is backing a fighter. Jory and Miss West learned of each other's pugilistic ventures the last week, and Jory challenged Mae for a match between his welterweight and hers, the bout to take place at one of the Los Angeles fight clubs some time within the next few weeks.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Jimmy, age 6 years, was sitting at breakfast one morning, listening to his parents' discussion of a certain young woman's name before her marriage.

He thought deeply for a moment, then asked his mother what her maiden name was. After she answered him he turned to his father and said, "Daddy, what was your maiden name before you married?"

Mundy's Opera Heard in Part at Anniversary

BY EDWARD MOORE.

James A. Mundy, who has from the beginning had an important part in the presentation of spirituals by a huge Negro chorus in the Chicagoland Music Festivals, was the leading feature in his own twentieth anniversary concert at Orchestra hall last night, not only as conductor but as composer and arranger as well.

Directing his own Mundy choristers as well as the Quinn chapel choir, the Anniversary chorus, and the Walter Dellers Symphonic ensemble, he presented some uncommonly interesting music. One was a chorus from his opera; "Oombongo," based on native African rejoicing, swiftly running, melodic, with a great use of drums, and performed with great dexterity.

Another was his setting of "Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel," which developed into a dramatic scene. John Burdette, also a brilliant feature on the Chicagoland Music Festival programs, appeared as the exhorter, chanting against a lightly sketched choral background. It was a pictorial but legitimate development of Negro music, strikingly original, effective, and artistic.

The choral singing was of a high order of beauty, and there were a number of good soloists in addition to Mr. Burdette's fine baritone. A few of the others were Claire Malone and Gustava McCurdy, both sopranos and both with excellent voices, and Joseph Cole, another baritone of merit.

Rudolph Reuter did his bit for the Brahms centenary at Kimball hall last night by playing a program of the piano works of that great composer. With the assistance of Daniel Saidenberg a fine performance of the sonata for cello and piano in E minor was given, and that and the Variations on a Handel Theme were the leading compositions. Two groups of rhapsodies, intermezzos, capriccios, and other briefer pieces made up a fairly long program, which Mr. Reuter played expressively and with a well marked sense of contrast and climax.

"Pagliacci" in a new form and renamed "Punchinello" will be presented at the Blackstone theater four times beginning June 6. The arrangement has been made by Felix Borowski. The drama, based upon the libretto of the opera, will be spoken in English while an orchestra directed by Jacques Samossoud plays the original Leoncavallo music. The work will be given in connection with Delibes' ballet, "Coppelia," which will be directed by Michel Fokine, who appeared here as a dancer some years ago but has never made a production in this city. He will arrive in Chicago next Monday to direct the rehearsals of the Civic opera ballet and a large ensemble.

New Apostolic Delegate Arrives in New York

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, the new apostolic delegate from the Vatican to the United States, arrived today on the liner Conte di Savoia. The new papal delegate has visited the United States twice before. On his last visit, two years ago, he traveled extensively, going as far as the Pacific coast. He is the first papal ambassador to arrive with the advantage of previous acquaintance in the United States.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. David Dows and Miss Evelyn Boyd Dows have been dividing their time between their Park avenue apartment and Charlton hall, the Dows country place at Brookville, L. I. Miss Dow's engagement to Cornelius N. Bliss Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, was announced recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker have arranged to go to Vikings cove, at Peacock point, for the season next Wednesday. They will have their smaller yacht the Little Viking in commission this season. During the early part of the summer Mr. and Mrs. Baker will have with them their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer Jr., who were married last summer. Later they will be in Newport with Mr. Tailer's mother, Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer.

Mrs. Moses Taylor will return from her estate in Morocco, where she passed the winter, on the Majestic, due tomorrow, and will be at the Hotel Pierre before opening the Glen, her house in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Paris Singer, who were with Cecil Singer in his apartment in the Towers of the Waldorf-Astoria, sailed last Saturday on the Conte Grande for their residence in Paris.

Good morning!

It is naive and folksy to the extreme and has, in the adventures of Jackie Searle, much which will appeal to boy and girl unsophisticates from, say, ages 7 to 12. Be it commented in passing that for probably the first time in his film career young Jackie does NOT portray a br... This trip he's a sunny little whosis with a tragedy in his life—i. e.—his beloved racing mechanic father is killed on the speedway. Comment re: The demon columnist of the yarn—Theodore von Eltz—looks like Master Searle grown up.

As the title would indicate, "High Gear" deals with the motor side of life. The tale spills over into a newspaper office and a military training school for youngsters and is absolutely untiring in its demands on your wholehearted championship of the good and your hisses for the bad folk who people it.

Jimmy Evans' dad is killed—as I told you—while racing with the famous driver, "High Gear" Sherrod. The latter loses his nerve after the accident and feels that he can never race again—and here, for a time, the movie takes on a "Black Beauty" aspect. Broken-down race horse to the junk wagon, never shattered racing man to taxi driving. . . .

Well, anyhow, Sherrod sends Jimmy to the military school, where his father had planned to place him if the fatal race had turned out fortunately. He also falls in love with a charming newspaper woman who had interviewed him in his gala days. The lady is beloved by the keyhole columnist of her sheet. This gentleman's activities, plus those of belligerent taxi drivers who resent Sherrod's parking at their stand, rouse the good ol' fighting spirit in the former speedway racer with results the picture shall show you.

The acting is all most meritorious and the director did the very best possible with the material at hand.

Avers Toscanini Neglects Composers of America

Minneapolis, Minn., May 22.—(AP)—American music and composers found a ready and vigorous defender today in John Tasker Howard, music critic and composer who was a speaker at the opening session of the 18th biennial convention here of the National Federation of Music clubs. Howard mentioned the name of Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, in calling attention to "flagrant instances of neglect of American music and discrimination against American composers by conductors in high places. In the seven years he has conducted the Philharmonic he had presented only four American works," said Howard.

which will include the Joseph T. Ryersons, I. Newton Perrys, Eugene Thayers, Charles S. Deweys and George A. Ranneys among others, will be in fancy dress, and so will the Laurance H. Armour's party; in fact, the members of this party are getting together and planning their costumes so that they will be dressed alike, or rather will belong to one group or period.

Some of the latest who have made reservations for this huge and gay party are the Warren Wrights, whose party will number 30; the John Wentworth, who will have 20 guests; the George Woodruffs, the Orville Taylors, the Franklin M. Millers and the Harold C. Strotzes.

Miss Narcissa Swift has organized a Dutch treat party that will enjoy cocktails first at the Tavern, later going to the Four Arts ball to dine and make merry. Some of those who will be in this party are Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, Prince Potenziani, the junior Byron S. Harveys, the junior Calvin Fentresses, Miss Betty Dixon and her fiancé, Parker Bryant, and Miss Betty Poole.

Passports admitting one to the Streets of Paris were received yesterday, silver covered, blue paged booklets modeled after real American passports and containing blanks for descriptions and photographs of bearers, visas, amendments and extensions, and on the back page are abstracts from passport regulations. Enclosed in the passport were three tickets, one for admission to the fair grounds, one for "diner" and another for "petit dejeuner."

Sarah Carr Is Engaged.

An engagement of international as well as local interest is being announced this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Carr of 4824 Kimbark avenue. It is that of their daughter, Miss Sarah Carr, to Rene d'Harnoncourt of Vienna.

Miss Carr, a graduate of the Faulkner school and Wellesley college, is a particularly talented young woman having only recently resigned her position as editor of Fashions of the Hour.

Mr. d'Harnoncourt came to this country, three years ago to tour the country with the Mexican art exhibit. It was at this time that Miss Carr made his acquaintance. Since then he has been engaged in art educational work. He is particularly well known for his illustration of Mrs. Dwight Morrow's book, "The Painted Pig."

Tea Will Open Miniature Show.

"Between exhibits and guests," Mrs. Joseph H. King explained yesterday, "we figure there will be little room this afternoon for a tea ceremonial. Tea of course, but no ceremony."

Mrs. King is president of the auxiliary board of the Children's Memorial hospital which is to receive the benefits of the miniature showing to open with a preview tea today in the Ackerman galleries and continue during the next six weeks. All sorts of tiny things to delight the hearts of every one from a child to a sophisticate are carefully arranged in glass cases that surround the lower floor galleries.

The board members will be hostesses for today's preview. And all of the contributors will attend as special guests. They include Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart, Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Mrs. Robert M. Harvey, Chester Johnson, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. William P. Sidley, Mrs. Richard I. Stearns, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, and Mrs. Ernest P. Waud.

Friendly Aid Party Today.

Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Frances Weary, Miss Dorothy Fox, Miss Jane Fitzmorris, Mrs. Hugh Wilson, Mrs. James Draper, and Miss Janet Johns are among the daughters of the members of the Friendly Aid society who will sell candy and cigarets at the society's annual card party this afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Mrs. G. Henry Mundt is chairman of the committee in charge of the party.

Certainly there is no greater compliment to the ability of Miss Beatrice Borland as a lecturer than the fact that she has been repeatedly invited to tell her round the world experiences before some of the smartest groups in town. Tonight she is giving "High Spots of a Round the World Tour," with illustrations, before the members of the Woman's guild of St. Chrysostom's church and their guests in the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

Among those in the audience will be Miss Borland's mother, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland; Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mrs. William V. Kelley, Mrs. George W. Meeker, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, Mrs. William J. Sinclair, chairman of the committee in charge of tonight's party; Mrs. Henry K. Chapin, Mrs. F. Foley Beggs, Mrs. Harden H. Fitts, and Mrs. Frank V. Theis.

Service Club Plans Revue.

At the Service club meeting yesterday in the lovely sunny apartment of the David F. Bremners it was decided that the Service club show be given at the Goodman theater Oct. 13 and 14. It will be called "Dancing Debs" [at least, temporarily] and John Hall will direct as he did last fall, and he has promised that it will be "bigger and better" than the very successful "Stepping High," which pleased even the most hardened critics last October.

Mrs. John Dern, president of the club, who looked charming in a blue suit with a blue and white striped blouse and brimmed blue hat, pleaded for the earnest support of each girl throughout the summer in continuing to assemble clothes for the Red Cross, and in aiding the Red Cross at A Century of Progress, which means that volunteers in neat Red Cross uniforms are going to man the booths in the Social Works exhibit at the Fair.

These workers will have to know their jobs to answer all the questions asked of them by the visitors.

Miss Edna Doering is in charge of the sale of boxes for the revue, Mrs. Frank S. Sims of ticket sales, Miss Margaret Goehst of advertising, and Mrs. Herbert Young of publicity.

At the end of the meeting Mrs. John I. Shaw, Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted, and Miss Letitia Channon laid down their knitting to sign up for volunteer work, and among the others crowding in after them were Miss Jeanne Street and Miss Katharine Street, Miss Peggy Wiley, Miss Alice Bremner, the hostess; Mrs. Charles H. Conrad and Miss Mary Perdue Ruden, a charming person who, with her mother, moved here from Washington shortly after the death of her father last October, and they are now at home with her uncle, James E. Johnson, on North State parkway.

Alliance Plans Party for Visitor.

The Alliance Française has planned a luncheon at the Casino on Wednesday, May 31, for Lecomte du Nouy, head of the Pasteur institute of Paris, and Mme. Nouy, to which the heads of the various French clubs and organizations in the city will be invited and a few other distinguished guests.

The English Speaking union has invitations out for a luncheon in the Victorian room of the Palmer house on Wednesday, May 31. Samuel Higginbotham, principal of the Agricultural institute at Allahabad, which is in the center of the Ganges valley in India, will speak on "An Appraisal of Gandhi—Significance of His Fasts."

One of the early fall debutantes will be Miss Jean O'Brien, who is to be presented formally to society at a tea on Saturday, Sept. 16, by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vincent O'Brien, at their home in Winnetka. Miss O'Brien has been studying in Zurich and Paris this last winter and will arrive at home early in June. The O'Briens have rented their house for the summer and will spend the warm weather months at Harbor Point, returning to Winnetka early in September.

Across many a smart luncheon and dinner table the next few weeks there will be glowing reports of exciting adventures in Peiping, shopping experiences in Hongkong, and long lazy days basking in a deck chair. Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, with her daughter, Theodora, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, arrived in town early yesterday, completing a five months' trip to the orient.

The Atkinsons went immediately to their Lake Forest home, but Mrs. Shaw and her daughter are to remain in their Lake View avenue apartment several weeks, later dividing their time between town and Lake Forest.

Silas Strawns Sail for Europe.

The meetings of the International Chamber of Commerce next month in Vienna have taken Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn to Europe for a two months' holiday. They sailed yesterday morning from New York. Mrs. Jacob Baur, who is now visiting her daughter and her husband, the Bartle Bulls, in London, is also going over to the continent for the chamber sessions.

Just arrived from the west coast are Dr. and Mrs. Rudolph Altrocchi with their two young sons, John, aged 4, and Paul, 2. They will be here for the summer, spending most of their time at the Harlan Ward Cooleys' country place at Harbert, Mich. Mrs. Altrocchi was before her marriage Julia Cooley. Dr. Altrocchi is a professor of Romance and modern languages at the University of California.

Carpline Bullard Gets College Honor.

A Chicago student to receive honors in school is Miss Caroline Bullard, daughter of the Sellar Bullards of Highland Park, who is the member of the Wells college junior class elected to spend "Junior Month" in New York City studying welfare work with the representatives of other colleges. This month happens to be July, so Miss Bullard will not return to Chicago until August. For this reason her mother and younger sister, Barbara, with whom she made her début last fall, are motoring east to see her around June 10 when the college closes and perhaps go on to New York with her for a few days.

Miss Barbara has just returned from Santa Barbara where she has been spending several months with her grandmother, Mrs. Albert Paul Smith. Mrs. Smith will arrive next month. The Century of Progress reunion that the four "Small" sisters have been planning some time is set for the first week in October, with Mrs. William H. Colvin [Bessie Small] as hostess in her Forest avenue home in Evanston. Mrs. Smith will have no great distance to come, for she lives in Highland Park, but Mrs. William H. Moore of New York, who is due back from Europe June 1, will come out from her home at Prince's Crossing, and Mrs. L. J. Knight will come from Santa Barbara, where she lives.

Cabaret Dance at Army Club.

In coöperation with the Military Intelligence association the Army and Navy club is holding a cabaret dinner dance this evening in its quarters in the Lake Shore Athletic club. Among the guests will be the British consul general, Lewis Bernays, with Mrs. Bernays; Dr. Hugo Simon, the German consul general, and Mrs. Simon; the French consul general, Rene Weiller, Col. Edward Davis and Lieut. Col. John W. N. Schulz.

Mrs. Ralph C. Otis and her daughter, Miss Florence Otis, have planned a tea and shower for Miss Eleanor Litsinger on Friday afternoon of this week and the guests have been asked to shower the bride-to-be with bathroom accessories. Miss Litsinger will be married to Eugene Cary Jr. on the 7th of June.

The regular monthly home dressmakers' sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop will be held on Thursday, and, as usual, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings will be in charge.

[Gibson Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vernet of North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Louise, to William Kent Smith of Menominee, Mich., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond P. Smith of Menominee. Miss Vernet attended the University of Arizona in Tucson. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Lafayette college.

Pomp Features May Ball for Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, May 22.—[Special.]—The May ball given tonight in compliment to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and for the benefit of the two lunch and rest rooms established by her in this city for unemployed girls was marked with military and naval pageantry.

Staged in the historic 7th regiment armory, the ball was attended by one of the largest and most brilliant assemblies of New York society this season.

With the military atmosphere created for Mrs. Roosevelt by the regimental guard and the contingents of army and navy officers, and high government officials including Secretary of War George H. Dern and Postmaster General James A. Farley, the event rivaled the Washington inaugural ball in pomp and brilliance.

Of all the plans made to do her honor on this occasion none was more effective than Mrs. Roosevelt's arrival at the armory about 11 o'clock, when her appearance was heralded by "The Star Spangled Banner" and other appropriate patriotic music played by army and navy bands.

Passing through the entrance hallway, hung with the battle flags of a century and a quarter, she was met by the guard of honor, members of the regiment, whose full dress uniform, dating back to 1824, rather resembles the West Point uniform.

The main drill hall, the scene of the ball proper, was decorated in Eleanor blue and white. After the President's wife had been seated the regiment staged the impressive guard mount ceremony. Following this the dancing and program of entertainment began.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and her party went to the high-beamed Tudor mess hall at the supper hour she sat at the honor table in a chair which stands as a memorial to her father, the late Elliott Roosevelt, once a member of the "Dandy Seventh."

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you can no longer use, please tell me. I can place such things with needy families. Address Sally Joy Brown, The Tribune Chicago.

Needs Light Weight Pajamas.

"I have been a patient at this sanitarium for the last year. Do you think any of your readers have some old summer pajamas I could have? All I own are flannel, and they're awfully uncomfortable when the weather is warm. The size wouldn't make a great deal of difference, as I am confined to bed and my mother is able to make over anything. D. C."

Can some one provide more comfortable apparel for this young girl? She writes from a local institution.

Offers Belt and Truss.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have an abdominal belt to be worn after an operation and a truss, both size 30. If you know of any one in need of such articles I shall be glad to pass them on.

"MRS. G. T."

If you are interested in Mrs. T.'s offer please write to her immediately in care of this office. Letters will be forwarded to her and the recipient notified. Please do not telephone.

Finger Nails Are Flashing in Limelight of Fashion

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Have you seen any of the artificial finger nails? Quite, quite gay, if a bit startling. But if you have a lovely pair of hands, why not flash them into the limelight? Every asset counts these days of hectic rivalry.

This finger nail beautifying business has seen oceans of water flow under the bridge since mamma wheeled her doll carriage. Hands are grand these days—and getting grander all the time. I like the idea of playing them up since they are so fascinating to watch if beautifully groomed and beautifully managed. But they've got to be all of the last two named to pass ordinary muster today.

The tinting or dressing the nails is the de luxe touch. The shaping, however, belongs in the category of required attention.

Nails have to be long enough and strong enough to take on the tres smart line that look: as if time were spent on grooming them. And so many women have difficulty with split and chipped off tips. A good many women have one or two pet fingers that are always getting in the way of a window or door jam. All the other nails will maintain a good length, the weak one usually just recuperating from a recent blow.

A number of reasons are subscribed to weakened nail tips. Excessive use of nail polish or remover is named as one as too drying in effect; too much cold water, nervousness, and lack of vitamin D are others.

To get the nails growing out full length one expert advises frequent and rapid buffing to get the circulation working under the nail, and frequent dips in oil. Let the finger tips remain in the oil for five minutes. You may do this while you're reading at night. Some find the heated oil better than the cool. Personally, we think there is little difference in the result.

Another suggestion volunteered by one of long hand treatment experience is to start from scratch for a new nail length but cutting the nails straight across so they look square.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 22.—[Special.] — The secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace have as their guest for a few weeks the former's sister, Miss Ruth Wallace, who was a cabinet girl of the Woodrow Wilson administration. The father of the secretary and Miss Wallace was the late Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture under President Wilson.

The assistant secretary of state and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr entertained at dinner tonight for the American minister to Latvia and Mrs. Robert P. Skinner, who are spending ten days at the Mayflower. They are in this country on a six weeks' leave of absence.

The newly appointed American minister to Canada and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, the former a first cousin of President Roosevelt, were entertained at dinner tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Gunther in their Georgetown home. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins and their daughter, Miss Helen Robbins, will sail Wednesday for England, where Mr. Robbins will be a member of the American delegation to the world economic conference.

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, wife of the former attorney general, entertained at luncheon today at the Sulgrace in compliment to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, widow of the Vice President, who is the guest of Mrs. Allan Dougherty. Other guests were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Swanson, wife of the secretary of the navy; Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, wife of the senator from Arkansas; Mrs. Alexander Weddell of Virginia, wife of the American ambassador designate to Argentina; Mrs. Andrew Long, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Mrs. T. T. Ansberry, Mrs. B. B. Jones, Mrs. Leslie Garnett, and Mrs. John A. Dougherty.

Walt Whitman Fellowship to Mark His Anniversary

The Walt Whitman Fellowship of Chicago will hold its annual celebration and dinner in honor of the poet's 114th birthday anniversary in the assembly hall of the Stevens building on Wednesday evening, May 31. The affair is under the direction of Dr. Morris Lychenheim, brother-in-law of Horace Traubel, Whitman's personal friend and biographer. The proceeds of the dinner will be given to the widow of Traubel. Prof. Percy H. Boynton of the University of Chicago and Rabbi Solomon B. Freehoff of Congregation Anshev Mayrev are among the speakers.

Don't Give Phone Number, Advises Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I met a new crowd of boys the other night and, wanting to see them again, I gave them my phone number and told them to call me up. I did not think there was anything wrong with this, but my pal says it was not the right thing to do. Am I right or is she?—Belle."

We think your pal wins. Your action has rather the tang of autograph collecting. One asks: "What for?"

If the boys get together and they are of a group that goes around together, they will not be especially flattered to find out there was no individual kick in being honored with your phone number. Besides, we think it a lot smarter of a young woman to let the man scurry around and find the number. It's no trick getting it out of a telephone book, and if the boy is interested he won't mind foraging around for it.

If you were planning a future party to which you wanted to invite the boys, "Belle," you might have asked for their phone numbers, explaining just what you wanted them for. But handing yours out willy-nilly just doesn't fit in with smart girl tactics. It looks too much as if you were preparing against a lonesome season. If one boy failed to use the phone number, another might use it. And that doesn't react well in the light of a girl's popularity.

A girl meets a boy at a party. She would like to see him again. She would like him to 'phone her. Now, what is the best behavior here? Ordinarily, if the girl makes a hit the boy will ask if he may call her up some time. Then, if he asks for it, she might give her telephone number, or she could say her name was in the book, indicating the parental name and address under which it would appear.

You might tell said young man that you'd love to hear from him—but if he doesn't call your best move is to cross off the incident as "one of those things." Don't assume that because he said he'd call he definitely will. He may be making polite conversation and again he may be that kind of boy who sees a girl, falls for her, and proceeds to forget her. Anyway, don't put on a telephone chase yourself.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . more than 5,000,000 families at a cost of about ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

A MAGAZINE editor's mail is a valuable barometer of reader interest provided it comes voluntarily, without false stimulation.

Without the slightest urging or solicitation (The American Weekly conducts no prize contests) there is a steady flow of letters from readers across the editor's desk.

If the manufacturers of this country could only read this mail, The American Weekly would not be big enough to hold the advertising that would be urged upon it.

Why? do you ask?

Simply because these letters are genuine. They are serious communications from readers who have put their hearts on paper in response to articles that have appeared in their favorite magazine.

The Readers' Serious Interest

Draw them out at random. Here we have a note from the father of a high-school girl asking for editorial articles from this magazine to aid his daughter in her Latin course. Is his interest casual?

Here is a dramatic letter from a forest ranger who, after reading the articles on psychology written for The American Weekly by Professor Laird of Colgate University, bares his misery to the editor and asks for help in overcoming an urge to suicide "because my wife and kiddies need me."

From Iowa a mother writes to ask how to bake a chocolate cake that will not aggravate her diabetes. Her health, she says, is vital to herself and her family. Is hers a surface interest in The American Weekly?

The American Museum of Natural History asks for an article on meteorites. A university president would like to write an article for the magazine. The Los Angeles School Board requests a series of illustrations. The Associated Dental Laboratories want to reprint an article on the first false teeth. Ely Culbertson asks for an article on the history of playing cards. Editors of foreign publications write in every language under the sun for translation rights.

What of it? you may ask. The great catholicity of this mail is doubly significant. First of all it proves that this Mighty Magazine has succeeded in interesting every type and stratum of society. Secondly, it proves the confidence of the reader in the authenticity of articles in The American Weekly. Third, it proves the DEPTH of The American Weekly readers' interest.

For $16,000 you can buy a full page, printed in four colors and place your advertising message in the most interesting and the most responsive magazine in the world, reaching more than 5,000,000 homes and families.

These homes are located in the richest buying areas of this nation, the richest and most concentrated market for your wares.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday newspapers. In 529 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 68% of its circulation.

In each of 93 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 110 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 157 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 169 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,680,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

HUBBELL CLOSE SECOND; LUCAS IN THIRD PLACE

Fans Pick Players for All Star Game.

BY ARCH WARD.

Lon Warneke, the National league's leading pitcher in 1932, has taken first place in the nation-wide poll to determine the pitchers who will represent his league against the American league all stars in the game of the century in Chicago July 6.

LON WARNEKE.

The first returns, which are published this morning, are mostly from Chicagoland. More than 50 newspapers in every section of the United States are coöperating with THE TRIBUNE and A Century of Progress in soliciting votes from the fans. The standings in several positions probably will be changed when returns from the east, far west and south reach THE TRIBUNE office.

Even in Chicagoland, where you might expect Warneke to enjoy his widest popularity, he is closely pressed by Carl Hubbell, the New York Giants' southpaw. Warneke has 1,557 votes and Hubbell 1,514. Two Cincinnati pitchers, Fred Lucas and Silas Johnson, rank third and fourth. Three pitchers will be chosen.

19 Pitchers Receive Votes.

An idea of the difference of opinion on the league's leading pitchers may be gained from the number of names appearing in today's poll. Nineteen received at least five votes.

Another close race is promised for the shortstop position. Dick Bartell of the Phillies is in front this morning by a margin of 49 votes. His nearest rival is Floyd Vaughan of the Pirates.

The fans seem definite in their favorites at the other infield positions. Bill Terry of the Giants at first base, Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals at second and Pie Traynor of the Pirates at third have taken a lead of nearly 5 to 1 over their closest rivals. Six infielders will be included in the team. Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs is even a more pronounced favorite for catcher. Jimmy Wilson of the Cardinals was second. There will be two catchers selected.

Three Leading Outfielders.

Chuck Klein of the Phillies, Paul Waner of the Pirates and Lefty O'Doul of the Dodgers are the leading outfielders. Rules of the contest provide for four outfielders.

No event in baseball history has aroused so much discussion. Wherever baseball fans congregate the personnel of the teams that will play in the leading sports attraction of A Century of Progress Exposition is the topic of discussion. The reasons for their selections are interesting.

"I picked Jurges," Dr. Nolan wrote, "even though I realize the batting punch isn't there. I wanted a shortstop with a great arm."

New Papers Conduct Polls.

Francis B. Cunningham of Dubuque, Ia., writing in behalf of three barbers and two salesmen, stated it was a great idea provided the fans of the Chicago area did not let their enthusiasm for the Cubs and Sox influence their vote.

The national solicitation answers

WELL- THINGS ARE BEGINNING TO BRIGHTEN UP- I ASKED $50,000.00 FOR THAT BUILDING- AND HE DIDN'T SAY NO- IT LOOKS AS THOUGH I MIGHT SELL IT- AND $50,000.00 COMING IN RIGHT AT THIS TIME IS NOT TO BE SNEEZED AT-
5-23
AND IF WE SELL THE BUILDING- WHAT THEN?
WHAT THEN? WITH $50,000.00 - WHY WE'D BE ON EASY STREET ONCE MORE- ALL OUR TROUBLES WOULD BE OVER- WE COULD PUT ON THE STYLE AGAIN- AND SHOW THIS BIM GUMP WHO'S WHO— PROVIDENCE MUST HAVE SENT COUNT BESSFORD TO US-
WELL- DO YOU KNOW, MAMA- I DON'T LIKE THE LOOKS OF THAT MAN-
SO YOU'RE STARTING THAT AGAIN- ARE YOU? WELL, THIS IS THE TIME TO BE SMART- WHILE WE'RE GIVING HIM THE TITLE TO THE HOUSE- PERHAPS YOU MIGHT BE ABLE TO GRAB A TITLE FOR YOURSELF- THINK THAT OVER-

First Returns on National League's All Star Lineup

The baseball fans of America will decide who will play on the All Star National and American league game of the century in Chicago July 6. More than 50 newspapers in all sections of the United States are coöperating with The Chicago Tribune in soliciting votes.

The Tribune is awarding $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to picking the starting lineups and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who chooses the National league lineup with the starting pitcher will receive $100. The same award will go to the best selection in the American league. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who are able to pick the six pitchers who will work in the game.

BY FRENCH LANE.

An old stake horse called No More came back to the races after a year's vacation and won the seventh running of the Washington Handicap as the new Chicago racing season opened at Washington Park yesterday.

Most of Chicago's racing notables were in the crowd of 10,000 when No More scored his unexpected victory and returned to those who backed him $26.76 for every $2 invested.

No More was in motion and had a running start when the race got under way, and it was easy for him to reel off the six furlongs over a dull track in 1:12 2-5 and win by two lengths and a half from the favorite, Mr. Sponge. A nose back in third place was Isaiah, a Kentucky colt, which carried the gold and hopes of nearly everybody from the Blue Grass country.

Has a Year's Rest.

Until he rolled up this spectacular victory No More had not been seen under colors since the spring meeting at Aurora in 1932. Something went wrong with him after that engagement. He roamed the pastures on a farm near Chicago throughout the winter and until a few weeks ago when he was put back into training.

His advantage at the start made it doubly certain that not one of his seven rivals would ever catch him. It is doubtful if they could have kept step with him even had they been able to get away on even terms, for No More's was a sensational race, a performance that might have beaten any man's horse.

The Lemar farm's Marooned took up the chase after No More in the early stages, but soon found the pace too fast and dropped back. Isaiah and Mr. Sponge then offered a challenge, but neither could ever get near the winner. Mr. Sponge showed some spunk right near the finish and nosed out Isaiah in the final strides. It was a dizzy pace which No More cut out, for he ran the quarter in :23 and the half in :46 3-5.

Betting Is Heavier.

There wasn't much pomp and ceremony about this opening of the World's Fair racing season at Washington Park. Lots of Chicago's racegoers were on hand, and there were many strange faces in the crowd, evidently from the advance guard of World's Fair visitors. They bombarded the mutuels all afternoon and it was reported the betting was heavier than a year ago. The attendance was also slightly larger than it was on opening day in 1932.

As is usually the case on opening day, the favorites did not fare so well. They were bowled over nearly all afternoon. This caused the regulars to

15,000 Attend Tribune Golf School; Men's Class Tonight

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE TRIBUNE golf school, the greatest plan for competition and instruction in the history of the game, began last night when the 27 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, sponsor of the project, opened their gates to more than 15,000 men, women, boys, and girls. The enthusiasm manifested following upon the original announcement of the school was more than borne out last night by the attendance, and augured well for full classes throughout the remaining six weeks of the course.

Last night's demonstration was not a lesson, but an explanation of the order and purpose of the lessons. The school proper will start tonight with the first men's class. The first women's class will be held tomorrow night, the first girls' class on Thursday and the first boys' class on Friday. All classes for the succeeding five weeks will be held on these same nights. The girls' and boys' classes are restricted to those under 18 years of age. The lesson this week will have to do with the driver, so all pupils are requested to bring one.

Be On Time!

Another important point for every student to remember is punctuality. Each is asked to be on time, if not ten or fifteen minutes early, because minutes during the lessons will be precious, even with the boon of daylight saving.

The golfers and would be golfers—none was barred, whether he or she had played ten years or never—who came to school last night ranged in age from 8 to 76. The most surprising feature of the attendance was the fact that women students outranked men more than 2 to 1.

Mid-City, Evergreen, Harlem, Big Oaks, Glenbard, Chicago Meadows, Pickwick, and Indian Head drew the greatest proportion of the attendance. Mid-City led with more than 2,000, and yet was one of the most orderly classes of the entire evening, due to a system of registration devised by the owners of the course, Bill Langford and Ted Moreau. To handle the record enrollment at their course, Langford and Moreau have inaugurated a 9:30 o'clock morning class, which will begin with the men this morning and continue for all classes. Mid-City also will hold classes at 7 and 8 p. m. Those who registered for an evening class at Mid-City last night but wish to change to a morning class are invited to do so, provided they notify officials of the change.

Evergreen Draws 1,500.

Following an exhibition of trick shots and driving by Joe Tivan and Frank Springer, Moreau explained the course to the class, after which separate groups were given instruction on the fundamentals by Norman Faunce, head professional, Eddie Gayer of Twin Orchards, Dan Taggart, Scotty Irwin, Bill Campbell, G. E. O'Donnell, Tivan, and Springer.

Evergreen drew a class of 1,500. Loud speakers were used for the demonstration, which lasted an hour and fifteen minutes. Al Megeff, the club professional, was in charge. Exhibitions were given by Don Gardner, Jimmy Cunningham, Fred Porter, Fred Clisbee, and Roy Hutchinson.

Con McGinnis of Golfmoor, which attracted 500, selected a young man and a girl to serve as models during his instruction. Following the lesson, a large number of pupils went out on the course to play a round.

More than 500 assembled at Harlem. Robert Sweitzer, Cook county clerk, opened the Harlem school with a brief talk on the benefits of golf and the purposes of the competition, which will conclude the teaching. He was introduced by James Shea, club manager.

Although the class was scheduled to open at 7 o'clock, John Condon, the owner of Harlem, arranged his program so that instruction did not begin until 7:30, thus insuring a maximum attendance. Prior to the opening two of the assistant professionals entertained with a series of shots at the first tee.

Three to Assist Philpot.

A speaker's stand had been built on the practice fairway, and after Mr. Sweitzer's talk William Philpot, the club professional, explained the schedule of classes. Philpot will be assisted by Jack Yorgan, Fred Vierow, and Art Huebner during the six weeks school.

Jack Sturm, Big Oaks professional had four assistants—Johnny Gibson, Roy Hunter, Jack Norton and Jack Sturm Jr.—to aid him in handling a crowd of 1,000. Howard Davis of Ridgemoor, regarded as one of the district's best teachers, addressed the students on golf for beginners. Archie Schatz gave a trick shot exhibition at Glenbard, where Joe Sturm, club professional, lectured to a crowd of 560. Five hundred turned out at Cog-Hill, where the veteran Abe Espinosa was in charge. Jack MacDonald, brother of Bob, came over from Southmoor to assist Pat Cusack in the task of teaching a crowd of 210 at Walnut Hills. Buck Ewing ran the show at Hillcrest, where 75 pupils, some of them from as far north as Harvard, Ill., attended.

Women Outnumber Men.

Elmgate, with Jack Croke in charge, drew 300, and was another example of how the women students outnumbered the men. A loud speaker was installed by Joe Roseman at Pickwick, where the class reached a total of nearly 700. Both Croke and Roseman were enthusiastic over the manner in which the opening demonstrations were received.

At Northbrook 115 women and 65 men came to class. George Jenkins, club pro, said he planned to engage enough professionals so that groups of 35 could be taught at one time. Herb Graffis, editor of Golfdom and Golfing, introduced Jock Anderson, Techny Fields professional, to 200 students. Three hundred listened to an indoor and outdoor demonstration lasting an hour at Vernon. Among

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 22.—The White Sox succumbed today before part of the strength the Yankees sent to Boston because they had no use for it. The Chicagoans, bubbling with ambition as the result of their two victories out of three games at Washington, were slowed down to a seven hit pace by George Pipgras, recently imported by the Red Sox from New York. And Allen [Dusty] Cooke, who came from the world's champions by way of Newark, exploded a homer that was the deciding margin in a 3 to 2 triumph for the reknitted Boston Hose.

Members of the Yankee Alumni association weren't the only ones able to create a mild panic among the Chicagoans. One of their own castoffs also made a general nuisance of himself. He was Johnny Hodapp, transferred last winter from the south side to Boston's cultural atmosphere. Hodapp staged a day for himself by hitting safely three times, two of his hits driving in Boston's first two runs. And the strange feature of it was that he did the hitting against the man he was traded for—Ed Durham.

Swanson Leads Chicagoans.

One nice thing about Pipgras was that he played no favorites. He restricted Al Simmons to a scratch single, but this led to a run. He restrained Luke Appling, another of Chicago's clouters, to one hit, and this also helped because it was linked with the Simmons tap. Pipgras didn't let Mule Haas make anything even close to a hit, but he did have a little trouble with the fleet-footed Evar Swanson. The ex-Lombard collegian got two hits, the second being a ninth inning double that brought on the White Sox's second score of the afternoon. But the Chicagoans were suppressed with the tying run still on base.

The only hit the White Sox could produce prior to the fifth was a line drive over first base by Swanson in the first inning. There were two out at the time, so Evar figured it worth while to attempt to stretch his hit to a double. He arrived at second base too late. Then nobody came even close to reaching base until Swanson showed up again with two out in the fourth. He lost a hit by an eyelash because of McManus' neat bare handed pickup of a slow bounder.

Hodapp Does His Stuff.

Two hits were put together by Boston to fetch across a run in the first inning. Johnson opened with a single into center and Werber sacrificed. Cooke went out on a grounder to Hayes, and Hodapp then started delivering his compliments to his former team mates. He doubled against the left field sign boards to score John-

BABE HERMAN STAGES HIS OLD SWAN DIVE ACT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Maybe the Cubs are all worn out after their valorous Sabbath deeds. Or maybe the returning heat got them. At any rate they were pitiful in the business of taking a severe licking from the tail-end Phillies, 11 to 4, in the series opener yesterday afternoon.

LYNN NELSON.

By winning their season opener at Wrigley field the Phillies have achieved as much success as they did all last year, for in 1932, though they finished fourth in the league standings, the boys from Philadelphia lost 10 out of the 11 games they played at Mr. Wrigley's ball park. If the Cubs are only half as inefficient as they were yesterday, the Phils should have no difficulty in reversing their won and lost ratio at Wrigley field.

But the Cubs probably never will be half as inefficient as they were yesterday. If they are, some serious minded fan might start shooting.

Grimes Only Has Glove.

In the first place, Burleigh Grimes tried to pitch without his full quota of rest and didn't have much except his glove and his well known fighting heart. Lynn Nelson was all right until he was fouled by a lot of miserable support which gave the Phillies five runs in the seventh.

The Phillies tried their best to sustain their tail end reputation in the fifth inning, but Phil Collins, one of Chicago's ablest meat cutters in the off season, slashed them down in a relief rôle, and contributed a triple with the bases full to add to the Cub chagrin.

On the said Collins triple, incidentally, Babe Herman put on his terpsichorean masterpiece, "the Dying Swan," for the first time since becoming a Cub. In this number, which Babe last staged, playing against the Cubs in a 15 inning game in Cincinnati last year, the tall outfielder goes through a graceful routine, the last movement of which is a swanlike dive while the ball goes through to the fence.

The act usually is good for a triple, and no positive applause for Babe's team. Less graceful performers generally play hits such as Collins' for a single, but withhold the dance.

It should be said in justification of Babe's artistic flair, however, that the contest had turned pretty sour before he ever went into his dance. The seventh inning before the Collins triple was in pretty much of a mess as a result of elemental fumbles by Koenig and Hendrick.

Let's Calm Down Now.

Since there seems no need of stewing around further about one of those terrible days, what do you say that we calm down and recite the details of what happened in a nice, matter of fact way?

At the end of the first half of the fourth inning the Phils were leading, 4 to 0. A single by Hurst, a forceout, and a double by Lee enabled Whitney to score in the second inning; two infield singles, a sacrifice and a fly allowed Liska to score in the third and singles by Lee and Davis and a double by Finn accounted for a pair in the fourth.

A double by English and a couple of forceouts enabled the Cubs to break through in the fourth, but in the fifth

Two thousand pupils, the biggest class in golf's biggest school, sponsored by The Tribune and the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, gathered at Mid-City links last night to get preliminary instructions from Professionals Norman Faunce, Joe Tivnan, Eddie Gayer, Scotty Irwin, Frank Springer, Dan Taggart, Bill Campbell, and G. E. O'Donnell.

At Harlem Golf course, another of the 27 on which opening classes in The Tribune school were conducted, 500 listened to Instructor William Philpot. On stand with him is James Shea, manager of the course. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

"Now folks, it's this way——" say Instructors Jack Sturm and Roy Hunter as they give 1,000 eager golf students a few pointers at the Big Oaks course. The first men's classes in the school will be held this evening.

Nash Brothers Win Two.

The white and green jacket, popular everywhere the Democrats congregate, and under the new deal popular with a lot of Republicans, was twice carried past the winning post. The old sprinter Grand Prince galloped to the first Nash victory in the six furlong fourth race. He let a lot of horses outrun him in the early stages, but turned on the speed and ran away from them in the drive down the stretch.

Thirty minutes later the Nash jacket was carried to another victory by the 4 year old Minton in the mile dash of the Riverdale purse. Minton showed a very stylish hand the way for the entire route and wound up by beating courageous old Pigeon Hole by a neck. The even money favorite, Pot au Brooms, finished third and was quitting badly in the final stages.

The fans who backed the Nash horses and parlayed them reaped a nice profit, for Grand Prince paid $6.98 and Minton's price in the mutuels was $9.08.

Two Hurt as Race Car Hits Wall in Test

Indianapolis, Ind., May 22.—(AP)—Al Aspen, driver, and Mitz Davis, mechanic, both of Philadelphia, escaped serious injury in an accident today while trying to qualify for the 500 mile automobile race to be run here May 30.

The car in which they were riding at 109½ miles per hour went into a 1,000 foot skid just after it had made the first turn out of the home stretch. It crashed head on into the lower retaining wall, bounded back to the middle of the track, whirled about, and then bumped the inside wall rear end first before coming to a stop.

At the hospital where the men were taken it was said Aspen's worst injury appeared to be a cut and bruised nose. Davis' right arm was hurt. Both men were released from the hospital a few hours later.

Mark Billman, Indianapolis dirt track driver, rode the rough bricks of the speedway course for the first time in his life today, then qualified his car at an average speed of 112.410 miles per hour. He was the only driver to make the grade today. Aspen was the only other pilot to attempt the test, which required a minimum speed of 100 miles per hour.

23 Cars Qualify for Race

Twenty-three cars have been qualified for the race to date. Others will have opportunity to do so daily until next Sunday. The starting field is limited to 42. The list of qualifiers and their average speeds follows:

C. D. G. A. BUREAU FOR REGISTERING GOLFERS OPENS

Officials of all golf governing bodies in the state and city, and several prominent golfers participated in the formal opening of A Century of Progress golf registration bureau yesterday.

The bureau, located in suite 1533-34 of the Lytton building, 14 East Jackson street, is sponsored by the Chicago District Golf association and most of the prominent daily fee clubs in the district.

The first registration was sold to George Lytton, State street merchant, by Walter Hagen, who is here to play in the National Open tournament at North Shore on June 8. Foursomes following included Albert Gates, president of the Professional Golfers association; Frank Walsh, and officials of the P. G. A. and the Chicago District Golf association.

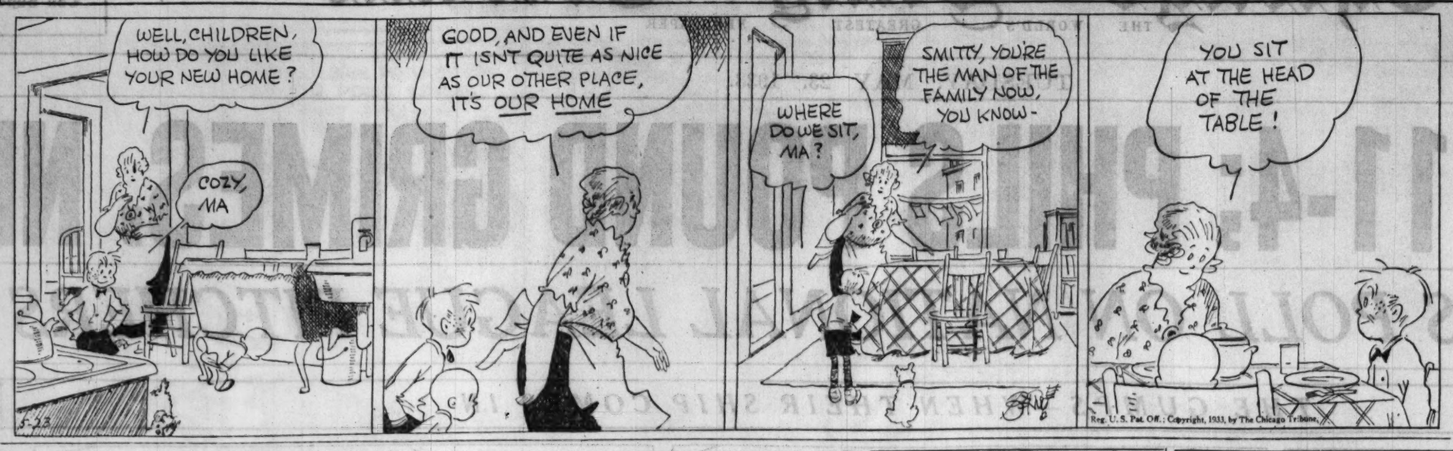
District Golf Tourney Scheduled for Glen View

The Chicago District Golf association will hold its one day handicap tournament on June 2 at Glen View. Joe Davis, secretary of the association, announced yesterday. The event was scheduled for tomorrow, but an overflow of the north branch of the Chicago river made it impossible to get the second nine holes of the course in playing condition.

Lake Shore A. C. to Hold Golf Tournament Today

The Lake Shore Athletic club will hold a golf tournament today over the No. 3 course of the Medinah Country club. A feature of the event will be a four ball match bringing Johnny Dawson and Gus Novotny against George Dawson and Frank Justin. A field of more than 100 is expected to compete and attend dinner in the evening.

SMITTY—HEADMAN



DID YOU HAVE SANDWRACK? HERE HE IS!

Sandwrack (No. 7) takes lead on rail in first race at Washington Park yesterday and scores victory over Knight Commander (No. 8). Third money went to Flag Bearer, which is on the inside and blocked off from the camera by Knight Commander. No. 1 is Beau Jolie and No. 2 is Upset Lassie.

Winner trained by J. B. Theall. Went to post at 2:18½. At post 3 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

SANDWRACK, beginning slowly and on extreme outside from the start, began working his way up when approaching the stretch, weakened after heading FLAG BEARER, but lasted. KNIGHT COMMANDER also raced wide almost throughout, rallied to strong riding after reaching final eighth, and was wearing down the winner. FLAG BEARER had speed from the start, was steadied along first half mile, and came away approaching final eighth but weakened.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

PRINCE DRAKE worked his way to front under strong urging, came away after reaching stretch, but weakened and was under strong pressure in drive. MARIANA began fast, saved ground at stretch turn, and held on gamely under strong riding the final eighth. PAPER PROFITS lost ground and closed strongest of all.

MORSUN, having fine speed, opened up a commanding lead before going a half mile, weakened badly in final eighth but under strong riding in final seventy yards held HAMILTON safe. Latter saved ground at the turn and, holding on well, was rapidly cutting down the leader at end. LA SALLE, away slowly and far back first half mile, made up much ground on outside after reaching stretch, but weakened from the effort, yet outstayed OZITI.

GRAND PRINCE, away fast and having speed, was under steadying restraint first half mile, slowly disposed of SUN MEMORY and, responding to strong urging, was under strong pressure in drive. MADWIND, Latter, never a great distance out of it and brought up gradually when entering stretch, stood the drive gamely. PLUMAGE, away fast and well ridden, held on well in an even effort.

Winner trained by J. J. Greely. Went to post at 4:19. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

MINTON, coming into his best form and taken into the lead, was under snug restraint first half mile, pulled away fast at stretch turn, weakened badly and, though not punished, had little left. PIGEON HOLE, wide throughout, closed boldly and was gaining rapidly in final stages. POT AU BROOMS, on inside much of the trip, moved up weakly at stretch turn, but weakened in final three-sixteenths.

Winner trained by E. B. Carpenter. Went to post at 5:42¼. Off at once. Start bad from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

GAY BIRD, much the best and never far back, was under strong restraint first seven-eighths, responded stoutly when called upon, and won drawing out. MAD CAREER had speed from start, was cleverly rated and gamely shook off ESSARE, but could not withstand winner. ESSARE away in motion, was on inside first three-quarters, made a bid under strong pressure and, after coming out in stretch, then weakened.

Head Play's Defeat Leaves Fans Guessing

The one big topic at Washington Park yesterday was the defeat of Head Play in the Wood Memorial stakes at Jamaica last Saturday.

Kentucky turfmen who had come to the conclusion that Head Play was one of the greatest horses to come along in a dozen years shook their heads and admitted they didn't understand the beating the colt took.

They want to take a look at Head Play when he arrives at Washington Park on Thursday before they come to a final conclusion. If he looks like a little freshening up will do him any good, they'll all have a bob or two riding on the big nephew of Man O' War in the American Derby.

Should Col. Edward R. Bradley decide to send Barn Swallow, the Kentucky Oaks winner, to Washington Park for the Illinois Oaks on Saturday, it more than likely will scare off several of the candidates, it was predicted by horsemen yesterday. Barn Swallow, on her early races, shapes up as the best filly since Rose of Sharon and Col. Bradley is reported to have sent her east to seek the American Coaching Club Oaks at Belmont Park.

Roscoe Goose, who has developed many noted riders within the last few years, bobbed up at Washington Park yesterday with a new protege in J. Mayer. After serving 2 years as a stable boy, Mayer wore silks for the first time during the recent spring season at Churchill Downs. C. Kurtsinger, E. James and G. Elston are some of the boys Goose has developed within the last few seasons.

Old Screw Sanders, the sage of Churchill Downs and the voice of Washington Park, figured out a prospective American Derby field yesterday. It includes the following starters: Head Play, Trace Call, Charley O, Mr. Khayyam, De Valera, Kerry Patch, Isaiah, Sarada, Bertrano, Ladysman, Utopian, Inlander, Advising Anna, Strideaway, Fair Rochester and Projectile. Such a field surely would make the World's Fair derby a worthwhile event.

Lots of folks shaking hands and passing the time of day at Washington Park yesterday. Morris Vehon was there, so was Jim Looney, the soup magnate of Kentucky. . . . B. S. Michell, who saddled Reigh Count in all his great victories, was around renewing acquaintances with nearly everybody. He brought a half dozen of his own horses here. . . . Carlos Ames and Jim Norris were in a huddle just before Mr. Norris' Knight Commander lost the first race. . . . John Connery and Former Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling lunched together and Secretary of State Ed Hughes joined them a little later. . . . From the Board of Trade came Walter Barringer, Adam Raffel and Morris Isaacs.

Here's Where to Fish for Muskie in Wisconsin

BY BOB BECKER.

The Manitowish flowage—A dam in the Manitowish-Flambeau system has backed up the water and created a flowage similar to that on the Chippewa. It is well worth fishing. The last few years have shown this water to be top notch for muskies. The backwater has submerged trees and made excellent breeding conditions for game fish. This is in the Mercer-Manitowish country in Vilas county. Fishermen can work out of either place. The lakes near both of these towns also are good. That elevator fish way in the Manitowish river has been feeding the lakes in the Manitowish chain for several years. All kinds of game fish have been coming up and passing over this novel lift.

Crab lake, near Winegar—Crab lake shouldn't have muskies according to the natural distribution of the species, but they are there just the same. An outstanding lake for shoreline beauty and small islands. Very good for pike. Delightful canoe portage jaunt into Papoose which also is a muskie and pike lake. You are on the divide when you travel over these portages. On the north side the drainage is toward Lake Superior. On the south side of the divide the water heads toward the Mississippi. North and east of Crab the lakes are primarily bass, pike and pickerel. The muskie is not found in that northern drainage along the boundary. In June this is good territory for bass.

Schumacher Ends New York's Losing Streak.

Cincinnati, O., May 22.—(AP)—The New York Giants today snapped out of their losing streak, defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 9 to 0, for their first victory in six games. Hal Schumacher pitched three hit ball.

Si Johnson, who had won four straight games, two of them one hit shutouts, was no puzzle to the Giants. They greeted the Reds' right hander with four straight hits and two runs in the first inning and, after scoring another run in the second, drove him from the mound with a four run attack in the fifth.

White Sox Pick Milt Gaston to Win Game Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 22.—Milt Gaston, who hasn't pitched since May 7 because of soreness in his arm, will trot out to face his former Red Sox teammates in the second of the three game series tomorrow. The Boston starter will be either Paul Andrews or Duster Rhodes. Both are Yankee graduates.

Walter Miller's sensational two hit victory over Washington yesterday was the choicest of his many big league triumphs. His next best was a three hit victory over the White Sox while he was with Cleveland in 1926. That day he beat Al Thomas, who was making his first appearance in a Chicago uniform.

Eddie Collins, now general manager of the Boston club, doesn't sit in a grand stand box like most of the magnates. He plants himself on the lowest row of a little bleacher back of third base. He says he was on the field so many years that he can't follow a game if he has to look down on it.

Manager Fonseca has again decided that he will not let another day pass without restoring himself to first base duty. He will be there tomorrow provided there are no complaints from the ankle injured in the game of April 26.

Yanks Whip Indians, 3-0, in 8th Inning

New York, May 22.—(AP)—Vernon Gomez triumphed over Wesley Ferrell in a pitching duel today, hurling shutout ball to give the New York Yankees a 3 to 0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Each pitcher allowed only six hits, but the Yankees bunched three of theirs with an error and a base on balls to score all of their runs in the eighth inning.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 22.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics won their fourth straight game, 6 to 5, today in a see-saw affair which opened a three day stand with the St. Louis Browns. Eddie Chhocki's single to left scoring Jimmy Foxx in the eighth broke a 5 to 5 deadlock to decide the contest. St. Louis tied the score three times during the game. The Browns outhit the A's, 12 to 10. Lefty Grove, who finished up for the A's, was credited with the triumph. Score:

SENATORS, 6; TIGERS, 5.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—The Washington Senators shut off a Tiger rally in the closing innings to win a 6 to 5 decision over Detroit in the opening game of the series today. Aided by the nine hit pitching of Earl Whitehill, as well as a couple of timely singles by the left hander, the Senators entrenched themselves firmly in second place. Score:

SAVOLDI TAKES KENTUCKY GIRL AS WIFE NO. 3

Buchanan, Mich., May 22.—[Special.]—Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football player and now a heavyweight wrestler, has married for a third time. News of Savoldi's marriage to Lois Poole, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Poole of Henderson, Ky., became known today when Mrs. Savoldi came here to the home of her husband's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Savoldi. Joe left last night for New York.

Savoldi's first marriage, which caused his ineligibility at Notre Dame, was annulled. Divorce terminated romance number 2 with a Pacific coast girl. Savoldi's third marriage took place yesterday in a LaPorte, Ind., railroad station and was performed by a justice of the peace.

Durham went from one extreme to the other in the third when the Red Sox hung up their second run. Pipgras and Johnson struck out, but Durham handed a walk to Werber. Cooke singled to center, putting Werber on third. Then Hodapp got loose again. This time he singled into right to score Werber and put Cooke on third. Durham escaped from this situation by fanning Ferrell.

Kress Drives in Run.

Simmons bounced one over Pipgras' head for a single to start the fifth. This developed into Chicago's first run. Appling singled to center, putting Simmons on third. Dykes flied to center, but not deep enough to make scoring possible. Kress, however, whacked one so hard that Johnson had to dash back to the right center field fence to get it. Simmons scored and Appling went to second after the catch.

Cooke's homer, a drive that bounced off the flat top of the wall in left in the seventh, put Chicago in arrears, 3 to 1, but for a few moments in the eighth they thought they were going to whittle down at least part of the handicap. After two were out Grube singled to center. Webb was sent in to swing for Durham. He singled past McManus. The threat died when Hayes was tossed out by Hodapp.

Belated Rally in Ninth.

The White Sox opened the ninth with an out, but Swanson lined to left for two bases. Simmons poked a twisting grounder to short and Werber fumbled. Swanson went to third on the error and sprinted home on Appling's fly to Johnson. This put things up to Dykes. He hit one on the line, but the ball sailed straight into Oliver's hands for the final out.

Bury R. G. Baldwin, Former Notre Dame Athlete, Today

Funeral services for Rollin G. Baldwin, 24 years old, 6527 Stewart avenue, former Notre Dame athlete and brother of John Baldwin, Notre Dame basketball star, will be held this morning from St. Bernard's Roman Catholic church, 66th street and Stewart avenue. Interment will be at Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Baldwin was graduated from Notre Dame in 1932. He played basketball in his sophomore year. For the last year he was referee for the Catholic Youth organization. He died Saturday of an infection.

Tailend Phils Rout Grimes, Wallop Cubs

Collins Halts Rally.

In the fifth the Cubs had three runs home and the bases full, with the score only 5 to 4 against them, when Collins came in to start his heroics. Demaree singled and Hartnett fanned. Campbell batted for Grimes and singled to left, Demaree stopping at second. Liska passed Douthit to fill the bases and when he passed Bill Herman to force in Demaree, Pearce came in. English's fly to Klein and a throwing error by Finn on the return of the ball accounted for two more Cub runs. Then walks to Babe Herman and Hendrick again loaded the bases. Collins entered and made Koenig pop to Davis.

And now comes the record of the Philly seventh. Bartell was safe on Koenig's fumble. Klein fouled to Hendrick, but Hurst doubled, Bartell stopping at third. Bartell scored and Hurst went to third on Whitney's fly to Douthit. Then Lee walked. Davis singled to left, scoring Hurst. The bases were full when Hendrick dropped Koenig's perfect throw on Finn's grounder. Then the Collins drive and the Babe Herman number, Lee, Davis and Finn scoring. Fullis flied to Douthit.

The Phillies made their eleventh run on a hit, a walk, and two wild pitches in the eighth.

BUSH TO PITCH TODAY

Guy Bush will go after his fourth victory of the year in this afternoon's game with the Phils. Guy isn't feeling so friendly toward the Phillies, who assaulted him for seven runs in the fifth inning of a game in Philadelphia on May 13, for a 7 to 1 victory. Flint Rehm probably will start for the Phillies, Collins, the scheduled starter, having been used up in yesterday's Cub debacle.

The best thing about yesterday's affair was that only about 3,000 fans were there to see it. They saw what perhaps was the worst played game the Cubs have lost this year. Maybe this statement is covering a little too much ground, but it's close enough.

The wolves, who have been very patient with Babe Herman in his efforts to hit in the pinches, lost their restraint when the fallen star made his butterfly dash for Collins' hit in the big seventh. They gave him a pretty heavy razz, which wasn't nice, for Babe's embarrassment was attributable only to zeal, and baseball zeal rarely rates a Bronx cheer.

Mickey Finn, who was hailed all winter as the gent whose defensive work was going to make the Phillies pennant contenders, hasn't looked so hot in some of the games against the Cubs. Yesterday he took a throw from Klein and with no play at third, lobbed the ball into the dugout. The careless offense might have been serious, for it allowed a run to score and put the potential tying run on third.

MILDRED HACKL KEEPS CHICAGO GOLF CROWN

Mildred Hackl won the women's golf championship of the University of Chicago for the third time yesterday with a score of 48—45—93 over No. 1 course at Cog-Hill. Mary Keifer, 45—51—96, was second, and Betty Patterson was third with 54—50—104.

Others in the party of 100 competed for blind bogey prizes, while several withdrew at nine holes because of a strong wind that made low scores almost impossible.

Miss Hackl was away to a poor start, and at nine holes trailed Miss Keifer by three strokes. The latter used an extra putt at the first green, but got a birdie at the third, a dogleg.

Rounding the turn, Miss Hackl showed improvement, and was under par at the 520 yard twelfth, where she barely missed an eagle. Following several wasted shots into the wind, Miss Keifer made her second birdie on the last hole.

Prize winners in the women's Cog-Hill club tournament yesterday were Mrs. Daniel J. Meany, 93, first gross; Mrs. Rose Marshall, 98, second, and Mrs. Rose Long, 99, third. Mrs. Abelard Espinosa and Mrs. Clara Morrison tied for the blind bogey award with 86, while Mrs. Camille Kraft captured the low net trophy with 85.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About the CUBS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

WHOM would you name if you were asked to guess who's the sleepingest and eatingest member of the Cubs baseball team?

There are 23 men on the squad and unless you had a clew or were influenced by the nature of the question we bet you would guess at least 20 players before you got the right fellow . . . The sleepingest and eatingest Cub is, strangely enough, the most active and skinny Cub . . . His name is Guy Bush.

While sleeping and eating are not usually associated with activity and skinniness, the hookup is logical in Bush's case . . . No man could burn up energy as Guy does around ball parks without replacements in the form of plenty of food and plenty of sleep . . .

We know little of Guy's living habits in the winter time but we know that he swings into action on the field and at the table the first day he arrives at the Catalina training camp . . .

During the training season all the Cubs except Guy cut lunch, lingering in the clubhouse during the lunch hour . . . Bush follows no such routine. He dashes to the St. Catherine hotel and orders and eats the works . . .

We never have seen a person who proceeded about his eating as Guy does . . . No toting in of courses for this gentleman from Mississippi . . . He picks out what he wants, from soup to nuts and has it all fetched in at once . . .

Once provided with the desired victuals Guy meticulously arranges the several dishes in a semicircle . . . Then he goes to work . . . And can that boy blend victuals? . . . If you've ever seen an assembly line in a large auto plant you have a good idea how Mr. Bush works on his semicircle . . .

There's nothing except a bridge or rhummy game that will keep Bush up as late as 11 o'clock and nothing except an earthquake will get him up before 10 when he's away from Chicago . . .

On trains we happen to room across the aisle from Guy. We've never got on a train in time to beat Bush to bed and the last time we went to Boston he got sore because we didn't pull him out of his bunk to get off at the Back Bay station . . . Guy went to South station and it cost him $1.40 in added taxi fare to get five minutes more sleep, which is, of course, a pretty high fee for sleeping from a son of Mississippi, Mississippi being a state where sleeping is looked upon as strictly a God given privilege.

Mr. Cunningham's criticism. In addition to the list of prominent newspapers published yesterday in THE TRIBUNE the group now includes the Kansas City Star, Springfield [Mass.] Republican, Fort Wayne [Ind.] News-Sentinel, Delphi [Ind.] Journal, and Davenport [Ia.] Times. Hundreds of smaller papers, many of them country weeklies, will send in their votes to the publicity bureau of A Century of Progress. These will be added to the total appearing in THE TRIBUNE.

American Returns Tomorrow.

The voting is open to every one. Every newspaper that has asked to conduct a poll has been admitted. This was the intention of the club owners, the presidents of the leagues and THE TRIBUNE at the time the game was arranged.

The first returns on candidates for position on the American league team will appear tomorrow.

LEWIS MEETS STEIN TONIGHT AT COLISEUM

The match has been sanctioned as a contest by the Illinois athletic commission. It will be two out of three falls with a two hour time limit.

Tonight's card:

Sammy Stein vs. Ed Strangler Lewis, two out of three falls, two hour time limit.
Gus Sonnenberg vs. Stanley Pinta, 30 minute time limit.

COPPER, CLOTH INDUSTRIES JOIN UPWARD MOVE

Workers Recalled to Jobs at Increased Wages.

News from varied lines of industrial activity continue to tell a story of business improvement throughout the nation. This already has resulted in many people, long unemployed, going back to work and in increases in wages on restorations of pay reductions.

Some of the high spots in yesterday's news included a report from New York that the copper fabricating industry is running at the highest rate in two years, with an upturn comparable to the recent comeback of steel. Sales of new passenger cars during April are reported to be greater than early estimates indicated. The Illinois Central's income for April made a notable gain. Cotton cloth sales last week continued in excess of production.

Pay Roll Jump of $500,000.

Down south, in the region of Mobile, Ala., more than $500,000 annually has been added to the pay rolls of the five textile mills of the West Point Manufacturing company. The mills are at Lanett, Shawmut, Fairfax, Langdale, and Riverview—in Chamber county. With orders pouring in during the last six weeks, 500 men have been added to the forces of these mills. The mill at Lanett is producing more cloth than at any time in its history. The Southern Mills corporation has restored the 10 per cent wage cut put into effect less than 8 months ago at its Oxford and Munford plants.

The Itasca, Tex., cotton mill opened yesterday for the first time in 17 months, employing 200 workers.

The Berkshire Woolen company in Pittsfield, Mass., increased wages of 400 employés 10 per cent and the Stillwater Worsted company of Harrisville, R. I., boosted pay 12½ per cent. The latter plant is operating at capacity.

Sales of cotton cloth last week were in excess of production, despite the highest output in years, the New York cotton exchange service reported.

Paint Business Improving.

The Sherwin-Williams company, paints and varnishes, Cleveland, said that April practically broke even with April 1932, although prices were lower. May is breaking even with a year ago and exceeding peak weeks. Gallonage is ahead approximately 15 to 20 per cent weekly. The company's plants have been working full time and overtime for many weeks.

Charles P. Gulick, president National Oil Products company, Harrison, N. J., says: "The trend in our business is decidedly upward at the present time. Employment has increased to the extent that all our employés are working full time.

Whitney H. Eastman, president National Soybean Oil Manufacturers' association, said the shortage of soybeans for commercial purposes is so acute that the demand will exceed the supply before Oct. 1 by over a half million gallons. Soybean oil prices have advanced over 100 per cent from the low of last November.

Labor Shortage in South.

H. M. Wilson, president Pine Institute of America, said the recent price increases in rosin and turpentine were making better feeling among the producers. He said some complaints of colored labor shortage from a number of sections were partly attributed to government relief work and free flour distribution.

H. H. Springford, president of Servel, Inc., reported that sales of Electrolux gas refrigerators are running 100 per cent above last month and that April sales were 50 per cent above factory estimates. The plant at Evansville, Ind., is operating on a double shift basis.

The receivers for the Willys Overland company have been granted permission in the United States District court to make 1,500 passenger cars of the 77 type and to make 1,000 additional trucks for the International Harvester company.

Salmon Prices Rise.

Pacific coast salmon packers have marked up their second price advance in a little over a month, according to reports from San Francisco. It is stated they are now in a position to make a small profit.

Around 400 additional persons are to be given work at the plants of the Murray Corporation of America making insulated steel barrels for the beer industry.

The Branch River Combing company of Woonsocket, R. I., announces that it is raising the wages of its 500 employés 10 per cent.

The East St. Louis plant of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting company will be given a 10 per cent pay increase on June 1.

ORDERS FORCE FACTORIES TO BUY MATERIALS

Inventories Cut by Wave of Sales.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

J. B. BERRYMAN.

This increased buying is caused by public belief that the price trend has finally and definitely turned and will continue upward. And as the buying grows and the shelves become bare the manufacturer takes heart and raises his prices so that he may again cover expenses and climb out of the red.

The producer of raw materials likewise becomes encouraged and moves his prices upward so that he, too, may operate profitably. This causes a further upping of prices of manufactured goods.

Everywhere the story is the same for raw materials, increased sales and increased prices for manufactured articles.

Stove Prices Forced Up.

"There has been a general stiffening of prices to such an extent that we are going to be obliged to raise prices. Southern manufacturers of heating stoves have already increased their prices 5 per cent. Northern makers haven't done so yet, but they will.

"Lighter gauge steel sheets have gone up 7½ per cent in two weeks. Crating lumber has risen 20 per cent in the last month. Paper boxes are up 15 per cent. Imported tin oxide, used in enamel coating, now costs 40 per cent more than it did six weeks ago.

"Other increases are: machine screw products, up 10 per cent; copper tubing, up 10 per cent; imported minerals used in vitreous enamels, up 10 per cent or more. Even rags are up 15 per cent.

"Everybody I've talked with recently is optimistic. The whole setup has altered during the last six weeks. The tone everywhere is bullish. Manufacturers are beginning to get their costs out of sales and the producer of raw materials is beginning to cover expenses."

Plumbing Fixtures Pick Up.

J. B. Berryman, president, Crane company, says his company is enjoying such a brisk pickup in business that it is planning to add more men to the pay roll.

"Some of our prices have been advanced during the last month," he says. "If the present trend continues further advances are inevitable. Prices of our raw materials have risen substantially. Copper is up 40 per cent. Pig iron is stiffer, and all basic materials are higher.

"Business is much better. Long pent up demand is being translated into sales. So far there have been no very large orders, but there have been a vast number of small orders."

Arthur Shiverick, treasurer of the Tobey Furniture company, says that manufacturers are so thoroughly convinced that prices are definitely on the upward trend that none of them will now take orders for future dated shipments.

Fear Distant Contracts.

They are willing to take orders for delivery as soon as the material is finished, but refuse to project contracts into the future for fear costs will rise too rapidly.

"In the lower priced furniture division where lumber is quite an item I know of at least one group that has increased factory prices 10 per cent.

"Almost everybody is cheerful, particularly manufacturers of upholstered furniture. They have been very busy lately. Factories that haven't yet advanced the price of upholstered chairs plan to do so because there has been a substantial increase in the price of fabrics.

"I hear that a good many manufacturers whose lumber stocks are exceedingly low for anything like normal requirements have been striving hard to build up their lumber inventories before the price goes up materially."

Floor Covering on Upgrade.

Leland E. Eaton, manager of the Lytton building, has just completed a survey of the nineteen wholesale floor covering companies in his building. He finds a general business pickup unparalleled since 1929.

Distress selling of merchandise below cost, he reports, has almost disappeared. Mills—many of them working close to capacity—have notified wholesalers and dealers to get ready for price advances in the near future.

Dr. A. P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, reports that the prices of the four principal woods entering into the manufacture of furniture have gone up from 5 to 25 per cent, with the average around 20 per cent. These woods include, mahogany, oak, walnut, and maple.

The Belding Manufacturing company, which makes wiring used in automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, and other household appliances, reports that increases in the prices of raw materials have resulted in increases in the prices of finished products. An official of the company said the prices of copper wire have gone up 30 per cent and rubber 75 per cent and there have also been increases in cotton and silk.

Higher Income Tax Rates Peril Business Spurt

BY REUBEN CAHN.

Business and financial news is the most encouraging in four years. Men are being called back to work, more freight is moving over the railroads, and people are buying automobiles, dresses, furniture and electric refrigerators. Farmers, realizing greatly improved returns from the sale of their grains and live stock, are sending substantial money orders to Chicago. The first convincing revival of business since 1929 is at hand.

This improvement has not come as a result of inflation, because there hasn't been any. And Washington dispatches say that there won't be if the upgrade continues. Neither has it resulted from the farm bill, for the machinery provided by that measure has not even been set up. The industrial bill has surely not been responsible for this better business, for it has not yet been enacted into law. And the pick-up is not attributable to the three billion dollars to be blown in on public works, for the authority to do that spending still lacks congressional ratification.

Confidence Brings Buying.

It is a fair conclusion that the business upturn has sprung from other causes. For some reason or other business men, having become convinced that they could expand their business profitably, have promptly done so, purchasing more raw materials and hiring more labor for the purpose. Higher prices have resulted from this buying, and this has led other people to buy, thus generating a further momentum.

The conviction of business men that they could risk their funds in business expansion at this time, with reasonable prospects of success, resulted in large part from the action of the President in cutting governmental expenditures, promptly and substantially. This gave rise to the belief that national government costs having gone down, would stay down, and that taxes would before very long be reduced. The result would be that he who undertook the risks of business success would receive the profits when there were any.

Lower Tax Hint Is Spur.

At a time when business men needed every stimulus to encourage them to carry on the President ordered government expenditures cut, in effect suggesting lower income taxes were in order in due time. It acted as a sort of bounty.

Government bounties in the form of special consideration in taxation have had an influence in getting business going at various times and places. When a community has sought new industries, frequently exemption from taxes for a period of years has been offered. A number of leading American industries have been nurtured to their present stature by exemptions granted their products from the taxes which were imposed upon competing products of foreign manufacture. Even outright subsidies have been paid to encourage industry by the national government, states, and communities.

Tax Business Enterprise.

But the proposal of the ways and means committee is not a bounty to be paid to industry out of a well filled treasury. Nor is it an exemption from taxation. It is exactly the opposite. The committee would raise income taxes beyond the war time maximum—the present rates—by as much as 50 per cent in some cases. The funds thus raised are to be spent in servicing a three billion dollar bond issue, the proceeds of which are to be spent in reviving business.

The committee's plans to stimulate business revival by telling business men that if their enterprises succeed they shall pay into the federal treasury a larger share of their incomes than any people were asked to do before.

This measure would act to cancel the previously attained gains. It would do more than that. Previously the impression has prevailed that the war had set the limit upon governmental exactions from the people. The worst that we could expect from Washington was what was done in the name of the national defense while we were fighting the enemy. But if the scheme of the ways and means committee is enacted into law, notice is served upon the people that there is no limit beyond which the government will not go in confiscating the people's incomes, even in times of peace.

Tax Proposal Hits Markets.

Last year when the present extortionate tax rates were before congress the stock and grain markets had one of the worst sinking spells of the depression. The course of the markets has not been greatly different this time. Proposals of further confiscatory taxation have already cost the farmers about 8 cents per bushel.

Not only should the ways and means committee proposal be defeated, but there should be an unequivocal statement that future government policy does not lie along those lines. Legislation at this time should be directed toward motivating business enterprise rather than discouraging it. Give the budding business revival a chance!

Farm Act May Cut Foreign Debt a Billion

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 22.—Passage of the farm relief act may have cut a billion dollars off the debts owed the United States by foreign countries, the treasury department declared today.

The inflationary rider to the act made all types of American money legal tender for "all debts, public and private," allowing the foreign debtors to pay in any type of money from greenbacks up, the treasury revealed.

With the dollar selling at a discount of from 10 to 20 per cent abroad, foreign nations, whose total debt to the United States is 11 billion 427 million dollars, could buy the necessary dollar exchange for payments at a saving of at least a billion dollars in terms of their own currencies.

Any Currency Legal.

Formerly the debts were payable only in United States gold coin of the present standard of value or government bonds, and only gold and gold certificates were legal tender for public debts. Now, however, it is admitted at the treasury that federal reserve notes, national bank notes, or any other American currency would discharge the debts because of the language in the farm relief bill.

Even if all types of American money were not acceptable, however, the depreciation of the dollar probably could have been used by foreign debtors to lighten their debt payments. Depreciated dollar exchange could have been purchased and converted into United States bonds which are acceptable for debt settlements. Since many of the bond issues sell above face value, however, this method would have had its difficulties.

Next Payments Due June 15.

First payments to come due total 144 million dollars and are payable on June 15. About a tenth, or 14 million dollars, could be shaved off this total in terms of foreign currencies if the debtors bought dollars at their present low levels and kept them until the payment date.

Since the treasury can pay out any form of money, the government will not be the loser under the farm act, treasury officials maintained. They declared that operations would not be embarrassed by payment of foreign debts in greenbacks, for instance.

I. C. Raises Net Operating Income $427,156 in April

The Illinois Central system experienced a sharp upturn in earnings in April when net operating income went to $1,149,002, an increase of $427,156 over last year. Operating revenues totaled $6,419,738, a decline of $756,162 from April, 1932.

BEER EXPECTED TO INSPIRE TIRED FAIR VISITORS

"Beer," says an official of A Century of Progress," is going to be one of the big contributing factors to the success of the Fair. A fellow all worn out from an afternoon's sightseeing will sit down, have a couple of steins of beer with his supper and, feeling greatly refreshed, will go out and spend another dollar."

* *

One reason for the anticipated financial success of A Century of Progress, an official discloses, is that over the board of directors there was set up a superdirectorate consisting of the representatives of those who bought the Fair bonds.

This setup was intentionally arranged, he says, so that the natural liberality of directors handling other people's money might be checked by the people who had an investment at stake. The super-directorate was provided for in the indenture under which the bonds were issued. Only one difference of opinion between the two groups is reported. It had to do with the spending of a quarter of a million on a project the merit of which was questioned by the bondholders. The bondholders won.

The scheme has been so successful that it has been suggested for other corporations.

Something new in dividend styles—a "when, as, and if" disbursement. Directors of United States and Foreign Securities corporation yesterday declared a dividend of $1.50 per share on the first preferred payable June 10 to stockholders of record June 1, "unless on June 10 the financial condition of the company is such that the dividend could not then be legally declared."

Russell Firestone, who heads the specialty rubber department of the big tire and rubber company headed by his father, Harvey S. Firestone, says his department is given some odd orders to fill. A recent request came from a lady who owns a herd of 150 cows. "I like the appearance of the horns on my cows," she wrote. "However, I am afraid to leave them on for fear they will hurt some one. Can you supply me with some rubber tips to put on the cows' horns so I will not have to have them removed?"

Now you tell one.

TELLS STEWART, WARNER STOCK HELD BY HEADS

Oscar U. Zerk, head of the stockholders' opposition committee which is seeking to oust the present management of the Stewart-Warner corporation, asserted in a statement issued yesterday that the five directors of the company own less than 2 per cent of the outstanding stock.

C. B. Smith, president, holds 6,400 shares, the company's books reveal, according to Zerk. Other holdings, as reported by the committee, are: V. R. Bucklin, vice president and director, 11,212 shares; W. J. Zucker, former official, 3,300; L. H. La Chance, chairman, 1,863 shares; Joseph E. Otis, director, 345 shares; Joseph E. Otis Jr., director and general manager, 37 shares.

STOCKS SEESAW IN QUIET TRADE; OILS ARE BEST

Loss Exceeds Gain, but Leaders Rise.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 22.—Stocks put on a spotty performance in slow trading today. On a turnover of about 2,225,000 shares, small losses were somewhat in the majority at the close, but the gain column included some of the leaders. Oil shares were again conspicuous for consistent strength.

Traders obviously took into account the threat of increased taxation which already is beginning to becloud the recently brightened business vista. The bull contingent made a late attempt at a rally, but they had to buck the influence of a decline in wheat and slackness in most other commodities. Closing quotations were, nevertheless, well above the day's lows.

At no time did selling reach threatening proportions and offerings were absorbed in convincing fashion. For the time being, at least, profit taking seemed to have run its course.

Setback Fails to Dislodge Stock.

Failure of the setback to dislodge much stock furnished a cue to professional speculators to take it easy on the short side. In most instances stocks gave ground stubbornly, indicating that the market is not suffering from liquidation so much as from reluctance of speculators to buy on moderate recessions.

For consistent strength the oil shares stood out head and shoulders above the rest of the list. Virtually all the oils moved forward in the early trading, some of them at a fast pace and on large turnovers. Two items in the day's news were responsible for the popularity of the group, namely, an increase in the price of Pennsylvania crude oil and prospects of federal control of the industry with a view to restoring it to health.

Barnsdall and Pure Oil appeared to have leadership in the movement, the latter closing up well over a point. Others prominent in the advance included Atlantic Refining, Consolidated Oil, Continental Oil, Phillips Petroleum, and Union Oil of California.

Other Leaders Strong.

Continental Can and National Biscuit did well, and so did Celanese, with an advance of more than a point on the day.

A reported acceleration in steel output to 40 per cent of capacity helped United States Steel to a fractional net gain. Others in the steel kroup performed erratically.

Among the other shares of heavy industry American Can, Du Pont, General Motors, and Westinghouse found enough support to post small net advances, while General Electric eased a small fraction.

New York Central and Union Pacific, together with a few others, ended transactions slightly above the previous close, with Santa Fe and Delaware and Hudson among the losers.

American Telephone, Commonwealth and Southern, and Consolidated Gas were active, but unable to shake off heaviness and closed off a little.

GRAIN BROKERS MUST CONFORM TO MARGIN RULE

Board of trade members must require every customer to put up the minimum clearing house margain requirements on every trasaction under the interpretation placed on the new regulations issued last week by the business conduct committee. Thus, a broker can no longer extend credit to his customers according to his own discretion but must conform strictly with the clearing house rules.

A trader long in wheat and short in corn in the Chicago pit must supply the minimum margin in each commitment. One long commitment cannot be used to offset a trade on the other side of the market. A broker handling hedge business will have to call margins regularly on both sides of the market.

One explanation offered for the new rules is that grains have been moving independently of each other in the Chicago pit recently. Corn has gained on wheat in the last two weeks in the trading here and rye has outdistanced both these commodities.

The new rules are effective June 1 for customers in the United States and Canada. For foreign customers they go into effect July 15. Minimum clearing house margin requirements are: 2 cents a bushel for wheat, corn, barley, and rye; $1.50 for 50,000 pounds of lard; 90 cents for 30,000 pounds of bellies; $1.50 for 25,000 pounds of cotton.

Franchise Tax Ruling Likely to Cut State Income $3,000,000

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The state of Illinois stands to lose $3,000,000 annually in corporation franchise taxes as the result of a ruling handed down by Attorney General Otto Kerner.

The ruling, made at the request of Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state, gives domestic and foreign corporations operating in the state the opportunity to escape payment of practically all their franchise tax by designating a portion of their capital as "paid-in surplus."

Corporations are losing no time in taking advantage of the ruling. A charter just filed for the Bosworth Building corporation showed that its capital stock was issued for a consideration of $432,000. By calling part of the funds received "capital surplus" the company paid only $33.34 in franchise tax. If the entire amount had been described as "capital" the tax would have amounted to $504.

Theater Amends Charter.

The Oriental Theater organization has amended its charter to convert $600,000 of its capital into capital surplus, thus reducing its yearly franchise tax by $300.

It is reliably reported that a number of other large corporations also are preparing to amend their charters. Where formerly the corporations paid thousands of dollars annually in franchise taxes, they will be enabled to reduce their tax liability to $10 yearly.

Under the present law a corporation issuing stock is required to pay an initial fee of 1-20 of 1 per cent of the amount issued. In the case of no-par stock the tax is computed on the basis of the amount received by the sale of the stock.

Former Ruling Upset.

Heretofore the secretary of state has held that a corporation could not sell a par value stock for more than the par value. This prevented a firm selling a $10 par stock for a price as high as $1,000 and paying only a $10 tax.

The Kerner opinion upsets this ruling and allows a corporation to issue capital stock of $1,000,000 and designate $980,000 as capital surplus. By so doing the issuing corporation pays an initial fee on $20,000 and the remaining $980,000 escapes both initial fee and franchise tax.

This loophole in the law will be removed if the pending corporation act is passed by the legislature. The new act is designed to offer greater safeguards for investors and replace the present archaic law, which has had only one important revision since it was adopted in 1872.

NATURE DOING WHAT FARM AID LAW AIMS TO DO

Wheat Dried Out, Corn Flooded.

Nature seems determined to enforce the provisions of the recently enacted farm relief act by Congress, at least as far as the curtailing of production of grains by American farmers is concerned.

Drought and dust storms caused an abandonment of nearly one third of the 39,985,000 acres winter wheat seeded last fall. That leaves only 27,096,000 acres for harvest, against 33,656,000 acres in 1932, more than 11,000,000 acres less than in 1923-'30 average. The crop was officially estimated May 1 by the government at only 339,000,000 bushels, the smallest since 1904, 125,000,000 bushels less than in 1932 and compared with 787,000,000 bushels in 1931, the largest on record.

$5,935,000...Saved for Customers
1,937,000...More for Taxes
470,000...For Employee Insurance

$8,342,000 . . . Less for Investors

MANY people do not realize that electric rates have come down. Over a period of years the rates for electricity have declined far more than the cost of living.

If Associated Gas & Electric System customers had been charged at the 1928 average rate for their 1932 use, their total bills last year would have been approximately $5,935,000 higher—

Residential customers would have paid $4,926,000 more. Commercial and Power customers would have paid $1,009,000 more.

Based on data for the industry as a whole, rates also declined between 1926 and 1928, so that if 1926 rates had been paid for 1932 use it is estimated Associated residential customers would have paid $6,884,000 more and commercial and power customers $2,511,000 more—a total of $9,395,000.

Reductions in electric rates since 1928 have been made in spite of steadily mounting taxes. Taxes per dollar of Associated System operating revenue, excluding Federal income taxes which are not comparable, were 39% higher in 1932 than in 1926.

If the Associated System had paid the 1926 tax rate on its 1932 operating revenue, the tax bill would have been $1,937,000 less.

Electric rates are far below and taxes are far above the levels to which it is proposed to raise commodity prices. Customers are paying much less — government is receiving much more — 13,200 employees are insured under a comprehensive plan. But there are others who also deserve consideration.

Investors, including such public institutions as banks and insurance companies, as well as individuals, have a large interest in the utilities. Their investments made possible more efficient plants and distribution systems, with a consequent saving to customers. Their investments are responsible for the growth of the industry and its importance as a source of taxation. Their investments created jobs for thousands of employees.

If customers had paid the 1928 average rate for 1932 use of electricity; taxes for 1932 had been paid at the 1926 rate; and employees had not been insured then, after providing for additional Federal income taxes which would have had to be paid—and 78,000 holders of Preferred and Preference Stock (whose dividends have been passed) and of Convertible Obligations (whose interest is being paid in scrip) would receive the cash return to which they are entitled.

Applying 1926 figures for electricity as well as taxes and including employee insurance, earnings would be $1.49 per share. The remaining loss of earnings which should have accrued to the equity would then be due mostly to the slowing down of business.

The burden of increased taxes and decreased rates falls directly on investors. The fact that their investments have contributed so much to the customer, the government and the employee entitles them to consideration. Should not the essential service of investors be recognized?

New York, May 22.—Wabash Railway bonds featured price movements today. The Wabash 5s, due in 1939, went up as much as 8 points, while the 4s of the Toledo-Chicago division soared 14 points.

The gains were due directly to a court decision permitting the assuance of not to exceed $906,853 in receiver's certificates as a pledge for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan, already approved by the interstate commerce commission. The loan will be used to meet May 1 interest.

Other Rail Issues Decline.

Other speculative rail bonds declined irregularly as traders took profits and waited for a clarification of the domestic and international business outlook. Losses ranged from fractions to more than a point.

Industrial bonds were higher in scattered instances. Schulco stamped 6½s rose 15 points. Oil bonds were higher, gains including Shell Union Oil 5½s and Skelly Oil 5½s. High grade corporation bonds were firm as institutions continued to make commitments in a small way. Rail bonds, particularly those of early maturities, were in especial favor.

U. S. Bonds Firm.

United States government securities had a good undertone in both short term and long term issues. Buying in anticipation of reserve bank open market operations was still a market factor. Low money rates also are influencing the banks to increase their positions. An interest cost to the treasury of about one-half of 1 per cent, or less, was predicted by dealers on the sale today of treasury discount bills.

Hupp Motor Car.

I would appreciate receiving any information you may have relative to Hupp Motors.—L. B.

Hupp Motor Car corporation is one of the smaller units in the automobile industry. It manufactures automobiles in the medium priced class, selling about $1,000.

Reflecting reduced buying by the public and the shift in what buying there was to low priced cars, operations during recent years have been in the red.

Sales in the first quarter of 1933 were $1,576,000 and net loss was $523,000. The company lost $596,000 in the first quarter of 1932.

Net sales in the full 1932 year amounted to $8,751,000 and loss was $4,515,000. Loss was $4,249,000 in 1931 and $923,000 in 1930. Net income in 1929 was $3,469,000, and in 1928 $8,790,000.

Results in 1932 are after $1,300,000 deductions for inventory adjustments and idle plant expense. Inventory adjustments in 1931 amounted to $2,518,000.

On March 31, 1933, cash alone of $2,578,000 compared with current liabilities of $1,074,000. Marketable securities (at market) amounted to $1,993,000 and inventories were $2,115,000. Working capital was $6,209,000, against $10,211,000 on March 31, 1932.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 1,329,125 shares of $10 par common stock. Cash dividends were discontinued in the final quarter of 1930.

Ratings.

Please advise me whose stock ratings you accept as "gospel" in your rating of securities?—M. F. L.

We accept no system of ratings as "gospel." A rating is only an opinion, a matter of judgment. To accept any system as "gospel": that is, with unshakeable faith, would be tantamount to rating an individual's market judgment as infallible.

"Do."

Will you please give me what information you can on "Do B" and its stock?—M. E. W.

The term "do" is a stock market abbreviation for ditto. In the stock exchange quotation tables "Do B" refers to the B stock of the company listed directly above.

WHEAT PRICES SLIP AGAIN AS HOLDERS UNLOAD

Spring Crop Area Helped by Recent Rains.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculative longs in wheat continued to liquidate their holdings of futures yesterday and found support lacking. Prices dropped as much as 2⅜ cents from Saturday's finish and to the lowest level since April 29. The July option was off 7⅝ cents from the recent top, touching 68¼ cents at the inside.

The wheat market showed a heavy undertone from the start, and there was little disposition to rally. The persistent selling, which has been in evidence for over a week, appeared on all the minor upturns. Closing trades were about at the bottom.

There was no change of consequence in the favorable character of the crop reports from the spring wheat area. Further rains fell over a considerable territory and will be beneficial, although there has been ample surface moisture in practically all sections.

Weather Favors Soft Wheat.

Reports covering the soft winter wheat sections were somewhat spotted, but in the main favorable. However, a leading Kansas line elevator company was out with a summary of conditions in that state suggesting a maximum crop of 65,000,000 bushels, of only 7,000,000 bushels in excess of the government May 1 returns, despite recent rains. The plant was said to be forming less than average sized heads over a considerable area.

Aggregate trade in wheat was light and largely in small amounts, which suggested liquidation by scattered longs, according to views expressed by pit brokers. Net losses for the day were 1⅞ to 2¼ cents, with May closing at 66⅝ to 66⅝ cents; July, 68⅜ to 68½ cents, and September, 69⅝ to 69¾ cents.

Corn Resists Pressure.

A flood of unfavorable crop and weather comments from the heart of the corn belt caused that grain to show stubborn resistance to selling pressure. Prices advanced ⅝ to 1⅛ cents early on commission house and local buying, only to weaken 1¼ to 1⅜ cents later with wheat, and then rally at the close.

Final trades were unchanged to ¼ cent higher, compared with Saturday. May was 42¾ cents at the last, with July 44¼ to 44⅝ cents, and September, 46¼ to 46¼ cents.

In the last three weeks the visible supply of cash corn has increased nearly 4,000,000 bushels. This raised the total to 34,097,000 bushels, the largest in over 35 years at this season of year. It is the first time since 1895 that the stock at terminal markets has increased during May.

Other Grains Decline.

Oats and other grains were unable to resist selling engendered by the decline in wheat and corn, and prices dropped sharply. Oats lost ½ to 1⅛ cents, with scattered liquidation in evidence on the day down.

Eastern operators, who have been active on the buying side of rye for some time, have taken in and paid for almost 4,000,000 bushels of cash rye on May contracts, and are now in control of nearly 50 per cent of the total commercial supply of that grain at terminal markets. The break in wheat caused scattered longs to sell yesterday and prices dropped 1⅜ to 2⅛ cents.

LIVE STOCK HOLDS STEADY WAITING NEW CAPITAL CUE

Prices Edge Lower as Buyers Hold Off.

Live stock markets in all divisions of the stockyards were marking time yesterday, pending new developments in Washington. It was evident that the trade was waiting for a cue of some kind before bringing pressure on the market one way or another, but nothing in the news warranted any big change. Both sides were just a little uncertain.

Buyers followed their natural instinct to reduce live costs, and soon were paring down prices in the various divisions that have mounted in skyrocket fashion the last two weeks. The general average price of hogs dropped back to the $5 line, showing 10 cents loss, compared with Friday and Saturday and 20 cents loss compared with last Thursday.

Speculators Buy at Start.

Speculators attempted to bolster the market in the early part of the day by absorbing a good many loads of 200 to 300 pound butchers at $5.10 and $5.15, fully steady prices, but the general market for good grades sagged to a $5.05 basis.

While enthusiasm was lacking again yesterday, traders do not expect prices to lose much of what has been gained in the last two weeks, since the "cut-out" value of the hog is more than $2 above the low point of the winter. Yesterday's top sales were $2.15 above the low, while the general average for the day was $2.20 over the winter's bottom.

Cattle ruled steady to 25 cents lower, but liberal water fills made up most of the price discounts. It was apparent that no drastic break threatened, but buyers were anxious to play the safe side and have their purchases go into the "house" lower than at the close of last week.

Cattle Receipts Heavier.

Receipts were heavier. The run at Chicago at 14,000 has been exceeded only twice in two months. Reports from the hide market where prices of heavy steer hides touched the highest levels in two years continued favorable, and this helped to cushion the effects of the heavier supplies.

Yearlings averaging 1,002 pounds topped the market at $7.10 while steers averaging 1,312 pounds made $7.00, the top for heavy cattle. Some 1,467 pound steers reached $6.75 and 1,606 pound averages sold at $6.50.

Wooled Lambs Steady.

Wooled lambs maintained a steady price level in the early part of yesterday's session on the strength of the strong position of the wool trade throughout the country, but closing sales indicated a mostly 25 cents lower basis, the market weakening in sympathy with other bovine stock. Wooled lambs sold to packers and city butchers as high as $7.25 at the opening, within 25 cents of the year's peak, but the close was at $7.00. Lambs without fleece declined to $6.35, indicating the widest spread between shorn and wooled stock this season.

While quotations at the leading wool markets maintained an even keel yesterday, country points continued to soar to new three year highs.

BUTTER AND EGGS STEADY

Butter and egg futures were unsettled on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing about steady, with butter ¾c lower to ¼c higher and eggs unchanged to ¼c higher. October eggs opened firm, but reacted on active new selling and liquidation. New buying checked the decline and started the price upward, holding the delivery to an unchanged close, despite continued bearish news. The four markets stored 22,700 cases more than last year. November butter eased quickly in the early trading, only to rally and then weaken again at the close when selling increased. News was bearish, the four markets storing 170,000 lbs more than last year. Sales: Butter, 113 cars; eggs, 12¼ cars. Deliveries: Butter, 3 cars; eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

COURT DELAYS SUIT AGAINST MIDDLE WEST

Forecasts Bankruptcy Action Dismissal.

Abandonment of the bankruptcy suit against the Middle West Utility company, biggest of the Insull holding companies, was forecast yesterday when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson continued until Oct. 2 a motion for examination of officials.

The delay follows the announcement that the holders of the company's $40,000,000 of notes and the Chicago bank creditors have come to terms on a plan contemplating the eventual reorganization of the big holding company.

Both Sides Approve Delay.

Attorney Robert N. Golding, counsel for the note holders, and Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, representing creditors, and representatives of the common and preferred stockholders' protective committees agreed to the delay.

Attorney Golding informed the court that the agreement between the banks and the note holders would be submitted for approval to Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley before June 1. The agreement provides for writing down the bank debts of the company by approximately $7,000,000 and the surrender by the banks of one-third of the collateral pledged by the company within four months of the filing of the bankruptcy petition. In return the noteholders acknowledge the remaining claims of the banks.

The preliminary examinations in bankruptcy scheduled to begin yesterday before Federal Master in Chancery Jacob I. Grossman was continued by Judge Wilkerson until June 5. Further indefinite postponement was indicated if the agreement among the creditors is approved by Judge Lindley.

DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST 2 BOND GROUP MEMBERS

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday dismissed a suit filed last week seeking the removal of Evar G. Swanson and Ray L. Pfordresher as members of the protective committee for holders of securities distributed by the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank.

Attorney Theodore E. Rein, representing the Teutonia Avenue State bank of Milwaukee, which brought the action, made the motion to dismiss. He informed the court that both Swanson and Pfordresher, whom the Milwaukee bank had charged with mismanagement of the affairs of the thirty-two protective committees, have submitted their resignations. The resignations are to be accepted if an investigation by bank officials sustains the charges made in the bill.

Attorney Rein said that directors of the bank suggested the dismissal. With the suit pending negotiations to reopen the bank might be retarded, the directors believed. The bank has been closed since March 3.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

STORE LEASING IN ENGLEWOOD SHOWS ACTIVITY

Columbine Building Now 100% Rented.

BY AL CHASE.

Store renting in the Englewood area is showing increasing activity, according to Ravis & Williams, of 6555 South Halsted street. They reported yesterday that as a result of several leases just negotiated for Porter Brothers, owners of the Columbine building at 6419-29 South Halsted street, that structure is now 100 per cent rented.

The two stores at 6421-23 South Halsted have been leased to the Consumers Sanitary Coffee and Butter Stores for a term of years. They will be remodeled into one large room 40 by 100, and will contain individual departments for groceries, meats, fruits, and vegetables. A new store front will be installed.

Chain Bakery Lease.

Ravis & Williams also leased the shop at 6425 South Halsted to Cushman's Sons, Inc., who will open their 49th Chicago bake shop shortly. These premises also are being remodeled and a new store front installed. The store at 6427 has been rented to John Carlsson and William Segersell who are installing a delicatessen and sea food shop.

The space at No. 6429 has been leased to "The Vim" for one of that concern's branch sporting goods shops. Charles Borg has renewed his lease on the store at 6419 South Halsted, also in the Columbine building, for a term of years for the gift shop business.

Two Apartment Deals.

Two apartment building properties are reported sold by Arthur Kruggel & Co. The six flats at 927-29 Eastwood avenue were bought by E. A. Auer for an undisclosed consideration. The two apartment building at 5207 Winthrop avenue was sold by W. T. Gaskell to the Sarah Rogers estate for an all cash consideration, subject to $5,000.

The same firm also report having leased the six flat building at 833-35 Lawrence avenue for a three year term to S. Heller. The lessor was J. L. Garner. Garland Edwards of Kruggel & Co., was broker in all transactions.

The residence at the northeast corner of Ellis avenue and East 48th street, lot 75 by 170, has been conveyed by quitclaim deed to George R. Krikup by William W. Loomis. The revenue stamps indicated $21,000 paid.

ILLINOIS POWER CALLS RECEIVER SUIT UNFOUNDED

A bill for receivership filed against the Illinois Power and Light corporation in federal court yesterday was described by officials last night as "absolutely without foundation." The suit was brought on behalf of E. J. Harvey, who is said in the bill to own a $1,000 bond of the company. The bill was filed by the firm of Teller, Levit, Silvertrust and Levi.

"Last Saturday a bill in the name of the same complainant was exhibited to our attorneys by a lawyer," a statement issued by the company said. "This lawyer told our attorneys he did not know Mr. Harvey's address, and we can find no record of Mr. Harvey as a bondholder. There is absolutely no foundation for the claims made in the bill exhibited to our attorneys and there can be no justification for these proceedings."

The bill charged the company had filed a misleading financial statement for 1932. Instead of a surplus of $2,749,563, the bill alleges, the company has a surplus deficit of $27,212,000. Illinois Power is a subsidiary of the North American Light and Power company and operates through subsidiaries in Illinois and Iowa.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—(AP)—Revised estimates of the 1932 cotton crop issued today by the department of agriculture placed production at 13,002,000 equivalent 500 pound bales and ginnings at 13,001,508 equivalent 500 pound bales, with yield of lint 173.3 pounds per acre picked.

Production for 1931 was 17,096,000 equivalent 500 pound bales and ginnings were 17,095,594 equivalent 500 pound bales, with yield of lint 201.2 pounds per acre picked.

Assert Chile Must Import Million Bushels of Wheat

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 22.—Because of insufficient Chilean production, Chile will have to buy abroad more than 600,000 quintals [more than 1,000,000 bushels] of wheat, according to President Alesiandri.
